RINGWORM ON BOY'S SHOULDER

And Back of Neck. Round and Many of Watery Blisters. Itched and Burned Badly. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in One Month.

Box 185, Downey, Cal.—"My little boy of eight years had what they called ringworm on his shoulder and the back of his neck. It started in a small pimple like a blister and kept getting larger till it was the size of a dollar. One place was as large as the palm of my hand. They were round and many of the watery blisters. Wherever the water would touch it would cause another blister, causing another sore and so on. It was very annoying and would itch and heat up red and angry and would itch and heat up redly that he could not sleep or lie for it still at times. He would cry when I would touch it. When he would rub or scratch it would look like chopped meat. It was nothing irritated it.

"I tried many remedies, but it kept spreading and itching. This was all before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment but after the first treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was much relieved, and they cured him in one month.

"My husband is a plumber and his hands are scratched and cut which means germs must be treated, so he washes with Cuticura Soap and pugs Cuticura Ointment on his hands every night and that helps them some." (Signed) Mrs. Harry West, Apr. 2, 1912.

Thirteen Men Meet Death.

Cloudburst in Pennsylvania Floods the Pit Where They Worked.

Women Try in Vain to Stem the Tide With Sticks and Brush.

List of Victims May Be Increased by Three or More.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

UNIONTOWN (Pa.) July 24.—Caught like rats in a trap when water rushed into the manway of Superba No. 2 mine at Evans Station, nine miles north of Uniontown, this afternoon, following a cloudburst, thirteen men were drowned and thirteen escaped after a most harrowing experience. The men were entombed about 4000 feet from the mouth of the mines, their only avenue of escape.

The majority of the victims had large families and about thirty children are deprived of their breadwinners.

The men who escaped were forced to half swim and half walk to the pit mouth through water ranging in depth from their waists to their necks.

The majority of the miners who escaped were knocked down by timbers that were sent down the mine with great velocity in the raging current. Several men were being carried back to certain death when rescued by their companions.

Officials of the Superba company said it would take sixty days to clear the mine of water and reach the bodies.

Supt. Buttermore was the first man to see the high water start in the manway. He gave an alarm and all the men on the outside rushed to the mine yelling loudly as they went. In that way more than half the miners were saved.

TO STEM THE TIDE.

Wives and families of the miners and drivers in the mines, when the alarm was raised, rushed to a large hole made by the rushing water at the manway and threw bushes, poles and whatever timber they could find into the water to stop its onrush. Failing in that, they rushed to the mouth of the mine, but were stopped by the men who guarded the entrance.

JUAREZ (Mex.) July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An important meeting of rebel chiefs at which Gens. Pascuale Orozco, Marcelo Caraveo and Ynes Salazar were present, was held in Juarez today.

The rebel leaders were in session nearly all day. It is believed to have an important bearing on the evacuation of Ciudad Juarez by the rebels and as to the future plans of Gen. Orozco and the various columns which make up the rebel forces.

Caraveo arrived with a few members of his staff in Juarez on the Mexican Central road, traveling in the private car of Gen. Orozco, the "Veta Rica."

Juarez residents believe that the evacuation of Juarez will take place tomorrow, although rebels say it will not be until the Federals arrive in the vicinity of the town, and they do not believe this will be for at least six weeks or two months. They do not wish to leave Juarez now, as they are able to get supplies through the port to the forces below the city.

Mrs. George E. Vincent, wife of the president of the University of Minnesota, whose daughter, Miss Isabel Vincent, is also a member of this year's Bryn Mawr class, will chaperone the party. John Vincent and Lyndon King of Minneapolis, who were classmates in Yale of Robert Taft, will act as escorts.

The details of the trip are now being discussed. The party will assemble in Minneapolis and much of the trip, especially in the park, will be on horseback. I. W. W. ADVANCE GUARD AT GATES OF OAKLAND.

Mayor Mott Says It Is Up to the People of that City to Decide at the Recall Election Whether They Are Loyal to the Stars and Stripes or Want the Red Flag of Anarchy in Its Stead.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

OAKLAND, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] One of the biggest rallies of the anti-recall campaign was held tonight in Woodward's Hall, No. 1025 Boulevard, annexed district.

Mayor Mott, who attended the meeting, said in part:

"The city of Oakland in considering the recall is practically considering whether or not its territory shall be laid waste by an army of invasion, or whether it shall, without loss of life or going through the perils of war, repel the invading horde. It is not a question of politics or of decision between political factions.

ADVANCE SCOUTS.

"Oakland already has met with the advance scouts of the invading army and these scouts attempted to spread the teaching of anarchy and treason that form the tenets of the Industrial Workers of the World. Frustrated by the decent element of the city in the attempt to obtain license for such preachments, the recall provision in the new city charter was invoked, by means of which it was hoped to effect a breach for the main horde of the I.W.W. army.

"We are not asking the people of this city to go into political battle. We are asking them to repel an invasion that means the downfall of the city. We are asking them to enlist under the American flag rather than the red banner of anarchy. Some may say that they cannot afford to 'do politics because it will injure their business.' I heard such remarks as this during the present campaign.

BUSINESS AT STAKE.

"When the business of the entire community is at stake, when our homes and our institutions are on the brink of destruction, it is time for every citizen who is a true citizen to come to the support of the city. If there was an invading army marching down upon us, would there be many that would refuse to shoulder a gun and fight for their homes and their families? Should there be any more hesitancy in fighting with the ballot at the polls or warning your neighbors of the danger threatening their city?

"It is for the electorate of Oakland to decide at the recall election on August 5 whether they stand for or against the American flag, whether or not they are citizens of the United States or are residents of this coun-

Lissner-Johnson Machine Is Intent Upon Shutting Out Taft Electors.

Contemplates Forcing President's Friends to Keep Out of Primaries.

Regular Republican Nominee Denied Place on the California Ballot.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is slim chance that any citizen of California will be permitted to freely cast his vote for President Taft this fall. If the opportunity is given at all, it will be to vote for an independent ticket of electors, and not one that appears on the ballot marked as "Republican." The Lissner-Johnson machine, by amendments to the election and primary laws at the last regular session of the Legislature, effectually hog-tied the Republican party so that it is almost helpless.

THE JOHNSON MACHINE HAS SO FRAMED THE PROGRAMME THAT LAWYERS NOW SAY THAT TAFT REPUBLICANS WHO WISH TO SIGN PETITIONS FOR AND WORK AND VOTE FOR THE TICKET HEADED BY TAFT, IN NOVEMBER, MUST STAY AWAY FROM THE PRIMARIES IN SEPTEMBER—THAT IF THEY VOTE AS "REPUBLICANS" IN SEPTEMBER FOR LEGISLATIVE NOMINEES THEY CANNOT SIGN PETITIONS NECESSARY TO GET TAFT ELECTORS (LABELED "INDEPENDENT") ON THE STATE BALLOT IN NOVEMBER. IT IS A MOST EXTRAORDINARY AND KNAVISH COMPLICATION.

After the September primary election, the Republican candidates for the Legislature, the Republican candidates for Congress and the holdover Republican Senators will meet in convention and nominate a ticket of thirteen Presidential electors. The names of these thirteen candidates for Presidential electors, every one of whom will have been pledged to Roosevelt and the Bull Moose party in advance, will be printed in a group on the November ballot, under the heading: "Republican Presidential" electors.

The voter may place a cross after the line "Republican electors" or he may place a cross opposite "Democratic," "Socialist," or "Prohibition."

THE NATIONAL TICKETS.

Now, "Republican electors," so designated, would in any fair election MEAN Republican electors—mean electors pledged to vote for the National Republican ticket headed by William Howard Taft, the nominee for President of the Republican National Convention.

But, as a result of the State steal, "Republican electors" will not mean electors pledged to vote for the Republican ticket headed by William Howard Taft, but electors who have sold out the party and bartered their own honor and are under bonds to vote for the Bull Moose ticket with "Theodore Roosevelt" at the top thereof.

ONLY ALTERNATIVE.

Other groups of candidates may be nominated by petition and appear on the ballot either as "Independent" or under such other title as 11,500 voters so petitioning and representing themselves to be members of a party not the Republican, Democratic, Socialist or Prohibition party may designate. But such title must not resemble the title of any of the regular parties. It must not include, for instance, the name "Republican" in any combination. It cannot be headed "Taft Republican" or even "Independent Republican."

However, in order to be eligible to sign the petition nominating this independent (Taft) list of electors, the 11,500 registered voters whose signatures are required, must abstain from voting at the September primary. For the law holds that the party electoral ticket is to be nominated in convention, and that any voter who has participated in "any manner" in this election of the members of such a convention shall be ineligible to sign the nomination petition of an independent list of electoral candidates.

Therefore, if the Taft committee starts out after the September primary to get the required 11,500 signatures to a petition nominating Taft electors, they must find 11,500 registered voters who are for Taft, but who have refrained from attending and participating in the primary to nominate members of the Legislature and of Congress.

UNDERSTANDING OF STATUTES.

This particular point is not elaborated in the opinion recently given by the Attorney-General, but it is the law, and it is the understanding of the Secretary of State and his employees, who have conferred with the Attorney-General, other State officials, and the author of the new laws, Assemblyman Young of Berkeley. The Secretary of State, who orders the printing of the ballots, must be guided by the Attorney-General, and the Attorney-General has been in close harmony with the State administration in his understanding of this and other administration measures. He had a conference with the Governor just prior to the issuing of the recent opinion on the subject.

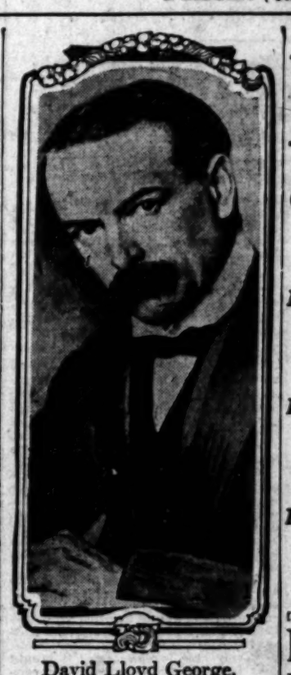
The Attorney-General, in his opinion, echoes the declaration of the Governor, that the way for the Taft people to get Taft electors on the ticket is to win a majority of the candidates for the Legislature at the September primary. Overlooking the elemental fact that the national Republican party has a right to a place on the ballot even if there were ten Roosevelt voters to every Taft voter in the State, the ultimatum is given that the regular Republicans must wrest a majority of the nominations at the September primary from the Johnson machine, or the Republican name and the place on the ballot will be stolen for the candidate of a new party, to be nominated at Chicago next month.

USING LOADED DICE.

Johnson knew he was asking the Taft Republicans to play with his loaded dice when he issued that challenge. There are twenty hold-over Senators, hence there will be twenty Senators and eighty Assemblymen to be nominated, a total of 100 legislative candidates eligible for seats in this electorial convention. It may be assumed for argument that the thirteen candidates for Congress will be about evenly divided between the two factions. But in addition to these 100 legislative candidates who will sit in the convention, there are fifteen Republican hold-over Senators who have seats and votes already elected. Now fourteen of the fifteen have affiliated with the Johnson State machine. Fourteen of the fifteen probably will vote according to orders. Thus, instead of needing fifty-one, or half of the 100 Republican legislative candidates nominated in September, to give him a majority of the legislative members of the convention, Johnson needs to win only forty-four. The fourteen holdovers added to the forty-four will give him fifty-eight, a majority of the candidates and holdovers. On the other hand, the Taft regulars must capture fifty-seven of the districts at the primary to give them a majority of the legislative members of the convention. In other words, Johnson's challenge means that he makes the other side shoulder a handicap of thirteen, and then says "Let us race." That is his idea of a square deal.

But it is not even as fair as that. The Johnson machine is in control in most of the districts. It has the advantage of organization against no organization. It has the advantage, in many cases, of backing for the re-election of the present members. It has issued an ultimatum that in every district in the State a candidate must be brought out pledged to its proposed steal, and the entire weight of the administration's influence, with its control of the State institutions, and of local machines in harmony with it, will be thrown in the scales to nominate candidates. There has been no such organized effort on the part of Mr. Taft's adherents. The necessity for it has not been clear until the last few days, and the time is up tonight. Even if the need had been plain long ago there is no organized State machine to fight the Johnson machine. Having the power all in their own hands, the thieves have gone blithely ahead with their plans to loot the Republican party of its very name.

There will be no designations on the ballot at the September primary which would enable the voter to determine whether he consents to this crime or not. He must inform himself. What he can learn, if he does inquire, is that every candidate for the Legislature who has the backing of the Johnson-Lissner machine has given his pledge to keep the nominee of the Republican party for President off the California ballot this year, and to seize the name and the place of the Republican party for the so-called "National Progressive" party which is to be organized in Chicago next month. But the information will do him little good, for the cards are marked, the dice are loaded, the race is fixed. It is "tails I win, heads you lose." Either let the Johnson machine get away with its plunder without opposition at the primary, or forfeit even the right to nominate Taft electors by petition under some misleading heading on the ballot.



David Lloyd George,

Chancellor of the Exchequer in England, whom the Germans blame for their naval expansion. A Berlin dispatch quotes a diplomat to have said that Lloyd George's Mansion House speech is the thing that fired the Germans with the ambition to have one of the biggest and best navies in the world.

"Weltpolitik."

German Reply to the Alarmists.

Berlin Smiles at the New-Fangled Worries of London.

Kaiser's Third Squadron to Be Commissioned Ahead of Time.

France Fears Italy and Austria Will Disturb the Equilibrium.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, July 24.—Such progress has been made with the strengthening of the German navy, voted almost unanimously during this year's session of the Reichstag, that it now is announced officially that the new third squadron of eight battleships will be commissioned by the autumn of 1914, far earlier than had been thought possible.

This will bring the active battle fleet up to twenty-five battleships in full commission.

CREWS IN READINESS.

Crews for the four battleships of the reserve squadron, which, according to the same law, are to be kept in full readiness for sea at all times, will not be available probably for two or three years after the ships are commissioned, and so it is pointed out here that the alarmists in the British press and Parliament are premature in assuming the presence at sea of twenty-nine fully maintained German battleships in the autumn of 1912.

BLAME LLOYD GEORGE.

This increase, according to a statement of a responsible German diplomat, solely is due to the provocative Mansion House speech of the British Chancellor, David Lloyd George, delivered at the height of the Morocco crisis in 1911, which has not been counteracted by the more conciliatory utterances of Mr. Lloyd George this year, or by Sir Edward Grey's reference to the improvement in Anglo-German relations.

The extra expenditures entailed by the army and navy boards are contemplated cheerfully by the Germans, who find much more to worry them in the increased cost of living.

DRAIN ON THE PURSE.

While the total charges of the German army and navy, including this year's increase, is less than $5 per head per year, a German economist, Dr. George Goldstein, has computed that each Berliner will pay approximately $5 more for meat this year than he would have paid ten years ago. For the normal family of five or six, this represents an extra drain on the family exchequer of $25 or $30.

Dr. Goldstein arrives at his figures by taking the total dressed weight of cattle, sheep, swine, etc., slaughtered for Berlin consumption annually, and multiplying this by the increase in the retail price per pound, as shown by the official statistics over the average price ten years ago. For greater Berlin, the total cost is about $18,000,000 annually.

PUBLIC OPINION.

German public opinion is neither disturbed nor irritated over the naval debate in the British House of Commons. The press generally seems satisfied with Germany's comparative position under the new order of things and praises the speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, as frank without the usual provocativeness. It criticises, however, the attempt to throw the responsibility for increased armament on Germany.

The Vossische Zeitung points out that the increase in the German fleet was due to the tone of British statesmen during the Morocco crisis which compelled every German to regard an increase in the German fleet as a commandment of self-preservation. The Vossiche Zeitung takes up Arthur J. Balfour's phrase in which he referred to senseless competition in shipbuilding and asks:

"Who is responsible? It was not Germany that invented Dreadnaughts, super-Dreadnaughts and submarines."

A responsible official said today that the speech delivered by David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, at the Mansion House, London, in 1911, was the direct and sole cause of the new German naval bill.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE AS NAVAL POWER.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, July 24.—That the world is not yet on the eve of the cessation of the struggle between Great Britain and Germany for naval supremacy is the prevalent opinion in France after careful study of the recent speech by Winston Spencer Churchill in the House of Commons.

The continuation of rivalry between those two countries cause a note of regret here, but there is an inclination to believe that it must go on and that France should learn a lesson from England's procedure and herself increase her navy.

SAYS LABOR MUST PURGE ITSELF OF SOCIALISM.

Avarice Is the Ruling Spirit of Union Leaders, Declares Speaker.

Pitfalls of Disloyalty and Dissension Confront Ranks of Workingmen Who Give Ear to Preachings of Agitators, Is Assertion of Illinois Central Official—Yoke of Autocratic Authority Must Be Thrown Off.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Effects of socialism on the working forces of railroads, the so-called avarice and dishonesty of labor leaders with socialistic tendencies, were attacked by William Park, vice-president and general manager of the Illinois Central Railroad, today.

In an address before the International Railway Foremen's Association, Mr. Park outlined what he termed the evils of socialism and the effect on shop employees. The arraignment had a marked effect on the men present. Almost every member of the association is in active charge of a shop and comes in daily contact with the situation Mr. Park outlined.

This statement, coming from a man of the high standing of Vice-President Park, created much favorable comment. It voices the sentiment of every large employer of labor, but Mr. Park is the first railroad manager who has had the nerve to stand up and tell the miserable truth about the unbearable situation.

SUBSERVIENT TO AVARICE.

"The greatest difficulty," said Mr. Park, "in operating a railroad shop is the present attitude of the labor element. Organized ostensibly to benefit their members, they have recently become subservient to the avarice of certain individuals of strong socialistic tendencies, who, not only to increase their salaries, but to gain certain perquisites and emoluments, constantly instill insubordination, dissension and dissatisfaction into the rank and file, which in turn breeds indifference, bickering and strife.

"The paramount problem confronting the mechanical foreman of our American railroads today is the effect of socialism on the working forces. In recent years we have lost much of the esprit de corps, which formerly characterized our shop labor. There is not to be found anywhere, as obtained a few years back, that firm control of the shop employees so essential to the proper conduct of large industrial undertakings.

"While there has been, perhaps, improvement in contract shops of general efficiency, it can be attributed more to new machinery and methods than to increased efficiency of labor

TEMPORIZED TOO LONG.

"Our railroads, because of their magnitude, are particularly vulnerable. There has been too much managerial caution in this country for the good of the railroads. We have temporized too long with socialism, syndicalism, and other pernicious 'isms.'

"When organized labor attempts to dictate who shall be employed, regardless of capability, and who shall be foreman, regardless of all qualifications other than seniority or unionism, it is digging a pitfall into which it or its employees must eventually disappear.

"No business can prosper saturated with disloyalty and steeped in incompetency bred by labor restricting fanatics and socialistic agitators.

COMES A BREAKING POINT.

"The railroads can, perhaps, stand more of this than an ordinary business, but there comes a breaking point, and it is with a sigh of relief that many a foreman has stretched forth his arms and said, 'Thank God, I am boss again,' as the strike line filed out of the gate.

"He has seen on every hand waste of time and material, an unnecessary waste, an ungodly and an unjustifiable waste of his employer's property, powerless through the tyranny of the organization to prevent it, and when the thing broke he felt the shackles fall from his arms.

"Loyalty, industry and studiousness are seemingly treated with contempt by the modern shop organization. The young apprentice is instilled with disloyalty and insubordination, constantly told to do as little as possible, to deceive his foreman, and is taught that his employers are grasping capitalists, seeking his undoing.

CRIME OF INDUSTRIAL LIFE.

"It is the crime of our industrial life that such conditions obtain and they do obtain to a greater or lesser extent in every railroad shop in this country. And they are not getting better—on the contrary, they are getting worse.

"Labor must be taught how to throw off the yoke of autocratic and arbitrary leadership. Those who misrepresent facts, deceive their membership and practice dishonorable methods should be gotten rid of absolutely. The general foremen have a greater power to bring about right conditions than any other influence. They are generally from the ranks. They are in constant touch with the managers and close to the rank and file.

"The time is opportune to commence this work. The men are sick of the mistakes of their leaders; they are tired of unsuccessful strife and ready to do business on business principles. Labor will find no great difficulty in reaching common ground and harmonious relations everywhere, if it is disposed to apply the golden rule everywhere to its efforts."

W. G. Reyer of Nashville, Tenn., and W. W. Scott of Saginaw, Mich., also addressed the gathering. Special attention was paid to the labor problem in their addresses.

STIFLING HEAT DESCENDS AGAIN.

Three Men and Ten Horses Drowned in Pennsylvania as the Result of the Bursting of a Reservoir—Child Killed in Indiana. Sultry Weather in Minneapolis.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Smothering heat, accompanied by stifling humidity settled upon Chicago and vicinity today and caused general suffering. The temperature did not rise as high as the season's record, but the humidity made the heat all the more unbearable.

Heavy and general rains this evening throughout Wisconsin, portions of Michigan and Minnesota served to relieve the situation considerably. But the baking heat here is expected to continue unless the wind shifts.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

At Smock, Pa., an immense reservoir burst, and three men and ten horses were drowned in Lynn from the overflow.

At South Bend, Ind., a child was drowned in a deserted cellar filled with water by heavy rains.

Minneapolis and vicinity, supposed to be immune from heat and humidity, reported a mark of 100 degs., with four prostrations. C. W. Post, the Texas rain-maker, set off 4500 pounds of dynamite at Battle Creek, Mich., and produced .65 of an inch of rainfall. Weather officials say rain would have fallen there anyway today, and cite the precipitation of 2.65 inches at Flint, 100 miles distant, to show that the dynamite had little to do with it.

FOUR INCHES OF RAIN.

Four inches of rain fell at Green Bay, Wis., and all the country thereabouts was inundated by what amounted to a cloudburst. At Lacrosse, Wis., the rainfall was 2.65 inches and at Lansing, Mich., it was 1.57 inches. Cleveland, O., reported 1.93 inches.

In Chicago the humidity exceeded 74 degs., which means the atmosphere can carry twenty degrees more moisture without rain, unless the clouds are met by a cool breeze or some other disturbing influence.

Dispatches from Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois and Indiana points tonight tell of much suffering from the heat.

YOUNG WOMAN ACQUITTED.

KANSAS CITY, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Miss Ethel Gamble, who shot and killed her father, Charles Gamble, at her home yesterday, was freed today when, at a preliminary hearing, evidence was offered to prove that the parent had brutally treated the daughter. Mrs. Gamble, the girl's mother, supported the testimony of her daughter that the father had brutally treated Ethel for fifteen years.

Italy is to construct six of these vessels, each of 20,000 tons displacement, and capable of steaming at a speed of twenty-five knots, while Austria is to build three, each of them displacing 26,000 tons. The newspaper continues:

BRITAIN TO COPY THE GERMAN LAW.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 24.—The speech of Winston Churchill, first Lord of the admiralty, on the supplementary naval appropriation has provoked widespread discussion at home and abroad.

It is held in some quarters to presage the institution of a naval law similar to the German measure to provide a systematic growth of the navy over a series of years.

In a debate in the House of Lords, Viscount Haldane, Lord High Chancellor, who recently visited Berlin for the purpose of discussing Anglo-German relations, said that Germany had been told in the friendliest manner that whatever naval efforts she might make, Great Britain would make still greater.

Progressive Party of Iowa Adopts Plank Providing New Way of Choosing Dispensers of Mail.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DES MOINES (Iowa) July 24.—The State convention of the progressive party, with three affirmative cheers, adopted a platform containing a plank declaring for the direct election of postmasters by their constituencies.

The convention chose a full set of delegates to the national convention at Chicago, headed by Judge John L. Stevens of Boone, organized a Working State Committee and provided for Congressional, district and county organizations.

The platform is mainly devoted to national issues.

It condemns the Republican National Convention and Republican National Committee at Chicago; severely criticises President Taft and denounces what is alleged to be his subserviency to special interests; eulogizes Col. Roosevelt as "the foremost man of the world," and declares for his nomination and election; urges Presidential primaries, direct election of United States Senators, indorses the initiative and referendum, and asks for physical valuation of railroads and a protective tariff "suited to the fostering of labor in domestic manufactures, agriculture and other industries."

A. D. Pugh, a Des Moines Socialist, created considerable excitement by appearing on a proxy and demanding that the platform declare for the recall. The matter was referred to a committee.

in the mine tomorrow, and everything possible will be done to get the bodies. The water rose so quickly following the cloudburst that it practically destroyed all railroads and street railways in Fayette county.

DAM WASHED AWAY.

Nothing could be done to avert the catastrophe. A dam that had been built around the manway a day or two ago, when the water was high, was washed away and the waters rushed into the mine so rapidly that the pit was filled in less than thirty minutes.

It was reported tonight that three men had lost their lives in Le Mont No. 2 mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, about a half-mile from Superba mines. About one hundred men were caught in the flood there, but all except three, escaped.

DRAWN TO SAFETY.

One of the survivors, Andy Machak, when he realized that water was rushing in with such rapidity as to flood the entire mine, cut a wagon that was attached to the cars of coal and while hanging on the chains was drawn to safety by two mules.

Another man, John Rapko, who was given a lamp by William Smith, one of the drivers, in order that both could have their way lighted, immediately disappeared with the lamp, forcing Smith to fight his way out in darkness.

It is reported several other men have perished in the mine, but officials declare that the complete list is only thirteen. Thirteen checks were left on the checkboards and the officials estimate the loss in this manner, although there are persistent rumors that the death list may reach sixteen.

OLD WOUNDS LAID BARE.

Bitterness Develops in House When Wyoming Representative Submits Prepared Analysis.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Republican political wounds were laid bare and much bitterness displayed in the House today when Representative Mondell of Wyoming, a member of the Credentials Committee of the recent Chicago convention which seated Taft contesting delegates, and Representative Norris of Nebraska, an ardent Roosevelt Republican, clashed in two set speeches. Mondell defended the action of the convention, while Norris denounced it with bitter emphasis.

Once during Mondell's speech order was restored only when the chair was on the point of ordering the mace down to compel Warburton of Washington, Republican, to take his seat. Again that emblem of authority was near being used to quell turbulence when Representative Humphrey of Washington, Rpublican, declined to cease his interruption of Norris' speech.

Norris followed Mondell with the statement that "a man, whose name was known throughout the country," had acknowledged that the Taft managers had stolen the delegates from the State of Washington. This man, he said, was engaged in supporting the President, because, Norris added, he entertained "political aspirations."

DEMANDS AUTHORITY.

"When the gentleman makes such a statement," interjected Representative Humphrey, "he certainly should give his authority."

Norris declined to divulge the identity of his informant. He plunged at once into his reply to Mondell and criticised the latter's denunciation of "soap-box primaries." He referred to the primaries in Indiana, which went for Taft, and which Mondell indorsed as regular

BOGUS CONTESTS ARE ANALYZED.

President's Nomination Defended on House Floor.

Wyoming Congressman Stirs Wrath of Roosevelters.

Uses Their Own Admissions in Confounding Them.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Ridiculing the Roosevelt contest cases at the Chicago convention and denouncing the present third-term party movement as "a sham proposal of pure piracy," Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, a member of the Credentials Committee at Chicago, today defended the nomination of President Taft in a speech in the House. He spoke for two hours and was given close attention on both sides of the chamber. His speech was a resume of the fake Roosevelt contests, which he analyzed one by one.

NORRIS BEGINS REPLY.

Representative George W. Norris, the Nebraska insurgent, began a reply to Mondell just prior to the adjournment of the House today. He will resume tomorrow. Mr. Norris's speech, in which he defended the Roosevelt contests in Washington State, was marked by sharp interchanges between the Nebraskan and Representative Humphrey, and both members lost their tempers.

Representative Mondell declared the plan of "Boss" Flinn to place Roosevelt and Taft electors on the same ticket contemplated the "stealing of the livery and securing the benefits of Republican State organizations, while at the same time repudiating the party and its candidates."

QUOTES ROOSEVELT PAPERS.

Using the admission of Roosevelt supporters to demonstrate the flimsy nature of the Roosevelt contests, Mr. Mondell quoted an article from a newspaper supporting Roosevelt. As a champion of Roosevelt before the convention, the paper admitted that many of the Roosevelt contests in the southern States had been brought for "psychological effect," and for the influence they might have on the other sections.

"What a galling admission, to say the contests were gotten up to fool the people, to bring the wavering brethren in," commented Mr. Mondell, while the House laughed. "I do not recall a more humiliating confirmation of an attempt to fool the people."

ENTERS SPECIFIC DENIALS.

Specific denials of the claims of the Roosevelt managers that their candidate had been improperly deprived of delegates in the Chicago convention were made by Representative Mondell. He characterized the contests as "mere bluffs" without shadow of substantiation.

Mr. Mondell presented a categorical review of the various contests, using data which it was understood later would be given out from the White House to correct what is held to be a wrongful conception by the public of events at Chicago.

The speaker declared that Col. Roosevelt and some of his supporters in voicing charges of fraud had, by their vehemence and persistency in a period of unrest and suspicion "profoundly influenced many good people."

AN EXCUSE FOR LARCENY.

"The claim that Col. Roosevelt was denied the nomination at Chicago through the larceny of delegates," Mr. Mondell said, "was not only expected to contribute directly to the third party movement, but was expected to contribute even more potently by furnishing indirectly the excuse for the most impudent and revolutionary plan of political larceny ever conceived.

"It is proposed to steal the livery and secure the benefits of Republican State organizations while at the same time repudiating the party and candidates. It is difficult to conceive a more shameless proposal of pure piracy, than this.

CONTESTS MERE FICTION.

"As admitted by the Roosevelt managers, they started out deliberately at the beginning of the pre-convention campaign to create contests," said Mr. Mondell. "A large number of these contests were pure fiction, the contesting delegations claiming to be elected at conventions which if held at all were held a month or two after the regular conventions. Many of the contests at the time conventions were held were the result of pre-arranged bolts based on the flimsiest pretexts.

"The proposition that electors on the Republican ticket shall cast their vote for the candidate of a third party has its alleged excuse in downright and persistent prevarication on which rotten foundation it lays its proposal of treasonable larceny."

OPPOSITION TO LAFFERTY.

Multnomah Candidate Gets in Bad by Declaring for T. R.—Stirs Up a Real Republican to Beat Him.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.), July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Representative A. W. Lafferty, elected to Congress as a Republican and renominated at the recent primary as Republican candidate from Multnomah county district, will have to contend against a strong and hitherto unlooked-for competitor as a result of having declared he will support Roosevelt and thus read himself out of the Republican party.

Thomas McCusker, who managed LA Follette's campaign in Oregon and carried Multnomah county for his candidate, will oppose Lafferty.

McCusker will have to go on the ballot as an independent, but he proposes to make his campaign as a Republican, and to protest against the use of the name of the party name by Lafferty, who is supporting Roosevelt.

"The situation will be understood by the voters," said Mr. McCusker today. "Lafferty cannot be considered a representative of the Republicans if he is fighting for Roosevelt, for Roosevelt is no longer a Republican and Roosevelt does not tolerate any half-way measures.

"I have been asked to run by men who in the campaign were for La Follette, for Taft and for Roosevelt."

POLITICAL CAMPS LAYING OUT THEIR PROGRAMMES

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] These are days of preparation in the various political camps. Chairman Hilles is spending all of his time just at present in getting his force organized. There is much yet to be done before the work of the campaign can be started. The selection of a treasurer for the committee had narrowed down to three men, it was said tonight, but it might be two or three days yet before the man would be picked, as the treasurer is a mighty important man in campaigns these days and times.

Chairman McCombs can and doubtless does sympathize with Hilles. He has his headquarters to select, his Advisory Committee to organize and set to work, and the general lines of the campaign to lay down. Even the Bull Moose party has taken time off from claiming the earth for the colonel, and is doing necessary, if not spectacular, work in the way of planmaking.

MAINE IS RALLYING.

At Republican headquarters encouraging reports are being received constantly. It was learned today that the party is getting together in Maine, and that there is every reason to believe the usual Republican majority will be rolled up in the Pine Tree State.

Throughout New England the reports indicate that the defections from Taft to Roosevelt will be offset by Democratic votes going to the Bull Moose. In fact, it is said, this will be found to be true throughout the country.

The Republican leaders [illegible] the disposition on the part of the Democrats to make the tariff the paramount issue in the campaign. They express confidence in their ability to win on this issue.

Gov. Wilson's speech of acceptance is awaited anxiously. It will definitely fix the line on which the Democrats propose to make their bid for the Presidency.

COMMITTEE MEETS TODAY.

The Democratic State Committee will meet here tomorrow. The only business for the committee to transact is the fixing of a time and date for the State convention to name a State ticket and the issuance of the formal call for be convention.

The Bull Moose leaders on hand by a problem which is giving them no little trouble and concern. Roosevelt is trying to build up a party in the South. In practically all of the Southern States which go for [illegible] acted the color question has made its appearance and the convention at Chicago will be compelled to face it. If the negroes in the South are recognized, the Bull Moose party will have no standing there at all. If they are not, the big negro vote in the Southern States will go glimmering. It is a hard question to put up to the ambitious Bull Moose.

'A Doctor's Wife So Descri Her in Her Testimony.

San Francisco Judge Gra Mrs. Stone a Divorce.

A Case that Recalls J Ride of Abe Ruef.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Edna Loftus Rheinstrom, former English actress and pet of stage-door chappies, whose elopement and marriage to Harry Rheinstrom across the Kentucky line from Cincinnati home in 1910 was successful in spite of the wild auto ride his millionaire mother to prevent ceremony, today added another chapter to her sensational American tour.

DECREE OF DIVORCE.

Before Judge Van Nostrand in Superior Court, Mrs. Rheinstrom described in testimony as the "[illegible] mate" of Dr. Wald J. Stone, former resident physician of the San Quentin penitentiary and later minister to the sick in the wealthy neighborhoods near San Rafael. The witness was Mrs. Pauline Placida Rodrigues Stone, the medical man's wife, and upon this and other testimony Mrs. Stone was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce.

The financial affairs of the Steins were arranged out of court. Not even alimony is mentioned in the decree, but the wife is permitted to resume her maiden name of Pauline Placida Rodrigues.

Dr. Stone did not appear in court.

A NIGHT JOY RIDE.

During the direct examination the witness several newspaper accounts of a night automobile ride taken on March 9 by Dr. Stone and the former stage beauty, which resulted in much notoriety because both occupants of the machine were pitched into a muddy creek near Ross Valley Station, in Marin county, and had to be fished out, were introduced.

Following their reading, Mrs. Stone told of her humiliation because of the affair.

Although Dr. Stone and his companion on that trip have expired, that Mrs. Rheinstrom was then a patient of the physician and happened to be in his San Rafael home to receive medical aid, and that he asked her to take a ride for the benefit of her health, when the doctor was called to Ross Valley, Mrs. Stone did not appear to believe.

Meanwhile Harry Rheinstrom regains a patient in a Stockton sanitarium, by order of his mother, in his long battle to separate him from the [illegible] stage favorite.

Prior to the now famous joy ride Mrs. Rheinstrom declared her intention to sue for divorce.

"ATTEMPTED SUICIDE."

One morning early she was found in Sprecker's Lake in Golden Gate Park. "Attempted suicide," her acquaintances said, but Edna said no. It was an accident to a joy ride party that left her partly submerged in the chill waters.

Last March when Abe Ruef was being returned to San Quentin, following his presence here as a subpoenaed witness in the Schmitz trial, it was told that, en route to the penitentiary, the party stopped at the Fairfax roadhouse. There, it was related, a banquet with Dr. Stone and several women about the table had been in progress, with wine, occupied the time until the wee hours.

"TREASURE ISLAND" SOLD.

Reputed Original of Stevenson's Famous Tale of Adventure in Sou[illegible] Sea Has New Owner.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Advices from Honolulu report the sale of Christmas Island, reputed original of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," and center of a web of hundreds of less pleasing tales current in the South Seas of piracy, blackbirding, treasure seeking and wrecking. The island is valuable as a copra producer.

Father Reygier, whose shingle reads "Real Estate, Islands Bought and Sold," negotiated the transfer from the ownership of the Grieg family to an unnamed buyer.

Reygier, with William Grieg and a party, returned to Honolulu July 15 after a trip occupying sixty days in a power schooner which lost half its top-hamper and its wireless aerial in a heavy blow the first night out from Honolulu. The rest of the trip was without incident.

Christmas Island is just north of the equator, three degrees west and eight[illegible] degrees south of Honolulu.

During the direct examination of the witness several newspaper accounts of a night automobile ride taken on March 5 by Dr. Stone and the former stage beauty, which resulted in much notoriety because both occupants of the machine were pitched into a muddy creek near Ross Valley Station, in Marin county, and had to be fished out, were introduced.

Following their reading, Mrs. Stone told of her humiliation because of the affair.

Although Dr. Stone and his companion on that trip have explained that Mrs. Rheinstrom was then a patient of the physician and happened to be in his San Rafael home to seek medical aid, and that he asked her as a favor to ride for the benefit of her health when the doctor was called to Ross Valley, Mrs. Stone did not appear to believe.

Meanwhile Harry Rheinstrom regards a patient in a Stockton sanatorium, by order of his mother, in her long battle to separate him from the vaudeville stage favorite.

Since by the now famous joy ride, Mrs. Rheinstrom declared her intention to sue for divorce.

"ATTEMPTED SUICIDE."

One morning early she was found in Ayerchi's Lake in Golden Gate Park. "attempted suicide," her acquaintance said, but Edna said no. It was an accident to a joy ride party that left her partly submerged in the cold waters.

Last March when Abe Ruef was being returned to San Quentin, following his presence here as a subpoenaed witness in the Schmitz trial, it was said that, en route to the penitentiary, the party stopped at the Palmer roadhouse. There, it was related, a banquet with Dr. Stone and several women about the table laden with wine, occupied the time until the wee hours.

"TREASURE ISLAND" SOLD.

Reputed Original of Stevenson's Famous Tale of Adventure in South Seas Has New Owner.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Advice from Honolulu report the sale of Christmas Island, reputed original of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," and center of a web of hundreds of less pleasing tales current in the South Seas of piracy blackbirding, treasure seeking and wrecking. The island is valuable as a copra producer.

Father Bougier, whose shingle reads "Real Estate, Islands Bought and Sold," negotiated the transfer from the ownership of the Grieg family to an unnamed buyer.

Bougier, with William Grieg and party, returned to Honolulu July 1 after a trip occupying sixty days in a power schooner which lost half its top-hamper and its wireless aerials in a heavy blow the first night out from Honolulu. The rest of the trip was without incident.

Christmas Island is just north of the equator, three degrees west and eighty degrees south of Honolulu.

HAND WON'T INTERFERE.

State Railroad Commission Refuses to Take Action in San Diego Special Election Case.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—The State Railroad Commission rendered a decision today in which it declined to interfere in the matter of the special election which is to be held next month in San Diego to determine the question of the purchase of the Southern California Mountain Water Company by the city. The commission holds that the sale of the company to the city cannot be consummated until official sanction of the State board has been obtained.

The decision was reached after consideration of the petition of Tyndale Palmer and the Otay Water Company that the city of San Diego be prevented from holding the election. It was the petitioners' wish that the railroad commission take steps to secure an injunction in the case.

OVERCOME BY GASES.

Officers and Crew of a Lime Ship on Fire Have Narrow Escape in San Francisco Harbor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two members of the crew of the brig W. G. Irwin, a lime ship, which arrived here from Roache Harbor on June 28 with a fire in her hold, were overcome by gases when the hatches were raised this afternoon, and were taken off on the fire tug Dennis Sullivan. The lives of officers and other members of the crew were endangered when the hatches, which were battened down two weeks ago, were raised and fumes and poisonous gases burst from the hold.

The brig is at anchor in China Basin.

The red stack tug Sea Prince, with the fire tug Dennis Sullivan, pumped great volumes of steam into the hold, but it was several hours before the crew and firemen could get near the hatches.

As there is ten feet of lime in the hold of the vessel, there is now little hope that the cargo or ship will be saved.

Shortly after the arrival of the brig here on June 28 it was discovered that the lime was afire in the hold, and in hope of smothering it the hatches were battened down.

Convinced that the smouldering fire had been smothered, the captain of the brig ordered the hatches raised at 1 o'clock this afternoon, but before doing so, as a precautionary measure, he requested that the fire boat and the tug Sea Prince be on hand.

Several sailors, thinking there would be an explosion, jumped overboard, but they were picked up by members of the crew of the tugs standing by.

The W. G. Irwin is owned by the Tacoma-Roache Harbor Lime Company.

FIRST WIFE RELENTS.

Redding Matron Declines to Prosecute Minister's Daughter Who Is Her Husband's Second Spouse.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Harold Fields of Redding, Cal., caused the arrest late last night of her husband, an actor, and a young woman whom he married at Gold Hill a few days ago, on the charge of bigamy, but relented today after the three had held a long conference, to the extent of withdrawing her charge against Mrs. Fields No. 2, who was thereupon released.

Fields has been traveling with a medicine company, which gave shows in Southern Oregon towns, and while at Gold Hill he met the girl who is now Mrs. Fields No. 2. She was a minister's daughter and her father wedded the pair, after a brief, but torrid courtship. Then the couple came here, according to the girl's story.

The first Mrs. Fields, meanwhile, had left Redding to join her husband, and after learning upon her arrival that he had married again, caused the couple's arrest.

Mrs. Fields No. 1 says she will not prosecute her successor, whom she believes to have been duped by her husband.

She liked her work, enjoying the portrayal of the tragedies and comedies in which she was leading lady. About a month ago she was compelled to give up. Her recovery is considered doubtful.

They had traversed twenty-seven miles of the original pioneer trial as part of the pioneer day exercises. Dr. John Z. Brown, was with them. One hundred were in line. Suddenly the physician noticed that Melvin Vincent and Raymond Squires, each 12 years old, were ill. He withdrew them from the camp at Mountain Dell and hurried them home to Salt Lake City, where they were quarantined. The rest scrambled to the nearest railroad station, boarded a train and rode into the city.

Aphonia.

SPEECHLESS, MAN IS SANE.

Findings of the Court in the Case of Condemned Man.

Ether Test Fails to Draw a Single Sound from Him.

Survivor of Charleston Tidal Wave a Human Enigma.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) July 24.—Charles Carson, the Folsom convict who has been under the shadow of the gallows since 1906, when he was sentenced to death for participating in the famous Finley-Carson-Quijada prison outbreak of 1904, during the administration of Warden Yell was declared sane by a jury in the Superior Court of Judge Hughes this morning and unless he is reprieved again by the Governor, will pay the death penalty on August 2.

SPEECHLESS THREE YEARS.

For nearly three years the condemned man is said to have not uttered a word and all attempts to make him speak have been unsuccessful.

Physicians testified today that the only indications of insanity were his silence and staring.

Dr. A. E. Ingersoll, appointed physician at Folsom in 1907, stated he was never satisfied that Carson was insane. He made an investigation of a charge by Carson four years ago that George Lamphrey, then turnkey, was attempting to put poison in his tobacco. This was found to be untrue, but ever since Carson, an inveterate smoker, refused to use tobacco.

DOCTOR'S EXAMINATION.

Dr. Fred H. Clark(superintendent of the Stockton Hospital, testified with Dr. F. W. Hatch, Superintendent of State Hospitals, he made an examination of Carson. Carson's pulse at the time of his examination at Folsom was 128. Today the convict's pulse registered 145. This was attributed to the fact that he was excited.

That Carson was normal, physically and mentally, was declared by Dr. C. F. Gladding. He stated that Carson had responded by signs to questions, refusing to speak.

Dr. Hatch stated it was his opinion that Carson's silence was feigned in order to appear insane.

THE ETHER TEST.

Even the ether test, applied yesterday to Carson left alienists absolutely undetermined whether Carson had really lost the power of speech. By an unprecedented exhibition of will power, he withstood the subtle ether. The common effect of ether is to make the subject talk freely while passing under or coming from out its influence.

It was expected that when Carson succumbed he would lose voluntary control of his vocal organs and reply to questions put to him by the physicians, but no sound escaped his lips.

His body remained rigid instead of relaxing easily as is normal.

When fully conscious, Carson conversed with his examiners in his usual manner, by shrugs and signs, and by pointing to letters in printed matter. Carson refused by a shake of his head to write, although it is known he can write.

"What do you think will be done to you if you are kept here?" he was asked.

GRIPS HIS NECK.

Carson gripped his neck with both hands, to indicate the noose, and raised his rightarm to indicate the gallows.

Carson was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1904 for assault and robbery. Two years later he was sentenced to death for having participated in a jail break. He is a South Carolinan and the only member of his family to escape drowning at the time of the submergeance of Charleston by a tidal wave in the early '80s. Repeated reprieves have thus far saved him from hanging, and prison officials, believing that his muteness was assumed, brought about the present investigation.

The physicians say that while the test would have proved that Carson is not insane if he had talked, the negative result does not prove the converse.

Carson, when overtaken by, or having assumed, the phase of insanity known as aphonia, or inability to use the laryngeal and pharyngeal organs nearly three years ago, also refused to eat. Food was forced upon him, however, and he remained quiet.

From that time on he gave no sign to anyone that he was able to utter a sound. He made his wants known, and answered questions by signs and shrugs. Physicians have found no evidence of physical disability which would cause muteness, and have refused to try to test by electricity, which they say would be torture.

LUMBER MEN ORGANIZING.

Washington and Oregon Interests Catering to Foreign Trade Would Sell Their Product Off-Shore.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Saw mill owners in Oregon and Washington catering to the foreign trade are at work on the organization of a great central selling agency through which it is planned to handle all the lumber shipping off-shore. Business is now done individually and through brokers.

O. M. Clark of the Clark & Wilson Lumber Company, is chairman of the organization, effected a few days ago at a meeting in Tacoma, and another meeting will be held there tomorrow to further discuss the plans, and if possible perfect the organization.

Practically every big lumber firm in Oregon and Washington is included.

As the plans are yet tentative, the question of headquarters has not been decided, but one of the principal lumber shipping ports in one of the two seas will be selected and it is understood that local branches probably will also be maintained.

The agency will have representatives in all the principal lumber markets of the world where Pacific Northwest lumber finds a sale, and it is hoped also that new markets may be developed by co-operation.

COL. REEVES "STEAM ROLLED" BY NEVADA "PROGRESSIVES."

All the Vituperation that Roosevelt Hurled at the Chicago Convention He Is Now Gleaning from the Newspaper Files to Sling at the Men Who Froze Him Out.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Col. Charles R. E. Reeves, personal campaign manager for Col. Roosevelt and bearer of official documents from Senator Dixon as the leading "progressive" of Nevada, has been deposed in the Bull Moose party in Nevada, headed by Sardis Summerfield and George Springmyer.

SHORN OF POWER.

Co. Reeves, shorn of his power, to-Col. Reeves, shorn of his power, to-convention held in Reno yesterday was packed by the Summerfield-Springmyer combination, that its business was fraudulently enacted and that the people of Nevada and himself in particular had been "steam rolled by a bunch of political hasbeens."

For many months Col. Reeves has been active in the interests of Roosevelt. He got the leadership of the new party through authority from Senator Dixon and joined forces with Lester Haworth of Austin, Nev., and former Republican National Committeeman Patrick L. Flanigan.

Yesterday Haworth and Flanigan joined the opposition progressives represented by Summerfield and Springmyer and through the liberal use of the steam roller flattened out Col. Reeves so thoroughly that he had difficulty in recognizing himself in the looking-glass.

Judge Moore, who attempted to espouse Reeves's cause was also flattened out and Moore withdrew from his seat with the Lion county delegation.

The split in the new party is serious. Dr. Hascall of Fallon stated on the floor of the convention that the people of the State would not stand for a packed convention. However, the Credentials Committee seated all the Summerfield-Springmyer delegates and from out Col. Roosevelt's representative completely.

Further efforts to circulate recall petitions about the first of this year were stopped by virtue of the occurrences in San Diego. There the city was thrown into a tumult by the advent of the I.W.W. agitators and the efforts of the police to curb the language used by them resulted in its being used as a pretext to bring about a recall election.

AMADOR AND CALAVERAS WANT ON STATE HIGHWAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 24.—Amador and Calaveras counties were represented before the State Highway Commission today by two of the biggest and most enthusiastic delegations that have yet appeared before that body to ask for the construction of roadway under the $18,000,000 highway bond issue. There were over 100 men in the Amador delegation and fifteen in the Calaveras delegation. The commission also heard representatives of Yuba, Tehama, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties.

State Senator A. Caminetti of Jackson, was the chief speaker for the Amador delegation, which was led by Lawrence Burke of Plymouth, chairman of the Amador County Board of Supervisors.

DEFER TO COMMISSION.

"We are not going to insist upon your adoption of any particular route through Amador county," said Senator Caminetti. "We will leave that to your judgment, and, I can assure you, every one in our county will stand back of you, no matter what you choose. What we want is a good State highway leading out of Sacramento to Stockton and the south. And after you have built us that road, we will bond our county to reconstruct all the other roads in the county so that they will reach the standard you set in the road built under the State bond issue."

No suggestions of routes were made by any others of the delegation.

CONNECTION IS DESIRED.

The Calaveras county delegation, headed by J. B. Luddy of San Andreas, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, asked for the construction of a State highway from San Andreas to the San Joaquin county line near Wallace, a distance of seventeen miles, there to connect with the road being constructed in San Joaquin county to Clements.

One of the chief efforts of the Highway Commission will be to have the roads from San Francisco to San Diego and from San Francisco north to the Oregon line, completed before the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915, according to an announcement today by Commissioner N. D. Darlington.

CANNOT CHANGE ROUTE.

Yuba county's delegation—F. Roberts, P. Divver and D. Morrison—appeared before the Commission today on the matter of rights-of-way desired by the delegation as opposed to the right-of-way selected by the Commission. The outcome of the hearing was the announcement by the Commission that it cannot change the route because of the contract having been already awarded for the work from Morrison's Crossing to Marysville. Morrison declared that he would not promise the rights-of-way called for on the survey and contract. San Luis Obispo county, represented by T. A. Uorton, P. A. H. Arata and A. Luchessa, asked for a route from San Luis Obispo to Oilport.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

Gumbel, a capitalist, in a hotel here last September, was paroled by Criminal Judge Latshaw today after Curtis had served three months of a six months' jail sentence. At his trial Curtis testified that he killed Gumbel because of the latter's attentions to Mrs. Curtis. He testified that he had shot another man in Texas several years ago for his attentions to Mrs. Curtis. The illness of Curtis's mother, who is without support, caused Judge Latshaw to grant the parole. Judge Latshaw told Curtis that the unwritten law is a "menace to this country."

ROCK ISLAND (Ill.) July 24.—Counsel has been retained by Mayor H. M. Scriver and Commissioner Archie M. Hart to fight in the courts the legality of the recall petitions just filed against them. The attempt to recall Scriver and Hart is an echo of last spring's riot in which two were killed. Mayor Scriver says that keepers of dives and disreputable saloons put out of business by him and Commissioner Hart are behind the recall petitions.

GERMAN COUNT ACCUSED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 24.—Charged with having operated a confidence game, Count Kurt von Knobelsdorff was held to the grand jury today. The defendant presented a birth certificate and his father's death certificate to prove he was a member of the German nobility. The complaining witnesses were Julius Conrath and Henry Jung, who testified they held promissory notes amounting to $1000 signed by the Count. The witnesses said they had advanced the Count the money on his representation that he soon was to get his share of the inheritance from his father's estate. They said that investigation by a detective agency showed that the Count was disinherited when he married an actress several years ago.

"We recommend the employ of men only as tower operators.

MIND NOT MADE UP.

"I do not know what action be taken by the road on the rec mendation of the jury," said H Byram, vice-president of the Buri ton road, in charge of operation "We have several women, ma fifty or more, who have given efficient, faithful service for m years in places of responsibility, we want to take due considera before deciding on a course that vitally affect them.

Vice-President of Pennsylvani Railroad Tells What Increase in Engineers' Pay Would Mean.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 24.—W. W. Atterbury, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was the principal witness today before the Arbitration Commission sitting at Manhattan Beach to pass upon the demands of the locomotive engineers of all eastern railways for increased pay.

To grant the demands now made by the engineers, Atterbury said, would add to the operating expenses of the railroad, $911,580 a year, and if proportionate increases are made in the pay of all other employees, the cost would be $11,578,648, which would wipe out the Pennsylvania Railroad surplus in one year.

Regarding the request of steam engineers that they be given the right to operate all electric trains, Atterbury said:

"There is a serious side to that proposal. The Pennsylvania Railroad's practice has been, whenever we have electrified, to assign to that electric service, at a reasonable and fair rate, our steam engineers. The question of obligating ourselves to continue that is a more serious matter. We have not thought of making any change, but a decision by this commission that such shall be the case in future would so tie up railroads as to prohibit the lease or sale of the prop-

Women were said to be just as dependable as men in places requiring faithfulness to duty, quick thinking and hasty action in times of emergency and close attention to the details that are necessary to the safe running of heavy trains at a mile-a-minute speed.

WOMEN IN TOWERS.

Fifty or more women in charge of towers and stations on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road were wondering today what action officials of the road would take on the recommendation of the jury.

The six men empaneled by the Coroner to investigate the wreck criticised Mrs. F. A. Wilcox, the signal-tower operator at Western Springs, and included in its verdict this sentence:

"We recommend the employment of men only as tower operators."

MIND NOT MADE UP.

"I do not know what action will be taken by the road on the recommendation of the jury," said H. E. Byram, vice-president of the Burlington road, in charge of operation.

"We have several women, maybe fifty or more, who have given efficient, faithful service for many years in places of responsibility, and we want to take due consideration before deciding on a course that will vitally affect them.

"We don't care to discuss the verdict at this time, and it may be taken for granted that such radical change as that proposed by the jury will be taken only after a complete investigation on the part of the road."

AS STATION AGENTS.

"We have no women who have anything to do with our block signals, but that is due as much to the fact that we never have been put up against the opportunity of considering the questions as much as anything else," said D. L. Buah, general manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. "On our road we have perhaps three or four women station agents, doing telegraphing, handing train orders and performing the other duties of an agent. And they are good agents, too, just as good as the men, and perhaps better."

"We have automatic block signals and have no women in towers," said A. C. Riddway, vice-president of the Rock Island.

Bulletins of the Emperor's Health Posted in Tokio More Assuring Than Those of the Day Before.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

TOKIO, July 25.—The official bulletin issued at 6 a.m. today on the condition of the Emperor of Japan was more reassuring than that posted Wednesday night. This morning's bulletin gave the patient's temperature as 98.7; pulse 104; respiration 32. Last night's bulletin read "Temperature, 100.4; pulse, over 100, irregular; patient increasingly fatigued."

Physicians remained at the bedside all night as conditions seemed unfavorable. A minister of the household said this morning the Emperor had slept fairly well. The acceleration of the pulse is regarded as serious, but not critical.

The bulletin of last night created alarm and the princes were summoned at 1 o'clock this morning.

The newspapers delayed issue until after 6 o'clock, when assurances were given of a pronounced improvement. Attending physicians do not explain the cause of the accelerated pulse, but are hopeful because the temperature remains close to normal.

The crown prince's visit to the Emperor yesterday is described as affecting. His Majesty, however, was sinking. He was very weak, but his mind was clear.

Great crowds gathered outside the palace. For the first time in history the general public has been admitted, subject to approval, to the palace grounds in order to express condolence.

WOULD WIPE OUT SURPLUS.

Vice-President of Pennsylvania Railroad Tells What Increase in Engineers' Pay Would Mean.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 24.—W. W. Atterbury, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was the principal witness today before the Arbitration Commission sitting at Manhattan hotel to pass upon the demands of the locomotive engineers of all eastern railways for increased pay.

To grant the demands now made by the engineers, Atterbury said, would add to the operating expenses of the railroad, $911,580 a year, and if proportionate increases are made in the pay of all other employees, the total would be $11,878,688, which would wipe out the Pennsylvania Railroad surplus in one year.

Regarding the request of steam engineers that they be given the right to operate all electric trains, Atterbury said:

"There is a serious side to that proposal. The Pennsylvania Railroad's practice has been, whenever we have electrified, to assign to that electric service, at a reasonable and fair rate, steam engineers. The question of changing ourselves to continue that is a most serious matter. We have not thought of making any change, but I believe by this commission that will be the case in future unless we give up railroads as to provide the lease or sale of the prop-

King of Finance Arrives in New York, and Fellow-Passengers Tell How He Behaved on Voyage.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] J. Pierpont Morgan, the multimillionaire, confidante of kings and owner of the greatest private collection of art treasures on earth (which he devotes to public enjoyment and education,) returned on the Olympic from Europe, and all the passengers on the big ship were talking about his cheery, democratic ways and how thoroughly he entered into the fun of the Saturday night ball on the briny, sipping lemonade like a youngster and saying how sorry he was that he could not join in the "turkey trot" and the "bunny hug." Both the "trot" and the "hug" were done within reasonable limits and Charpentier, the French art critic, approved the dances as "glides of gladdening grace." Blanche Ring and several other actresses footed it on the deck ballroom.

Mr. Morgan was asked what he thought of Churchill's naval statement as to the chances of war between England and Germany.

"Nothing to say," was the magnate's reply.

"But you had a long talk with the Kaiser and ought to be on the 'inside.'"

"The Kaiser did not give me an exclusive story for you," retorted the genial king of finance.

"How about the Bull Moose, Mr. Morgan? Are you going to help him up?"

This question interested the banker exceedingly.

"Bull moose? What bull moose?" he asked.

He was told how the Bull Moose stands for the new third party and asked a lot of questions about it. "It's all new to me," he explained.

But when asked his opinion of the new movemnt, all he would say was "What do I know about Roosevelt?"

PRAY FOR DEATH OF DEVONPORT.

ENGLISH STRIKERS INDULGE IN FANATIC FERVOR.

Twenty Thousand Hoarse Throats Appeal to Deity to "Strike Lord Devonport Down" — Wild Outbursts in Connection With Trouble Among London Dock Workers.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Wireless from Chicago to The Times.]

LONDON, July 24.—On Tower Hill, holy ground among those of the English working class who recall the great Charlist movement, a scene of fanatic fervor was witnessed today, more thrilling than any which marked the great agitation which moved Charles Kingsley to leave the pulpit to get closer to the people in "Alton Locke" and his pamphlets against the sweatshop and the "city slave drivers." Ben Tillet, one of the pioneers of the labor movement in England, whom many of the poor people venerate as an inspired prophet, led thousands of massed strikers in a prayer asking God to strike Lord Devonport dead.

BLAMED FOR STRIKE.

Devonport is blamed for the continuance of the dock strike, which has reduced thousands of homes to starvation akin to famine time.

"Oh, dear God, strike Lord Devonport dead," prayed Tillet in a voice which penetrated to the edge of the huge crowd.

"God, strike down Lord Devonport," answered 20,000 hoarse throats.

The prayer and meeting followed a pitched battle by the strikers, police and non-strikers.

The belief is growing that Lloyd George will shortly resign from the ministry to lead an advanced movement which will merge the labor radical wing into one solid party, opposed to both the Liberals and the Unionist alliance. It is feared that if the Chancellor does take this step he will sweep the country and precipitate the most momentous struggle between the classes and masses that England has passed through. The situation grows more acute daily.

APPEAL TO TRANSPORT MEN.

John Havelock Wilson, president of the International Seamen's Union, who arrived in this country last Monday from Australia by way of San Francisco, already is organizing with a view of making another attempt to call a national strike of transport workers in support of the dockmen, who had been out on strike ten weeks.

In an appeal issued today for immediate funds to aid the starving families in "dockland," Mr. Wilson announces that he intends to visit all ports in the United Kingdom and urge that the menbe ready for action in the event of the London dispute not being settled favorably to the men.

Murder is Charge Against President of Brotherhood of Timber Workers Connected With Riots.

LAKE CHARLES, (La.), July 24. A. L. Emerson, president of the Brotherhood of Timber Workers, was indicted for murder here yesterday.

The grand jury finds that the brotherhood was entirely at fault in the riot at Grabow on July 7, in which three men were killed and more than thirty wounded, and that operators and employes of the Galloway Lumber Company acted in lawful defense of the company's rights.

A number of other indictments for murder were returned against lesser union members.

Railroad Conductor Deckles That Appendicitis Shall not Cause Fifth Postponement of Marriage.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

FREEPORT (Ill.) July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] After his marriage to Miss Ethel Fogel has been postponed four times, William F Birkmeier, a railroad conductor, decided today that even appendicitis should not cause a fifth postponement.

Propped up in pillows as the doctors sharpened their lances, Birkmeier was married to Miss Fogel, who stood at his bedside.

Immediately after the ceremony he fainted and was taken to the operating-room, where the operation was performed.

His condition is serious, but the surgeons believe he will recover. The bride has been permitted to remain with him as a nurse.

AFRAID TO TESTIFY IN THE POLICE SCANDAL.

Witness in the Coroner's Inquest Into the Murder of the Gambler, Rosenthal, Tells New York District Attorney He Is Afraid of Being Killed if He Tells What He Knows of the Case.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] The brains of Burns and the regular police leagued in the "system" are pitted in a deadly duel. Burns started today a world-wide hunt for the real perpetrators of the Rosenthal murder. Coincidentally it was learned that the men wanted by Dist.-Atty. Whitman are known to the police. Their present whereabouts is probably within the knowledge of the police allies but have not so far been named publicly in the course of the inquiry.

WHITMAN ACCUSES POLICE.

Whitman accused the police of having tried to stall justice by twisting one trail so as to seem to implicate men who would ultimately be able to clear themselves of the capital charge and escape the chair. One of the men wanted, according to information in the hands of the Burns men, was at large in New York as late as Sunday last. He is said to have been seen in conversation with a uniformed member of the police force and showed no disposition to abandon his old haunts until word got out that Burns was on the job. Then, this man and the others vanished. One of the gunmen purchased a ticket for Salt Lake City and is said to have been traced to Denver. Neither Whitman nor Burns care to depend upon the regular police organization in locating and arresting the men whom they are both determined to put on trial for the crime of Longacre Square.

BROADWAY MELODRAMA.

Apart from the charges of crookedness and criminal partnership levelled against the police until they have become wearisome in repetition, the part played by headquarters in this Broadway melodrama is that of the low commedian. Waldo's 10,400 well-fed bluecoats and highly-paid plainclothesmen have sat twiddling their thumbs, looking wise and getting nothing except, say the onlookers, but arresting anybody and everybody who may walk upon the broad steps of the central criminal building and just faintly breathe the word "Auto," or say he has come in a taxi.

"Tarry" was a dangerous name to carry until Vallon asked to see the "Chief" and got accommodated with a cell. A curly head, considerable nose and the name "Jack" were calculated to land a man into lots of trouble if he stepped into headquarters. For all the prisoners now in the Tombs, with the solitary exception of Libby and Shapiro, conveniently called and gave themselves up while the 10,400 police of New York sought high and low in vain.

PROSECUTOR'S THEORY.

The District Attorney's theory is that Weber was the "scout" at the murder and Rose the "paymaster," while police officials and politicians exacting toll from the gamblers, the council decreeing Rosenthal's death and Harry Vallon and his companions in the car, were only a blind to throw justice off the track. The men who did the killing, according to the man probing the police, stood coolly around, emptied their revolvers into Rosenthal's body with callous nonchalance, put the guns in their pockets and made jokes of the gaping crowd while the police stood by and winked. They remained in New York, immune, and confident of ultimate immunity, until the thunderbolt descended.

POWER OF THE GANG.

That the power of the gang is still greater than the power of the law was proved this afternoon in the heart of the criminal courts building at the commencement of the inquest. Dist.-Atty. Whitman intended to prove that Weber was seen running away from the Metropole Hotel just after the shooting. In the presence of several witnesses whose testimony is beyond question, John Reissler, otherwise "John the Barber," a Longacre Square character, made this statement to Whitman. When he was told that he would be asked to repeat it on the witness stand, he quailed and cried "I dare not. They would kill me certain."

He was assured he would be properly protected.

After Coroner Feinburg was ready to proceed this afternoon and some formal testimony had been taken Whitman put "Jack the Barber" on the stand. An effort was supposed to have been made to exclude the thug and the tough (except those under arrest), but in several parts of the courtroom were groups of "hard cases," one of these coughed and "Jack the Barber" looked in his direction. He turned livid as he saw the evil leers. And he was dumb to Whitman's persuasions. He had got to the critical point when the cough and the stares sent the blood from his face and courage from his eye.

IN A PERSPIRATION.

Asked if he had seen Weber in the interval right after the killing, Riessler said, hesitatingly, that he had. Pressed further, he said it was outside the Cadillac hotel, which adjoins the Metropole, and it was right after the murder. Riessler's gaze had been wandering around the courtroom and his voice was growing weaker. Perspiration beaded his forehead. His face was pale and worried.

"Was Weber running?"

"I don't know."

"Were you sure it was Weber?"

"I don't know."

"Didn't you say you were afraid you would be killed if you testified?"

"No; I don't remember," hesitated Riessler.

In anger Whitman ordered him from the stand and later told Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty to arrest him on the charge of perjury. Riessler was taken into custody as he stood surrounded by a number of rough-looking men and was taken to the District Attorney's office for arraignment.

BRIBERY BILL DISMISSED.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] An indictment charging bribery against Supervisor Daniel E. Blackburn, Supervisor of San Mateo county, was dismissed today by Superior Judge Sargeant, sitting for Judge Cabaniss. Blackburn was tried twice on the charge, the jury disagreeing in each case. Insufficient evidence was given as the ground for the dismissal.

28 CENTS A WEEK

Our purpose in these advertisements is not to preach a lesson on how to save money.

We have only one object in view—to make you one of us.

That four cents a day, twenty-eight cents a week, or a dollar and twenty-five cents monthly, buys 100 shares, means little.

The twenty-eight cents a week is only to show you how easy you can start with us and find out for yourself.

It is worth more than that to you just to have the connection—just to belong to this company.

You will know this the minute you want to buy a lot, build a house, or get a ranch.

You will know this, too, as an investor, when you learn beforehand of the next step forward our Directors are preparing to make.

It is only by knowing things yourself that you can act intelligently.

Being in position to take advantage of what you know makes individual success. Being one of us, you will know.

There is a real reason for suggesting that you do it now.

$1.25 monthly is all that is required. It buys 100 shares (see table).

100 shares ($25) is the least, 10,000 shares ($2500) is the most we will accept. Monthly payments, or cash, if more convenient.

STAR WITNESS CHANGES MIND.

Declines to Testify for the Police in Poison Case.

Club Ladies Reported to Be Helping Mrs. Lindloff.

Accused Says She Will Tell Things to Startle All.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Miss Sadie Ray, a witness on whom the State has depended for the conviction of Mrs. Louise Lindloff, "seeress" and "spiritualist," for the alleged murder of her 15-year-old son, has had a change of heart and tonight announces she will not take the stand for the State.

Miss Ray called on Mrs. Lindloff in the County Jail and assured the "seeress" of her loyalty.

Meantime, Capt. Baer, of the local police force, who was in charge of the Lindloff case, has taken twenty-one witnesses to Milwaukee to attend the inquest in that city.

TO HEAD OFF A MAN.

Telegrams were sent to a western city to head off a man whom the police say was an accomplice of Mrs. Lindloff and aided her in obtaining money on the life of her first husband, Julius Grauzke, by representing himself as that person when he applied for insurance.

TALKS THROUGH THE BARS.

"The police will get surprises," said Mrs. Lindloff as she talked through the bars of her cell. "They will all come without any particular effort on my part.

"For instance, there is a prominent club woman who will start a slander suit just as soon as my trial is over. I will be one of her witnesses and I will have an opportunity to tell some things that will surprise Chicago.

"Sadie Ray, who was to be one of the State's star witnesses, came to me in my cell here and told me she could not go back on me and that she was loyal despite Capt. Baer.

"Sadie Ray told me she was offered a position and that she refused because she said she did not have education enough.

"She said the same offer was made to Mrs. Mary Dwyer, who was another State witness. Mrs. Dwyer hasn't called on me yet. When the trial comes I will show that she sold me medicine to give to my daughter Alma.

BACKED BY CLUB LADIES.

"I am telling nothing but the truth and I have no doubt I will be free before long. I have two sets of lawyers, one of them furnished by club women friends of mine, who will not give out their names.

"They must free me. Do you think I would kill my only son, and be in such poor condition?"

Both the Chicago and Milwaukee police searched for a woman who "chummed" with Mrs. Lindloff for three years and during the time that Charles Lipschow, who died and left insurance money to the "seeress," is said to have spent a $15,000 inheritance entertaining her and other women.

Chief of Police Jannsen of Milwaukee prepared to have the woman extradited from Illinois in the event she gains her freedom of the charge on which she is held in Chicago and the charge in the Wisconsin city holds that she caused the death of persons there.

"The Milwaukee authorities are working hard on the poison mystery," said Capt. Baer before departing for Milwaukee.

"A special detective has been detailed on the case. At the inquest I will gather much evidence that may help in prosecuting our case in Chicago. The Milwaukee police feel they have uncovered enough evidence there to sustain charges against the woman."

CLEMENCEAU IN THE RING.

Fires Opening Shot as a "Reform" Bill Which He Says Would Destroy Rule of Majority in France.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, July 24.—Senator Georges Clemenceau, formerly Premier, today opened the Senatorial opposition to the electoral reform bill adopted by the Chamber of Deputies on July 10. M. Clemenceau's first move against the government takes the form of an open letter addressed to Premier Poincaire attacking his attitude in carrying the bill through the lower House of Parliament.

The bill would abolish the system of small constituencies under which each elector votes for one Deputy only, and substitute for it the system under which each elector votes for as many Deputies as the entire department has to elect. It also introduces a system to provide for the representation of minorities by which the seats would divide proportionately among the candidates of the different parties.

M. Clemenceau argues that Premier Poincare carried the bill with the help of the votes of the reactionaries and revolutionists who will desert him at the first opportunity. He contends that the majority rule is the foundation of the French republic and any abandonment of it will be a "disastrous mistake."

TECHNICAL "SLAUGHTER."

Two Hundred Soldiers "Killed" and Many Men "Wounded" in the Wisconsin War Maneuvers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CAMP DOUGLAS (Wis.) July 24.—About 200 soldiers technically were killed, many wounded, scores of spies and prisoners were captured and bridges and railroads blown up as the result of the War Department's maneuvers here today.

Between here and Camp McCoy, fifty-four miles west, the government has arranged a battlefield upon which in the next ten days, 16,000 troops with blank cartridges, cannon and other accoutrements, will undertake an extensive campaign.

The casualties were the result of the advance today of the regulars, known as the "red army," from Camp McCoy to a point almost half-way here.

The theory is that the "reds" have invaded a hostile country by crossing the Mississippi River at La Crosse and that, without the knowledge of the "blues" here, they are advancing to take possession.

PRESIDENT AT A WEDDING.

Chief Magistrate Witnesses Marriage of Army Officer and Daughter of Army Officer.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Not only did the President attend the wedding at St. Johns' Church this afternoon of Miss Sally Garlington and Lieut. Harry Dwight Chamberlain, U. S. A., but the bridesmaids carried the big new yellow roses called, after the President, Taft roses. Maj. Rhodes, the President's aide, and Gen. Clarence R. Edwards escorted the President. Several hundred other guests also witnessed the ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Edward S. Dunlap, assistant rector.

Brig.-Gen. Ernest A. Garlington gave his daughter's hand in marriage and he, as well as the bridegroom and other men attendants, wore full dress uniforms. In compliment to the bridegroom's branch of the service, the church was decorated in yellow and white and the bridesmaids' costumes further carried out the suggestion. Miss Harriet Nauman of Lancaster, Pa., Miss Eleanor Ridgley and Miss Marie Chamberlain, were the bride's attendants, while Lieut. Dwight K. Shurtleff, as best man, and Lieut. Croswell Garlington, Lieut. Daniel D. Pullen, Lieut. Beverly C. Dunn and Lieut. Donald H. Connolly were bridegroom's attendants.

A reception at the home of Gen. and Mrs. Garlington followed the church service. After a short bridal trip in this country, Lieut. Chamberlain will take his bride to the Philippines. Maj.-Gen. Franklin Bell and Mrs. Bell, uncle and aunt of the bride, will receive them at the end of their journey and will entertain them in Manila.

DIVORCES "BORAX KING."

For the Second Time Mrs. Jennie M. Suddath Is Legally Separated From Her Husband.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Jennie M. Suddath, heiress to a substantial fortune, yesterday obtained her second divorce from Charles M. Suddath, the borax king, upon grounds of non-support.

Mrs. Suddath's first divorce, granted here three years ago and followed by a reconciliation three months later, was allowed upon like grounds.

Suddath, shortly after the trial of the first suit, declared in court that his wife's persistent "hounding" him had practically ruined his business and he protested the payment of court costs on the ground that it was Mrs. Suddath who wanted the divorce.

The couple settled their differences three months after Mrs. Suddath received her decree, removed to California and remained together until about fifteen months ago, when the wife returned to Denver.

WICKERSHAM IS STIRRED.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Atty.-Gen. Wickersham is going to Milwaukee on August 22 to urge retention in the American Bar Association of Asst.-Atty.-Gen. William H. Lewis of Boston, colored, and if it refuses to keep Lewis in membership, will tender his resignation.

Reports that southern members of the association, who are opposed to the colored attorney for racial reasons, will go to the convention in large numbers to outvote the northern and eastern members who will line up for Lewis, having stirred Wickersham, and he is using his best efforts to secure a large attendance from these sections.

Prominent lawyers of New York City have promised their support to him in his fight for Lewis.

GIVES LABOR PORTFOLIO.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] The bill creating a department of labor, thus adding a tenth memeber to the President's official family, was created by the Senate Committee on education and labor and a favorable report ordered. The measure has already passed the House. There is a possibility it may receive a majority in the Senate, thus making it a law, either at this session or that of next winter. The purpose of the new department as declared by the bill is "to foster, promote and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment." All existing bureaus dealing chiefly with labor interests are transferred from various departments to the proposed new one.

Musselman Leaves No Doubt as to Where He Stands.

Announces His Candidacy for Governor of Michigan.

Quondam Third-Termer Is Done With Past Nonsense.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GRAND RAPIDS (Mich.) July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Amos S. Musselman, the wealthy wholesale grocer, who, two years ago was Gov. Osborne's chief opponent for renomination for Governor and who shortly before the Bull Moose convention announced himself a strong "progressive," today issued a statement declaring that he is not a third-party man, and that he would prefer defeat with the Republican party rather than cast his lot with the new organization. In part, the statement, which announces he is a candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, says:

"I want it distinctly understood by every voter in the State of Michigan that I am no third-party man; I am a Republican, will continue to be a Republican as long as the party stands for the principles on which it will be organized. I am no straddle candidate for Governor.

"I want it said as emphatically as the English language can make it that I am not on the fence. I am not in favor of a third party. There will be no party to it and if I cannot be Governor on the Republican ticket I do not intend to fight at all."

THOMAS H. BARBER.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—[By A. Night Wire.] Thomas H. Barber, who was a government pilot in San Francisco for nearly fifty years, died today, aged 90. He was a boatman in San Francisco in the early '50's, when the water line ran through what is now the heart of the city's business district, and his service as guide to the incoming vessels has been unbroken through the half-century. Mr. Barber was known to San Franciscans as a picturesque survival of the days of the Argonauts. He always wore a tall "stove-pipe" hat, of exactly the shape seen in old daguerreotypes, and tightly-fitting jacket and trousers, and welcomed the incoming ships with the dignity of a special emissary appointed to offer hospitality to the strangers. For a number of years he held the position of port admiral.

Strange Motive Prompts Su for Large Fortune.

Dead Husband Besought He Help, Says Plaintiff.

Pathos and Mysticism Blend in Remarkable Case.

Looking like some sweet character from an old-fashioned novel, Mrs. Miranda C. Rogers sat all day yesterday in the witness chair in Judge Craig's court and told of giving away property now valued at $100,000. The plaintiff is 56 years old and implicitly believes in spirit voices. One, she says came to her from her deceased husband in July of last year, telling her to regain her property if possible and build a chapel in Pasadena devoted to worship of "non-sectarian Christians."

While Mrs. Rogers was telling her story, the defendant, Mrs. Linda Scott of No. 1910 Harvard boulevard, eagerly watched her "fairy godmother," who made over to her all her property on the sole proviso that she be supported generously during the rest of her life. Mrs. Scott has a benevolent face and no appearance of being a designing woman. Though her counsel, Attorney Britt, yesterday made no intimation of what the defense will be, it is probable an effort will be made to show that Mrs. Scott took care of the old lady's property to keep blackmailers and grafters from getting hold of it. It is said that Mrs. Rogers gets the full income of the estate, but has no way of reaching any of the principal.

SPIRIT BIDDING.

This is what aroused the gentle-looking old lady from her dreams and fancied communication with the other world, according to the testimony. She did not want the money herself, but believed that what she considered as a mysterious message from her departed husband should be faithfully followed.

Thus her lawyers first learned that she and Mrs. Scott went to the law office of Bradner W. Lee in 1908 and there drew up a contract whereby the title of all of Mrs. Rogers's property passed to her friend. Had not the desire on the part of the plaintiff to found a little chapel near her home in Pasadena become so insistent, the present suit would never have been brought.

Mrs. Rogers says herself that her mind has not been right at times, but yesterday she insisted with pathetic earnestness that she enjoys reading the best works of history, biograph and religion. She declared she has late years though freely admitting to belief in spirit messages and all the alleged phenomena that appertains to the cult.

The spirit message of July last may not be coherent to all, but Mrs. Rogers yesterday so treasured the slip of paper on which the words were written down that Attorney Britt, counsel for the defense, arranged to have a copy used in court so that one might get back what she fondly believes is a message from her dead husband.

THE MESSAGE.

It reads as follows:

"I started this movement with you all I wanted you to learn just how and where you stood concerning your property and assets. And if it went drifting on it would all be swallowed up in the fortune of a private family instead of being available for any philanthropic work. I also——" And here the message stopped, Mrs. Rogers said.

"I wanted to get back some of my property so that I could build a chapel where all could worship," said the aged witness in her low, but clear voice. "I wanted to furnish a place where all could come without money and without price. I thought Mrs. Scott would be delighted with the idea. Alas, she was not interested. I went to the bank to see how much money I had. I found I had given away all my property. I told Mrs. Scott that she must help me. She said I must be careful."

Carefully and skillfully examined by ex-Judge Gibbs and Attorney Morin, Mrs. Rogers showed few signs of dementia. Once in a while her mind would seem obscured and her thoughts would wander. She said that though some kind friends gathered about her husband's dying bed, at times she feared he was an infidel and did not believe in the life after death. Yet he had sent her messages.

As she told her belief in the communication with beings in another world, some of the women in the back of the courtroom swayed forward sympathetically and even Mrs. Scott, said to be a partial believer in spiritualistic manifestations, seemed unusually interested.

The witness said, after all her trouble in 1903 with "Dr." Dinsdale and "Detective" Harrison, that she felt she never wanted to look after her property again. So she told Mrs. Scott she wanted to make it all over to her, of course, having a proviso that she get a comfortable income for life.

"Mrs. Scott has it all," said the old lady with some asperity in her rarefied though trembling voice. "I have nothing. All this has come about through friendship, friendship, friendship," and the unfortunate woman faltered about her somewhat wildly. She said in a quieter mood that Mrs. Scott no longer comes to see her, though she admitted that the other woman "had given her a pressing invitation to attend a funeral."

The word "funeral" recalled to Mrs. Rogers the events in October, 1903, when she was indirectly accused of poisoning her husband. She said the recollection was very painful. She declared that Dinsdale came to the house as a professed optician and sold her husband a pair of glasses. She did not explain how she came to give the man $100 a few months later save to say that it was evident it was money he was after.

The case will be resumed today. There are about ten witnesses who will testify that the old lady is mentally incompetent. The plaintiff, through her guardian, is trying to regain possession of the property she gave away. The defendant will not give up her title to a $100,000 estate without a struggle.

DEATH'S HAND HEAVY.

By Decease of His Mother, Prominent Minister and Evangelist Is Bereaved Three Times in Two Years.

Dr. J. Q. A. Henry, who was bereft of his wife a few weeks ago, was yesterday called to Pacific Grove on account of the death of his mother, who had been sick for some time. She was 82 years of age and will be laid by the side of her husband, William Anson Henry, who died there two years ago, while Dr. Henry was in Australia.

When the latter came to this city, six or seven years ago, and agreed to accept the pastorate of the First Baptist Church, it was in order that he might be closer to his parents, who were living at Pacific Grove. After several years in the pastorate, he accepted an engagement and went for a year's evangelistic work in Australia, accompanied by his wife, daughter and son, and as stated his father died while he was gone. Mrs. Henry had returned meantime with her son and daughter, and was here at the time of his death.

Dr. Henry had but returned from Australia when he was called from his work in the northern part of this State to the bedside of his wife, who was announced to be fatally ill, and now but a brief time after his helpmeet was laid away, he is called to the bier of his mother. He will have the sympathy of a great host of friends in his triple bereavement in so short a period.

TO ELIMINATE WAGES.

Ambitious Co-operative Farming Plans of Local Attorney—Seeks Recruits Among the Unemployed.

The elimination of the wage system, higher pay for the laboring man and greater returns for capital, are ...as of the results which W. A. Wotherspoon, an attorney with offices in the Security building, and his associates, expect to bring about with a gigantic co-operative agricultural enterprise.

Wotherspoon yesterday applied to the City Council for permission to erect a big tent on Los Angeles street, between Sixth and Seventh, for the purpose of holding night meetings and addressing unemployed men. A further hearing on the request will be held Tuesday.

Wotherspoon has been here about eighteen months. Before that he was in San Francisco, Portland and Denver. He says that his company will soon be incorporated with a capitalization of $2,000,000 and that $600,000 of this is already subscribed and paid for. He names H. A. Hart as temporary treasurer.

Wotherspoon's plan is to secure a thousand acres of good land near this city and handle it according to scientific and intensive farming ideas, employing one or more men to the acre. The company is to furnish all the money required and the laborers are to work without wages. Shelter, food, clothing and all necessaries are to be furnished the men, he says, and at the end of every six months the net profits are to be divided equally, one-half going to the laborer and the other half to the stockholders.

WHITTIER BOYS IN JAIL.

Five Are Charged With Grand Larceny and One With Assault With Intent to Commit Murder.

Six inmates of the State School at Whittier, five charged with grand larceny and one with assault with intent to murder, were arraigned yesterday morning before Justice Forbes, who returned them to the County Jail in default of $2000 bond in each case.

The boys charged with having robbed Horace Mann, a guard, are William Broady, George Knudson, William Rice, Raymond Brennon and Canenk Kartengen. The leader in the insurrection, who is charged with having stunned Mann with a pick before the robbery, is Norman C. Hair.

The five will be examined today at 2 o'clock, and Hair's hearing will be held tomorrow. The boys were lodged in the County Jail Tuesday night on their surrender by the Whittier officials to Constable Haves.

Wife Disfigured for Life.

Joel Franklin was bound over to the Superior Court yesterday by Police Judge Fredericksen to answer to the charge of assault on his wife with a razor. Their domestic life was not happy, and the wife said yesterday she had decided to sue for a divorce. Franklin visited her at the home of a mutual friend, and on her refusal to change her mind about a separation, cut her across the forehead. The woman will be disfigured for life. Franklin was unable to give $1000 bail.

STATE REVELS IN BLESSINGS.

Summer Climate in Arizona Almost Made to Order.

Farmers' Institutes Being Organized With Vigor.

Question of Selling School Land Before the People.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) July 23.—The salubriousness of the summer climate in this section has been most amazing this year, and that statement is not intended for boost talk, either. The weather is warm, of course, as it is everywhere in the summer, but it has averaged cooler than for many years, if not cooler than all former records. Moreover, the few hot days have been widely separated by alternating cooler ones, making in all a season with which less fault can be found than the summer weather of some famous resorts. There will doubtless be hotter weather ahead, for surely Arizona will not go without some kind of summer demonstration, but the calendar is now so far advanced that at its worst the real hot weather, if there be any, cannot be long drawn out. In the matter of rain, too, Central Arizona has been more than usually fortunate. There have been no rains of a severity sufficient to do any great amount of damage to crops in harvest, and yet there have been frequent showers that have aided in keeping the temperature down and have helped the ranges materially.

ORGANIZING INSTITUTES.

The work of permanently organizing farmers' institutes in Arizona has been vigorously prosecuted this year, the project being largely under the direction of the agricultural department of the State University. Good, strong organizations have been formed in several counties and much practical work is being accomplished. It is planned to have each county institute hold a summer fair offering prizes for spring and summer crops and compete for prizes on later crops at the State fair in the fall.

The Maricopa county institute held its first fair last Saturday. A counter under canvas was erected by permission of the City Council, the full length of the city plaza on the Washington-street side, in the middle of the sidewalk, so the crowd could pass on either side. Notwithstanding it was the first effort and but little interest or advertising had been secured until recent weeks, the display was magnificent. Probably there never was on display before in Arizona, not excepting the state fairs, such a fine aggregation of pumpkins, melons, squashes, onions, potatoes and all manner of vegetables from string beans to the blossoming crown of a century plant.

HOLDING SCHOOL LANDS.

As an underlying principle there is a strong sentiment in Arizona that none of the State's school lands should be sold for any purpose, though there are many who are willing to make exceptions for the benefit of localities, or rather to meet special conditions in certain localities. The Legislature refused to provide any way for selling the school lands, the whole matter being left with the State's public lands commission, to devise such rules as it thinks best for handling the school lands and making recommendations to the next Legislature.

The exceptional lands sought to be placed in private ownership are those lying within reclamation projects where it is deemed to have all the irrigable land watered, co-operating in the expense. The question is one of considerable importance in the Salt River Valley, where many sections are naturally looking to the project for water, but those who live upon them do not care to undergo the heavy expense, indeed cannot do so under the law without mortgaging their lands to the project and that they cannot do until they secured title. The school land lessees of this valley are therefore forming a permanent organization which will endeavor to secure such relief as is possible, through the school land commission, and later through the Legislature.

IN THE INFERIOR COURTS.

Three-Legged Legless Beggar Says He Can't Work—Six Months' Suspended Sentence.

N. Van Sickle is one of the most ingenious and resourceful legless beggers with which the police have crossed palms in some time. He was arraigned before Police Judge Williams yesterday, Lieut. Spellman appearing against him.

"This man has three legs," declared Spellman.

"What's that?" cried the court. "Did I understand you to say he has three legs?"

"Yes, Your Honor," replied Spellman. "He has two artificial ones and a peg leg. He lost his own several years ago. Van gains much of his livelihood by begging. When business is poor he takes off one artificial leg, and appears on the street with a peg leg in its place. When he has collected enough small change to last him a while, he goes home, takes off his peg, puts on his other artificial leg, and proceeds to drink up his collections."

Van didn't have much to say except that he can't work because of his misfortune, and has to get money some way without stealing it.

He was given a suspended sentence of 180 days.

F. W. King has returned from the East and reports that the crops in the Middle West are very good, and general conditions satisfactory.

"He bit the hand that fed him" said Teddy of Big Bill,
And didn't tell us if the bite had made the biter ill,

Family Quarrel.

USES GUN TO STOP PURSUIT.

Father Seizes Son and Flees in Automobile.

Screaming Mother Is Helpless Before Weapon.

Culmination of a Series of Marital Troubles.

Holding his screaming wife and her parents at bay with an automatic pistol Arthur Chrisman seized his little son at No. 233 South Avenue 19 yesterday forenoon and ran at top speed to Avenue 20. A man in close pursuit was forced to desist at the point of the gun. At Avenue 20 Chrisman jumped into an automobile driven by an unidentified man and got away so rapidly that he left no clew which the police have been able to trace.

Chrisman and his wife have been separated since June 14 and she has been living with her children, Beatrice, aged 4, and Arthur, aged 2, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph San Marco at No. 233 South Avenue 19.

Mrs. Chrisman says that her husband had been in the habit of visiting the children and she had made no objection. When he came yesterday a little before noon she carried the little boy to him on the porch. He at once rushed down the steps, she says, and started for the street. She pursued him screaming and her father rushed out. He drove them back by exhibiting an automatic pistol and San Marco asserts that he threatened to shoot him if he followed.

STOPPED BY GUN.

A crowd of women and children from neighboring houses rushed into the street, but the sight of the gun kept them back. The only man, other than San Marco, in the vicinity, was James Kubin, a grocer whose store is nearly opposite the San Marco home. Kubin heard the screams and saw the man making off toward Avenue 20 and started in pursuit. He gained rapidly, with several women following far in the rear. Kubin says that he was about to overhaul the fleeing man and had gotten within twenty feet of him when he wheeled and pointed a gun. Kubin was unarmed and abandoned the pursuit immediately.

Witnesses on Avenue 20 told the police that the automobile, which was a small runabout, was running slowly southward; that the fleeing man shouted at its driver who at once stopped and took him in. The automobile then continued at a high rate of speed toward North Main street. The police were at once notified and the case is being investigated by the East Side department.

Mrs. Chrisman was nearly frantic with grief and anxiety last night. She says that she fears a similar attempt will be made to abduct her little daughter. Her attorney, whom she consulted yesterday afternoon, told her, she says, that Chrisman had as much right to the child, legally, as she has, inasmuch as no divorce has been granted nor applied for. San Marco, however, says that he intends to prosecute his son-in-law for threatening him with a gun.

According to Mrs. Chrisman's story the couple have had a stormy married life, in which jealousy, alleged abuse, suits and countersuits have played a tragic part. Both are about 26 years old and have been married a little more than five years. She says that they lived in the Pico Heights district before she left him and gave an address on Fedora street. At that time, she says, he was employed as a night watchman, but has since left his job.

DETERMINED EFFORTS VAIN.

Man Tries Twice to End Life, but Is Overpowered Each Time—Uses Cuspidor and Saw.

Edward Haskill, 40 years old, No. 327 New High street, attempted to commit suicide yesterday while chained by his feet to a cot in the Receiving Hospital by beating himself over the head with a metal cuspidor.

When removed to the County Hospital, Haskill escaped from the attendants, and running through the grounds found a saw and attempted to cut his throat with it. He did not seriously injure himself in either instance.

Haskill was taken to the Receiving Hospital while suffering from an overindulgence in liquor. He raised such a disturbance he was chained to a cot. He was restrained from doing himself serious injury with the cuspidor by one of the nurses, who, hearing an unusual noise in the room, made an investigation.

En route to the County Hospital Haskill made no effort to escape or to do himself harm. Catching the attendants off their guard, he made a dash for liberty, and before he could be recaptured, cut his throat slightly with the saw.

GAMBLERS GO TO JAIL.

Police Court Judge Surprises Proprietors of Chinese Lotteries—Results of a Night Raid.

G. Wing and George Sam, whose Chinese lottery joints were raided Tuesday night by Sergt. Gifford and a squad of patrolmen, were sent to jail for twenty days yesterday by Police Judge Williams. Wong Sing, arraigned on the same charge, pleaded not guilty. In default of $1000 bail he also was sent to jail. His trial was set for September 11.

The police found the door of G. Wing's place, No. 518 North Los Angeles street, unlocked. Twelve men in addition to the proprietor, were arrested and hundreds of lottery tickets confiscated. Wing was released on $100 bail and the twelve gamblers on $10 bail each.

At Wong Sing's table, at No. 22 Plaza, were six players. They were sent to the Central Station with the proprietor and were admitted to bail.

There were three players at George Sam's place, No. 512 North Los Angeles street. George was released on $100 bail and his patrons on $10 bail each.

NO FUNDS, CHARGE.

R. A. Spear was arraigned yesterday before Justice Reeve, charged with having passed a fictitious check on complaint of W. H. Woods. On motion of Deputy District Attorney Doran he was released on his own recognizance and his examination set for August 6. The check, for $4.85, was drawn on the First National Bank of Los Angeles, in which it is alleged Spear had no funds.

Try a Guess as to What This Is.

Or rather, as to what it means. The man is L. R. White, foreman of conduit work being done on New High street, and he is pointing at a mysterious underground tunnel which one of his men uncovered six feet beneath the street surface yesterday. Approximately seventy-seven theories were advanced yesterday to account for its presence there, ranging from deep-laid criminal plots to prosaic and everyday sewers. It is now your turn.

What's Your Idea?

GUESSES FILL YAWNING HOLE.

MYSTERIOUS TUNNEL DUG UP IN NEW HIGH STREET.

Scores Visit Odd Find Uncovered by Street Work and Each Has a Different Notion—Proximity to Jail Stirs Authorities and Investigation Continues Today.

An old underground tunnel was uncovered yesterday in New High street, not far from the Federal building, by laborers digging a trench for the Pacific Gas and Electric Corporation. Inside of half an hour there were enough theories of its origin afloat to supply a five-foot library of Deadwood Dick fiction.

L. R. White, foreman in charge of the conduit work, at once qualified for the Romance Club. White could almost smell the opium from a nearby den of smugglers, and was confident that the work is of so recent origin that the use of the tunnel was stopped only when his men approached so closely that capture seemed imminent.

After the evening newspaper reporters reached the festive scene and lowered themselves into the shaft bones began to appear. The mystery deepened and a bright young theorist could see nothing save the private cemetery of some new Lucigert. Investigation of the "human bones" by a person who claimed to be on speaking terms with beefsteak and chickens put a damper on the graveyard theory.

The tunnel is only about 100 feet from the County Jail and the Hall of Records building, making it certain in the minds of many that a deep laid plot—about six feet deep—had been unearthed to effect a wholesale jail delivery or carry out some other nefarious plot. The next lecturer to obtain audience eloquently pictured the Federal Building being blown up with dynamite with a big haul of money and registered mail by the criminals.

According to another the tunnel was once used as means of ingress and egress to the old fort which foamerly topped the hill back of the present New High street, and through which the soldiers made their thrillin' escapes or else sortied forth to the plaza where they engaged the enemy. What enemy does not appear.

Enter F. J. del Pozo, who has lived in the vicinity for forty years. He said that the tunnel was bored about that long ago for the purpose of tapping a spring of water a few hundred feet east of the present street line, and that the condition of the ground under the street, together with the erection of two bulkheads on either side, and the loose dirt apparently thrown in there more or less recently is due to the fact that when a water main was run through New High street three or four years ago it was the purpose to fill up the tunnel under the street, but that there was not enough dirt at hand and the attempt was abandoned. This would also account for the beefsteak and chicken bones if the assumption may be permitted that the men who worked on the water line ate either beefsteak or chicken for their midday lunch.

The proximity of the tunnel to the County Jail interested the city officials and Deputy Laws of the Street Department, detailed a foreman and several men to investigate the whither and the where of the hole. One of the men is an old miner, and his view substantiated that of Del Pozo, but in order to be on the safe side a shaft will be sunk today on the west side of the water main and the bulkhead by means of which the tunnel will be tapped again and followed to its source. Beyond the eastern bulkhead is the stone retaining wall of a building.

The tunnel is well constructed, four feet wide and five feet deep, and must have been dug at considerable expense. The find attracted a large number of persons to the scene, each one of whom had a theory. One enthusiast said that he believed the tunnel led to a robber's den and declared that he proposed "sticking around" in order to be among those present when it is tapped again and search begun for the pot of gold which he feels certain lies at yonder end.

Found.

JOY-RIDE GIRLS ARE LOCATED.

ONE SEVERELY HURT, THE OTHER ONLY SCARED.

Madigan Sisters, the Two Women With Ragsdale and Stewart When a Motorcycle Man Was Killed by Collision at Lancaster—The Men Held for Further Investigation.

The two women who were in the automobile with I. H. Ragsdale and W. K. Stewart night before last when the machine collided near Van Nuys with Martin Bozehk, a contractor, who was riding a motorcycle, were found late yesterday by a Times reporter.

The two comely young women are the Madigan sisters, living at No. 210 North Boylston street. The younger of the two was found lying on a bed in the front room of a neat little bungalow, her head and one hand wound in bandages. She was still under the effects of an opiate, and looked blankly at her visitor. Her older sister says that as for herself she was not hurt in the least by being thrown from the machine, but that she feels about ready to collapse from the strain.

"The man was coming up the road on a motorcycle," she said, "and had no light on his machine. When we discovered him he was right on us and struck the automobile before we had time to say 'boo.' I don't think we were in the least to blame for the man's death. I would probably have been as badly hurt as my sister if I had not fallen on a deep pile of sand."

The girl lying on the bed has a severe cut on the chin and one on her hand, but the latter is so sprained and swollen that the doctor cannot tell until the swelling goes down whether the bones of the hand are broken or not. Bezehk died of his injuries in the Receiving Hospital at an early hour yesterday morning, and Ragsdale and Stewart are held pending a further investigation into the cause of the collision.

At the time the accident occurred, H. J. Whitley was at the bank in Lankershim, of which he is president, attending a directors' meeting, and when news came there that some people had been injured up the road he told his chauffeur to drive up and see if he could be of assistance. He picked up the whole party and started for the city, but, meeting the police automobile, the three men were transferred to that machine, and he brought the women on in and took them to the bungalow, following their directions in the dark, but not knowing just where he had taken them. From his description, the house was located.

EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE.

IMPORTANT DECISION IS REACHED.

You hardly realise, from day to day, how important are the decisions which you arrive at in reference to the daily demands of your business and home.

No reporters interview you or hang on your words, no newspapers herald your "opinion" with big headlines. Being a modest person, you naturally conclude that your decisions are unimportant and require no great attention or concentration on your part.

In your capacity, however, as head of the family, your decisions influence the lives of others and you cannot afford to slight any of those questions which pertain to their future well being, comfort or happiness.

The question of a home—a permanent home—is perhaps the most important and fundamental of any which come up for judgment. It deserves and demands your immediate and closest consideration. You should consult your most trusted adviser and take council with your family. No hasty, cast-bound pomerous temes will help you to a fitting decision. You can only arrive at one by actually visiting and closely inspecting a tract which offers you the most for your money.

MITCHEL'S EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE claims to be this and substantiates the claim in every possible way.

Your first demand is that your future home should be in a popular high-class region where values are steadily on the rise.

MITCHEL'S EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE gives you all of these in quick succession.

You want all modern improvements: paved streets, cement walks and curbs, ornamental shade trees; gas, water, electricity—in fact, a homesite which shows very plainly that care, thought and considerable money have been expended in its development.

MITCHEL'S EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE offers these advantages as the least of its recommendations.

You want fine surroundings, wise building restrictions, educational advantages—

MITCHEL'S EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE has an enormous and beautifully arranged park on one side, the Manual Arts High School and the University of Southern California on another; schools, churches, stores are near; artistic homes are the rule in this section of the city.

In addition to all these, you must have good car service.

MITCHEL'S EXPOSITION PARK SQUARE has the finest in the land.

SEVEN CAR LINES,
TWENTY-MINUTE RIDE,
FIVE-CENT FARE,
90 SECONDS BETWEEN CARS.

The lots are large and command an extensive view. They are priced way down for this high-class residence part of the city, and at $1500 are exceedingly good buys. Others at various prices. Satisfactory terms.

Be your own judge and jury. Come to that important decision today.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

After Many Years.

Mrs. Emily P. Tinker died yesterday at the advanced age of 85 years. Mrs. Tinker had lived in Los Angeles for a quarter of a century and was known to many of the older inhabitants. The funeral will be at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the residence, No. 245 North Avenue 23.

Elimination by Verification.

On completion of the verification of signatures by the registration department of the County Clerk's office, the initiative petition for the consolidation of city and county governmental systems was sent yesterday to the Secretary of State. The names originally on the petition number 11,112; after verification there were 7542 remaining.

Hikers to Sell Newspaper.

Harlow Paul and Isador Sisco, two young High School lads of San Jose, have just completed a hike from San Francisco to Los Angeles in fourteen and one-half days, which is a good record for the distance. They will sell The Times this morning at Fifth and Broadway. The boys are in excellent shape, and expect, after a short stay here, to hoof it back to San Francisco.

From Mountain to Sea.

A trail leads from a lonely niche in the Kendall Mountain, near Silverton, Colo., where the body of Max Dallavalle was found last Monday, to Los Angeles, where the widow and "a friend" are believed by the Colorado authorities to be located. Dallavalle mysteriously disappeared last August, and murder is suspected. The couple are wanted by reason of evidence collected by the Coroner. The Los Angeles police have no record of any persons answering the description.

Realty Men's Outing.

The annual outing of the Los Angeles Realty Board will be held August 17 and 18, according to arrangements made at a special meeting yesterday. The steamer Yale or Harvard will be chartered and a trip to Coronado and Ensenada arranged. The committee in charge is Herbert L. Cornish, W. M. Garland, Victor G. Kleinberger, J. V. Baldwin, H. G. Holabird and Glenn N. Duel. It is expected that 300 members will make the trip.

Business College's Housewarming.

Amid a profusion of cut flowers, plant life and music, the Hollman Business College, Nos. 1017-1019 South Figueroa street, threw open the handsome new school building to the public last evening. There was a large gathering to inspect the institution. Many danced until midnight. The college rooms contain over 10,000 feet of floor space and seating capacity for 500 students. Excellent roof-garden facilities are afforded, as well as an abundance of fresh air. The location is desirable because it is beyond the noise and traffic of the business district.

Wet Politics.

One teacup of pineapple juice, one teacup of orange juice and one cup of lemon juice to the quart with an equal amount of crushed pineapple, crushed orange and preserved cherries is the recipe which Mrs. W. C. Tyler gives as the correct ingredients for a Democratic woman's lemonade. That is the way she prepared the brew which regaled the county branch of the State league at its meeting yesterday afternoon, and a comfortable quantity of the elixer was consumed. Afterward the women said they were strong for the moonlight garden party tonight at the home of Mrs. John Mitchell, First and Vermont streets, for the southern dinner next Thursday night and for Woodrow Wilson in November.

FORMER OFFICIAL ARRESTED.

Fresno Man Stays Away Eight Years and Returns With Another Wife—Will Be Prosecuted.

FRESNO, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After an absence of eight years during which time his daughters have grown into womanhood and married, W. P. Nelson, former undersheriff and son of Maj. Nelson, Fresno's first treasurer, who in 1904 deserted his wife and children and eloped with Miss Wright of Selma, returned to his former home yesterday and was placed under arrest on a charge of failing to provide for his minor child, aged 8. Nelson was accompanied here by Mrs. Nelson No. 2, he having married Miss Wright after his first wife secured a divorce.

The sudden disappearance of Nelson eight years ago caused excitement because of his prominence in this city. His father died two years ago broken hearted. Nelson spent the greater part of the eight years in Trinidad, Colo., where he is reported to have become quite prominent. The return trip was made to Fresno because Mrs. Nelson wanted to see her parents. The former Mrs. Nelson learned of her former spouse being in town, so she swore to the complaint. Nelson was able to furnish bond and was released from custody. He visited many old friends in Fresno today and called upon J. D. Collins, who was Sheriff when he eloped.

The case will be bitterly fought in the courts as Nelson claims that he made arrangements to have his wife and children provided for before his departure. His wife is at her parents' home in Selma.

Santa Monica.

THREE CITIZENS TO RULE TOWN.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT IS FAVORED OF COMMITTEE.

Aged Wanderer on Malibu Ranch Still Unidentified—Shadow of Alleged Gambler Betrays Presence to Police—Chauffeur Heavily Fined for Reckless Driving.

SANTA MONICA, July 24.—The commission form of government may be adopted by the people of this city when the new Charter Revision Committee submits its findings. The committee was at work for the first time today and the sentiment of most of the members was favorable to a proposal that three citizens have entire control of the city's government. Mrs. D. G. Stephens, chairman of the charter revisers, has not committed herself upon the subject as yet, but it is understood that she will, with the others, urge its adoption by the people. The deliberations of the committee have not progressed far enough for a forecast of the probable restrictions placed upon the heads of the future city government.

MYSTERIOUS WANDERER.

Mystery surrounds the identity and past life of an aged man found by the roadside on the Malibu ranch today. Swarthy of skin, his clothing in tatters, so weak that he could not walk, the unknown was brought to Santa Monica and Dr. J. L. Balsley administered stimulants while the man was in a stupor. Dr. Balsley ordered the mysterious wanderer sent to the County Hospital. During the entire time the man was unable to talk. Although his skin was similar to that of an Indian, Dr. Balsley is of the opinion that he is an American, and is of sound mind, though very weak. The ranch people had not noticed him before.

SHADOW BETRAYS THEM.

The shadow of a man dealing cards led to the arrest, early this morning, of B. Ross, A. H. Cutler, J. R. Burns, H. P. Waters, T. Menger and W. H. Lowther, in the second-story of a building on the Fraser pier on the charge of gambling. They each paid $25 fine in Justice Carrillo's court later. Officers Engrem, Sandlin and Rico, who made the arrest, say that they have been looking for the gamblers for several days, but, as they moved the scene of their operations from one room to another, they were hard to catch.

YOUNGEST OFFICER.

One of the youngest militia officers in the West is Guernsey Frazier, who was last night elected first lieutenant of Co. E, Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., to succeed W. O. Ewing, who resigned to enter the office of Chief of Police Randall. Frazier is but 21 years of age, yet he has been an enthusiastic and brilliant member of the company since its formation. S. T. Cary was chosen to fill the vacancy caused by Frazier's promotion.

Police Judge Carrillo this morning fined Frank Sandhoffer, chauffeur for Edward Keating, $100 on the charge of reckless driving. Sandhoffer admitted running the machine, which struck the bend in the Speedway at Hollister avenue, almost wrecking it against a telephone pole.

Whether the "lid" shall be taken off in Santa Monica is a question much discussed just now. City officials, members of the church associations, and those who want an open town are interested. Just before the Council meeting Tuesday, the City Attorney was instructed to prepare an ordinance on the shaking of dice which, it is said, will prove to be the can-opener with which the lid will be pried off. The ordinance, if passed, will allow dice shaking for merchandise, the "twenty-six" game, and other dice-shaking propositions. After a spirited debate and the consideration of a big protesting petition from the church members of Santa Monica three months ago, the City Council placed the ban on dice shaking.

NEWS BRIEFS.

J. D. Kneen was the lowest bidder for the construction of the City Jail, it was found when bids were opened by the Council last night. His offer to construct the jail for $16,540 will probably be accepted at the next meeting.

TRAINMEN HELD FOR WRECK.

CORNING (N.Y.) July 24.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] In a verdict returned today the coroner's jury held that Engineer William Schroeder and Flagman Edward Lane were responsible for the wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad near here July 4. Warrants charging them with manslaughter in the second degree were issued by Coroner Smith.

STEAMER BURNS AT DOCK.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] Fire this morning destroyed the freight wharf of the Union Petroleum Oil Company at Marcus Hook, Pa. The flames communicated to the British steamer, Trinidadian, which was docked at the wharf. The fire almost completely wrecked the Trinidadian. The loss aside from that sustained by the steamer is estimated at $250,000.

There seem to be a good many features to this campaign, and with the exception of our offering of blue serges at a straight 10 per cent. reduction, the political situation is undoubtedly attracting the most attention of anything in the country at the present time. We're the leaders, however. We're getting orders from points everywhere west of the Rockies for these suits. Better look into the proposition.

Her Story.

ROBBERS USE CHLOROFORM.

Woman Silenced With Drug in Her Home.

Daring Daylight Deed in a Crowded Place.

Police Arrest Two Youths in Vicinity.

Held up in her own flat, in a building occupied by several families, in broad daylight and within ten feet of a busy sidewalk; knocked down, chloroformed and robbed—this was the thrilling experience of Mrs. Ada M. Gartman, No. 318 South Figueroa street, shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Two hours later Detectives Ziegler and Roberts arrested Louie Gonzales, who said he lives "sometimes" at Second street and Fremont avenue, and Walter Roeber, who gave his address as No. 537 Malabar street. The prisoners are about 19 years of age, and were taken near the scene of the robbery.

Mrs. Gartman was rushed to the Receiving Hospital, and late last evening was reported out of danger.

The victim of the assault had been away from her flat for several hours. The entrance is directly from the street. As she unlocked the door and stepped inside, she says, she was struck on the head, and one of the robbers instantly covered her face with a cloth saturated with chloroform, the other grasped her feet. She was laid on the floor and a gag inserted into her mouth with instructions to "keep quiet, or we will cut your throat from ear to ear." Then she lost consciousness.

Half an hour later Mrs. Polling, who lives in the adjoining flat, separated by a thin partition, heard a moaning, and an investigation found Mrs. Gartman very ill. Home remedies were applied, and the police notified.

Mrs. Mattie Gray, a cousin of Mrs Gartman, and H. Pomfret, a roomer, returned soon afterward and found the flat in great disorder. It had been ransacked from one end to the other; drawers overturned and clothing scattered about. Mrs. Gray had hidden $21 between the leaves of a book in her room. This was gone, together with $11 from Pomfret's room, and a valuable gold watch belonging to Mrs. Gartman. Several smaller articles of jewelry are also missing.

The ruffians escaped through a window, leaving finger marks on the dusty sill. These, the police believe, will be of great assistance in solving the mystery, and a preliminary attempt was made last night to fit the imprint into the digits of the boys under arrest.

Mrs. M. W. Mountain, a neighbor, saw two young men acting in a suspicious manner in front of the flat a short time after the robbery. One of these, she said, wore a red sweater, and the other a slouch hat. It is partly on this description that Gonzales and Roeber were arrested.

A 32-caliber revolver, fully loaded; a skeleton pass key, and a large brass key were taken from the boys, who declare they will be able to prove an alibi, and that they had spent the afternoon on Boyle Heights. They said they had intended going hunting with the revolver "for rabbits or something." None of the stolen goods was found in their possession.

Magnificent.

MILLIONAIRE TO REAR A PALACE.

PITTSBURGH BOLT KING WILL BUILD HOME HERE.

Lauds Southern California as the World's Garden Spot and Predicts Third Place in Nation's Cities for Los Angeles in Few Years—Mansion to Crown Pasadena Hills.

Believing Southern California the finest residence place in the world, Milton Bartley, Pittsburgh millionaire, has just completed the purchase of six and a half acres of property near South Pasadena, on which he will build a magnificent home as soon as he returns from a trip East.

"After touring nearly every State in the Union and visiting numerous foreign countries, I have come to the conclusion that there is no other city or district to compare in advantages, scenic beauty and climate with that in and around Los Angeles," he said at the Occidental Hotel, where he has been staying, yesterday.

He has been several months in securing the acreage, which lies on a hill and which was in several parcels. "It is my intention to make my residence one of the show places of Southern California. Standing on the crown of a hill, overlooking this city and Pasadena, it will suit my taste for an extensive outlook," he declared.

Bartley is the inventor of a patent nut lock which is used extensively by the railroads throughout the United States and which makes impossible the unscrewing of a nut, once it has been placed. It was this invention

WOULD DEFER THE FUNERAL.

Nephew of Mrs. Seager Far from Satisfied.

Sad Service Conducted at Downtown Chapel.

Widower Denies Rumors of Various Kinds.

Another pathetic chapter was introduced yesterday into the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Myrtle Seager, wife of Dr. Howard Seager, who drank chloroform Sunday night, when her nephew, F. E. Manges, traveling passenger agent of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad, sought to have the funeral services postponed and an inquest held. He is far from satisfied with the various explanations of the suicide.

When Manges learned yesterday afternoon that Coroner Hartwell had signed the death certificate after positively declining to hold an inquest or perform an autopsy, he hurried to the Bresee chapel, where the funeral was to be held, and demanded of M. L. Bresee that the services be halted until certain uncanny perplexities enshrouding the case were cleared up.

Bresee informed him that he could not delay proceedings when the death certificate had been properly signed by the Coroner, and advised Manges to lay his case before the District Attorney, who, if he deemed it advisable, would order the Coroner to call for an inquest or autopsy. Grieved and disappointed, Manges and his sister remained in an anteroom while the services went on. Dr. Seager asked Manges to occupy a seat in the chapel, but he declined. Rev. Baker P. Lee conducted the services. Several hundred persons, mostly women friends of Mrs. Seager, attended.

Manges declares that illness was not the motive for the suicide of his aunt. He declares her illness was not of sufficient seriousness to prompt her to kill herself.

Dr. Seager positively denies various rumors that have been circulated about the case.

"My wife was a very slight, nervous woman. She was suffering from what we physicians call 'egotistical insanity' in a mild form. She was a good woman and we had no quarrel of any kind. When she was at the springs I wrote her that I would visit her. Owing to the press of business I could not go. It is entirely probably this depressed her and made her become imaginative and unjustly suspicious," he said.

"I cannot understand the position taken by Manges in this case. He simply idolized my wife and is broken-hearted over her death. I have suffered terribly since my wife's death, and scandal-mongers are busy inventing malicious lies about me. I don't care what they say—I am innocent of any wrongdoing and willingly face the ultimate outcome of the affair."

Manges declared yesterday that he will probably place the matter before the District Attorney.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

"I cannot understand why the Coroner failed to hold an inquest in the Seager case," said Deputy District Attorney Alexander yesterday. "It looms up in a mysterious manner to me, and from what I have heard about it, the Coroner should have called an inquest or an autopsy. No complaints of any kind have been made with this office as yet, but if any is made we will investigate it thoroughly."

Coroner Hartwell declared that it is a plain case of suicide. "I didn't hold an inquest for the simple reason that a blind man could see that Mrs. Seager killed herself. I don't know why she took the chloroform."

Unless some definite action is taken by the District Attorney today, the body of Mrs. Seager will be shipped back to her old home in Ames, Iowa. Manges will accompany the remains East. Dr. Seager declared he is undecided whether he will go East with his wife's body.

MEAN THIEF STEALS HER CLOTHES; SHE DONS CAB.

Clothes Stolen, She Wears a Taxicab.

This is Miss B. Frohman, who dashed in decidedly misfit attire to the police station in a closed carriage yesterday to report to the detectives the loss of her wardrobe.

ATTIRED IN a gown that didn't fit her but which she rented for the occasion from a costumer, Miss B. Frohman, who lives in the Carlin apartments on West Third street, jumped from a taxi when it stopped in front of the Central Station yesterday, and hurriedly inquiring the way to the detective bureau dashed through the door at top speed.

To Detective Davis, who has charge of the counter where complaints are filed, she told a harrowing tale of some person visiting her apartments while she was absent Tuesday night and disappearing with her wardrobe. Not having a dress in which to appear on the street, Miss Froham sent to a costumers and rented a gown at a guess. The gown showed that it was not a very good guess.

"I couldn't think of appearing on the street in it," she said plaintively, "so I hired a taxi to bring me here.

"I never felt so funny and uncomfortable in all my life as I do in this outlandish looking affair," continued the woman, as she surveyed herself in the "hired outfit."

"But what was I to do?" she begged with an anxious expression in her eyes. "It's this or nothing, until I can get another dress made. And by that time perhaps it might be too late for the detectives to catch the person who robbed me."

Detective Davis assured Miss Froham that the bureau would do everything possible, and within the shortest time, to recover her clothes.

At Fifth and Broadway.

FOUR-MILLION-DOLLAR LEASE; GREAT BLOCK.

THE largest lease ever executed on a single parcel of real estate in this city was concluded yesterday afternoon, between the Normandie Realty Company, as lessor, and Herbert J. Goudge, as lessee, the deal involving the fifty-year tenure of the old Mueller property at the northwest corner of Fifth street and Broadway, and calling for the erection of one of the finest structures in downtown Los Angeles. The transaction, which was handled by the realty firm of Metcalf & Ryan, represents a total consideration of approximately $4,000,000, this figure including the aggregate rental to be paid by Goudge for the site, the cost of the improvement projected and the estimated outlay for taxes during the lifetime of the lease.

The site has long been in the hands of the Mueller family, which in 1890 erected the two-story sandstone building now standing on the corner. It has a frontage of 115 feet on Broadway and of 160 feet on Fifth street, and is regarded by many realty men as the most valuable piece of real estate in Los Angeles. The members of the Mueller estate several years ago organized and incorporated as the Normandie Realty Company, and the great structure to be erected on the corner will be known as the Normandie block. The mammoth transaction concluded yesterday had been quietly negotiated for several months, the owners of the corner being represented by Oscar C. Mueller, a prominent Los Angeles attorney and one of the

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

South Main-Street Improvement Association representatives appeared before the Board of Public Utilities yesterday and urged that every effort possible be made to secure for the Los Angeles Railway Corporation an acceptable franchise for the extension on South Main to Slauson avenue.

The Board of Public Utilities yesterday recommended that the Council give the Pacific Electric franchise to cross streets on its short line to Pasadena, in consideration of a 5-cent fare to the city limits and other considerations.

Acting Mayor Williams signed the anti-free lunch ordinance yesterday, and it will become effective thirty days after publication. Already there is talk of referendum petitions.

The City Board of Equalization yesterday reduced assessments of various charitable organizations to nominal figures. The Y.M.C.A. was given a liberal reduction.

The State Fish and Game Commission objects to the Public Service Commission closing Silver Lake to fishing, as the State commission furnished the fish under certain conditions, which this would set aside.

The tables were turned against the Domestic Utilities Manufacturing Company yesterday when a contract holder obtained judgment against it on a charge of fraud. Two additional suits were filed against the concern.

At the City Hall.

TRILBY RAIL MAY BE ELIMINATED.

PHASE OF PROPOSED SOUTH MAIN-STREET LINE.

Company Signifies Its Willingness to Accept a Franchise Similar to that Granted for West Ninth Street and Property Owners Are Anxious for Service.

Can the City Council grant to the Los Angeles Railway Corporation a franchise of such form as will be acceptable to the company for this construction of a street railway on South Main street from Thirty-sixth Place to Slauson avenue? Is it possible for the franchise to provide for the "Trilby" rail, and can the Council be induced to grant a straight 21-year franchise without the indeterminate features?

These are questions that are a source of worry to property owners of the South Main street district, who are exceedingly anxious to pave the street from Thirty-sixth Place to Manchester avenue, a distance of four miles, and to get a street railway constructed in the street before the paving is done.

As an indication of their earnestness the members of the South Main-street Improvement Association have made an offer that the property owners will pave the entire street if the railway company will construct the desired line, and will not ask that the company pay for a single square foot of this improvement, which will cost approximately $300,000.

After numerous conferences with railway representatives, Council committees and the Board of Public Utilities, the improvement association has finally submitted a statement that it is willing to accept a franchise for the proposed South Main street extension if it is granted in the same form as that granted for the West Ninth street line. This is a straight 21-year franchise, with provisions for a sixty-pound rail.

Gus Krueger, representing the South Main Street Improvement Association, was before the Utilities Board yesterday to learn just what could be done to comply with the demands of the railway company in securing this franchise. He declared that the association he represents is willing to do everything possible to secure the desired franchise, but that while the company has said that it will not extend the line farther than Slauson avenue the property owners believe they can offer inducements that will cause the extension to be carried as far as Florence avenue, a mile further south, if the franchise can be secured.

He declares that upon the securing of a street railway depends the future of this street, whether it shall be simply a residence street or a business thoroughfare.

He suggested that as the City Council is anxious to get this four-mile section improved as a connection with the County highway system to Wilmington, it should make every possible concession in granting the proposed franchise, and asked the Public Utilities Board to suggest the elimination of the "Trilby" rail requirements if this is possible and it should prove a stumbling block. Krueger was advised to "line up" the Councilmen.

"A Serious Charge."

The charges made by C. E. Richards, former member of the Harbor Commission, before the City Council on Tuesday, wherein he named William M. Humphreys, commissioner of the Board of Public Work, City Engineer Hamlin and Special Counsel Hewitt as the men mainly responsible for alleged squandering of $100,000 of the city's funds in the construction of the Huntington fill levee, will go before the Council's Harbor Committee, composed of Councilmen Reed, Lusk and Langdon. The regular meeting of this committee will not occur until the second Wednesday in August, but is is possible a special meeting will be called to take up this subject. Councilman Reed stated yesterday that the charges would be gone into thoroughly. Attorney Hewitt said yesterday that he would make no reply until he appeared before this committee. "These are serious charges," said Hewitt, "and I propose to go into them thoroughly and take such action as may seem proper after I have thoroughly considered the allegations." Commissioner Humphreys yesterday stated that he was not prepared to make a statement in regard to the charges, but that he considered the charges serious ones and that he would go before the committee and make his statement.

Will Recommend Franchise.

The Board of Public Utilities yesterday decided to recommend to the City Council the granting of a franchise to the Pacific Electric to cross Mission road, Tourmaline and Turquoise streets, on its short line to Pasadena. The provisions are to include a five-cent fare to Harriman avenue, the city limits, the construction of a five-foot walk on the west side of the road, a clearing up of the gutters and several new street stops, and a continuation of present car service.

Whose Fishes Are They?

The simple little announcement made the other day by the Public Service Commission, that, beginning with last night, public fishing in Silver Lake would again be prohibited, has roused an unexpected opposition. Acting Mayor Williams yesterday received a communication from the State Fish and Game Commissioner, stating that the black bass for this lake were furnished by the State Commission on the agreement that the increase should be subject to the general rules of the commission, and that the State law provides that the open season for black bass fishing shall be from June 1 to September 31.

They Get Reductions.

The City Board of Equalization yesterday forenoon voted to reduce the assessment on the improvements of the Y.M.C.A., from $250,000 to $40,000. The work of the association was shown by Lieut.-Gov. Wallace and Secretary Luther. They declared that all money received was put back into the conducting of the institution for the benefit of the young men of the city. The land, which is assessed at $6060, gets no reduction.

The Franciscan Fathers got a reduction on their land from $17,825 to $100 and on their improvements from $15,450, to $100.

The Roman Catholic bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles was granted a fifty per cent. reduction of properties held in his name and used for charitable purposes. The Los Angeles Orphans' Home was also given a reduction of assessment to nominal figures.

Advises Repaving.

The Board of Public Works yesterday granted authority to Charles O. Middleton to improve at his own expense Rampart boulevard from Sixth to Temple streets. This street work has been in bad condition for many months, but it was never accepted by the city and was done under private contract, the specifications not being satisfactory to municipalities. The City Engineer advises that the conditions of soil and drainage on this street are such that no paving except asphalt on a heavy concrete base will prove desirable or successful, and that the property owners start proceedings for such an improvement.

Will Advertise Franchise.

The Harbor Commission yesterday instructed Special Counsel Hewitt to prepare the advertisement for bids on the proposed franchise asked for by the General Pipe Line Company for a pipe line on the outer harbor breakwater. The minimum price is placed at $300 for the first year and rates thereafter to be fixed the first of each year on the basis of so much per barrel, the minimum to be $300 per year.

Shall City Set Prices?

Shall the city set a price on its lands at the San Pedro Harbor just at the time it is seeking to purchase other lands there, through condemnation suits? This is a question that is embarrassing the Harbor Commission just now. City Auditor Myers has asked the Harbor Commission to furnish him a list of these lands and their values. After considerable discussion yesterday, the board decided to ask Special Counsel Hewitt to furnish it a report on the status of the various parcels of land at the harbor and the nature of the city's title in each parcel. The City Auditor has to complete his schedule of city property by the first of August.

Spur-Track Franchises.

The Board of Public Utilities yesterday recommended the granting of spur-track franchises as follows: Pacific Electric Company, on Alameda street to connect with the Salt Lake Railroad; S. M. Bernard, Alameda street, between Second and Third streets; Associated Supply Company, Alhambra avenue; Pacific Electric, Alameda street, south of Seventh street.

Handled These Cautiously.

The Harbor Commission yesterday morning looked with caution upon two interesting subjects presented for its consideration. The question of the temporary harbor route, which has been one of much controversy, came before the new board members for the first time, and they decided to refer it to the Harbor Advisory Board, which has also been reorganized since the heat of the road strife was on. Then came up the subject of making San Pedro a "dry" town, in response to the petitions of the Los Angeles Church Federation and the Woman's City Club. After a few cautious remarks the Harbor Commission decided to continue the subject till a future meeting.

May Close the Block.

A petition was received by the Police Commission yesterday, asking that body to close the block on North Main street, between Commercial and Republic streets, against any further issuance of wholesale or retail liquor permits. The petition was referred to the Chief for checking the street frontage represented.

Proposes Long Leases.

E. G. Galusha, who is representing the squatters on the government land at the Rattlesnake Island breakwater, East San Pedro, appeared before the Harbor Commission yesterday with a plea that the commission make wharf charges for this section on the basis of the improvements on the land. This would mean a nominal rental for the squatters. Galusha previously presented a plan whereby it was proposed that the squatters relinquish their rights to the city and receive therefor long-time leases at nominal rentals. No action on the subject was taken by the board.

Bids for Street Sweeping.

The Board of Public Works yesterday set August 2 as the date for opening bids for the street-sweeping contract for a term to extend from September 1, 1912, to July 1, 1913. Meanwhile the street department will carry on the work which was done by C. A. Alexander, but whose contract was revoked recently because of his failure to provide sufficient men and teams. The street department is using hand-sweeping and street-flushing, but wants to get rotary sweepers at work as soon as possible.

Ordinance Is Signed.

The anti-free lunch ordinance was signed yesterday afternoon by Acting Mayor Williams, and will become effective thirty days after its publication. Councilman Betkouski, who has opposed the passage of the ordinance from the inception of the discussion, stated yesterday that referendum petitions would be put in circulation against the operation of the ordinance, and Walter Haas, attorney for the produce dealers who opposed the passage of the ordinance, stated that unless the ordinance was "modified" he would head a campaign against it.

Recommend a Trade.

The Board of Public Utilities will recommend to the City Council that it grant the Pacific Electric a franchise to cross Tremont and Zonal streets, on its Covina line, in exchange for a right of way to the city, to cross property of the Pacific Electric in the line of the same streets but which has not been opened as public streets. The board will also meet with the Legislation Committee at its next session and recommend that the twenty-one-year freight-carrying franchise for the Pacific Electric lines east of Main street be granted.

Revokes His Permit.

The Police Commission yesterday revoked the poolroom permit of Joseph Charbonneau for No. 1701 East Washington street, on the showing that he had allowed minors to enter and remain in his poolroom.

City Hall Brevities.

The Harbor Commission instructed its engineer yesterday to prepare plans and specifications for a boat for the use of the port warden.

City Attorney Shenk was able to visit the City Hall yesterday for the the first time in six weeks. He has been confined to his home with an attack of typhoid fever.

The Board of Public Works yesterday asked the City Council for permission to sell 100 tons of unsifted ashes at the city incinerator. An offer has been made for 200 tons.

The Board of Public Works will ask the Council to adopt an ordinance that will give the board authority to make sales of city property as occasion may arise from time to time without the necessity of applying for authority.

Hereafter the Police Commission will grant no more than one permit for taxicab stands for any one person. The commission yesterday denied the application of S. A. McKee for a taxi stand at No. 211 South Spring street.

The Harbor Commission and the Municipal Railroad Commission will go to Wilmington and San Pedro today to make a general inspection of the harbor work and the possibilities for the proposed municipal railroad from the city to the harbor.

TABLES TURNED IN WASH GAME.

JUDGMENT AGAINST DOMESTIC UTILITIES COMPANY.

Contract Holder Alleges Concern Did Not Act in Good Faith and Judge Agrees With Him—Two Additional Suits Filed, Asking Rescission.

The Domestic Utilities Manufacturing Company, which has successfully defended various suits brought against it by contract holders who alleged they had been defrauded, suffered a reversal of form when judgment was returned against it by Judge Densmore yesterday afternoon.

The case made against the company by Attorney S. B. Smith satisfied the court that the concern had not acted in good faith with C. S. Brown of Roberts avenue, who had given a deed for a $5000 equity in his property for a $5000 contract. It was decreed that the deeds are void and the property must be returned to Brown.

Judge Densmore decided that Brown had been deprived of his property without consideration and that fraud had been shown. On application of Attorney Post, counsel for the company, a thirty-day stay of execution was granted.

Brown's testimony is in substance that a rosy picture is painted of the great earnings agents have made. An exhibition of the clothes-washers the concern handles is given. The ease with which a washer is manipulated is appealing.

Brown received a $5000 contract by deeding over his equity, but he said that in order to obtain the 1667 washers which the contract called for he was required to pay an additional $2500. In order to get the money it was necessary to sell his contract, which it was held out he could readily do, but in order to sell the contract he found he had to obtain the washers.

Two additional suits were filed against the company yesterday, one by L. R. Taylor, who asks for the rescission of a $150 contract, and the other by Lottie R. Taylor and W. H. Taylor. The latter allege in their complaint that in the demonstrations given by the company's agents, the clothes to be washed by the patent washer were specially prepared with lamp black. The combination of hot water and sal soda alleged to have been put in the water produced a splendid bleach.

The officers of the company were indicted by the grand jury some time ago. The indictment alleged that agencies in the company are sold on false representation of the profits of other agents. At that time the District Attorney's office declared the concern had cleared up $500,000 by what was termed a direct succession finance scheme. This alleged scheme lies in the fact that each agent is compelled to depend on his ability to get others into the concern in order to get his money back.

HIS JEALOUS WIFE.
DENTIST'S LIFE STORY.

A good mother but poor wife was the judgment passed by Dr. Edgar E. Helsby's attorney when Judge Rector granted Dr. Helsby a divorce yesterday. The suit was brought by Dr. Helsby, an Azusa dentist. It was apparent from his evidence that he loved his wife, although it was equally evident that he had reached the limit of patience.

Mrs. Helsby was jealous. It took the form of espionage on the doctor. A prosperous practice in Kansas had been broken up, the doctor asserted, because of jealousy. He brought his family to California, hoping that in new scenes and among new friends Mrs. Helsby would outgrow her suspicions.

Conditions were no better, Dr. Helsby declared. Not only did his wife keep tab on the women patients who went to his office, but she made a spy of her little daughter. On one occasion Mrs. Helsby entered the doctor's office and attacked a young woman patient with her parasol in a paroxysm of jealous rage, and threw things at her head.

Dr. Helsby gave his testimony reluctantly. During the recital he was overcome with emotion, and finally broke down and cried. The court seemed affected by this involuntary burst of brief. He granted the decree by default, but awarded the custody of the two children to the wife.

GIVE UP CHILD.
COURT LECTURES PARENTS.

The readiness with which Harry Humphries and his wife, May, surrendered their 3-year-old son, Arthur R., to the custody of strangers amazed Judge Rives yesterday. The brown-eyed, rosy-cheeked child was in the Probate Court, unconscious that he was about to experience a great change. He played in the jury box while the court heard the application of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Brakebill of Sixteenth street and Echo Park avenue, to adopt him.

The court asked the Humphries why they parted with the boy. Humphries replied that he was not able financially to support him. This brought down on Humphries a severe criticism. Judge Rives said he did not understand how any man or woman with red blood could give up his own flesh.

The idea of absolving parents from the responsibility of caring for the children they bring into the world the court declared repulsive. The poorest mother who loves her child would scrub floors or do any menial work rather than give him up. Inasmuch as the Humphries desired it, the court thought perhaps it would be better that the boy should be adopted, and accordingly he approved the application.

Humphries and his wife were married in Portsmouth, Eng., and stated they are professional motorcyclists. Both were well dressed, the woman wearing a large hat with an ostrich plume. It is understood they intend to tour the country.

SEEK INSTRUCTIONS.
REFEREES SUBMIT QUESTIONS.

The referees appointed by Judge Bordwell to fix the amount of damages for the condemnation of property desired for the harbor boulevard appeared in court yesterday for instructions as to the materiality, competency or relevancy of the evidence taken before them in arriving at the proper awards. They were asked to come into court this morning for the necessary instructions.

The referees, Ward Chapman, John A. Mathis and Sidney L. Briggs, framed six questions for the court's consideration. One asks light on the phrase, "Value of the property sought to be condemned," "and what elements enter into the determination of "value." Another is how much benefit will accrue from the mere taking of the lands proposed for a public street, and the opening of such street as an improved street.

Whether increased values to adjacent property which will result from the harbor improvement should be considered as an offset to damages suffered by property owners whose land is directly benefitted by the boulevard, and whether damages to surrounding property not directly affected by the improvement must be considered in the appraisement, are other important questions the referees have submitted to the court.

CONTESTS WILL.
LEGACY IS INVOLVED.

Elinor A. Chase Stevens of Searsport, Me., and Paul Stevens filed a contest yesterday to the probate of the will of Florence E. Chase, the former's sister, involving a $10,000 legacy. It is alleged in the petition that Elinor is the sole legatee and executrix under the will of her sister and that she assigned to Paul a one-twentieth interest in the property, located in this county.

Florence E. Chase died in Bangor, Me., September 9, 1910, devising the estate to her brother, Horace W. Chase. At his death, she bequeathed it to Walde M. York and John M. York, as trustees, to hold in accordance with the will of Horace W. Chase. The will was admitted to probate May 24 last, and was alleged to have been the last will of the testator.

The contestants allege it is not the last will, but that the real will devising the estate to the sister was admitted to probate in Penobscot county, Maine.

CALLS HIM MENACE.
CONDUCTOR'S BAD RECORD.

In a searching report to Judge Wilbur, Humane Officer McLaughlin declared yesterday that Robert Webb, a trolley conductor, is a menace to the community and that his general reputation is worse than that of any man he ever investigated.

Webb was charged with the delinquency of 16-year-old Leslie Allison, and on the strength of this charge and his bad record Judge Wilbur committed him to the County Jail for nine months. It was reported yesterday that fellow employes of Webb are preparing to petition the court to inflict the severest prison penalty on him.

BATHROBE BEQUEST.
INJUNCTION TO SISTER.

An interesting paragraph in the will of Katharine Clark of Fifty-fourth and Rose streets, filed yesterday, refers to her Turkish bathrobe which she bequeaths to her sister, Anna Clark. It reads:

"The bathrobe I leave her in this will with the injunction to wear it every time she bathes and see how comfortable it is."

The will is dated July 1, 1909. It bequeaths her estate to her oldest sister, Miss Sarah Clark, with the exception of the testator's share of the home on Rose street.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.
PROFESSOR IS CALLED.

Dr. Sylvester Gwaltney, professor at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and an expert on the heart, will be called by the State in Judge Cabaniss' court, in the trial of J. G. McKinney, charged with manslaughter. A hypothetical question will be put to him which covers the testimony in the case and is intended to show that Richard J. Smith, a Compton farmer, died as the result of violence. McKinney's auto struck him.

The cross-examination of Dr. Newkirk, called by the State, occupied most of yesterday. He had testified to the finding of a bruise on the pericardium sac and a corresponding mark on the wall of the heart of Smith. This indicated external pressure, the doctor testified. The cross-examination was devoted to showing that Smith had fatty degeneration of the heart and that disease and not violence caused his death. Dr. Newkirk's testimony was not shaken.

Dr. Seeber corroborated Dr. Newkirk. He was asked the hypothetical question and will answer today.

HENDERSON CASE.
LIBEL TRIAL TODAY.

The taking of testimony will begin before Judge Chambers and a jury this morning in the trial of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, Harry Chandler and Harry E. Andrews of The Times on a charge of alleged criminal libel preferred by Frank G. Henderson, former secretary to Mayor Alexander. The alleged libel consisted of an editorial article in which Alexander was censured for his proposed appointment of Henderson to the Board of Public Service Commissioners, an appointment that was afterwards made by Alexander in the face of opposition expressed on all sides.

The twelfth juror was obtained yesterday afternoon just before adjournment. He was one of the third panel that it had been necessary to summon. During the day, the prosecution challenged Olaf Strom and L. F. Biebsheimer, who expressed opinions that the prosecution considered too favorable to the defendants. For the defense H. J. Bridges, W. C. Beringer and E. Appleford were challenged for bias. The court excused H. N. Marr, J. H. Santee, Millard Fillmore, C. T. Naramora, J. F. Schabacher, H. S. Recob, H. E. Packer and F. A. Fries.

Three of the prospective jurors frankly expressed the opinion that Henderson had no case and declared that on account of this opinion they could not serve with open-mindedness on the panel. They were excused.

Two prospective jurors were excused because they expressed the opinion that if a man has a grievance against a newspaper he should fight his own battle by bringing a suit on his own account and pay the bills, instead of getting the city or State to do it for him and pay for it.

The twelve who will constitute the jury are: Henry Dick, John Smith, Fred W. Pierce, P. G. Mohr, C. F. Remmel, Charles Sangster, P. T. Moses, J. A. Crook, C. M. Burr, W. S. Matlock, W. E. Spear and C. E. Groat.

As soon as the twelfth man had been obtained, Judge Chambers adjourned court until 10 o'clock this morning, at which time all the jury will have to be present, with the witnesses in the case. Yesterday, as the talesmen already chosen were not required for the day they were excused.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.
BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

TUFTS AGAIN. Gorham Tufts, Jr., convicted by a jury of having obtained money under false pretenses and sentenced to three years at San Quentin, will appear in the Juvenile Court today to answer the charge of his first wife that he is an unfit person to have the custody of his two boys, Fletcher, aged 11 and Warner, 14 years old. The boys are at the McKinley Home.

NOXIOUS SMOKE. Two damage suits of $5000 each have been filed by Blanche D. Cole, an artist, and W. A. Strong, an attorney, against W. S. Russmer and Elizabeth Solomon, alleging that the smoke from the stack of the apartment-house conducted by Russmer and owned by Mrs. Solomon, at Eleventh and Elden avenue, is black, dirty and greasy, noxious and destructive of curtains and hangings, shrubs and plants. The residences affected are on Magnolia avenue, the smokestack being only twenty-five feet from Strong's property, which adjoins the artist's.

I.W.W. PLEADS. Edward R. Lynn, who, according to his statement to Judge McCormick is an I.W.W., and was arrested in San Diego during the recent disturbances there, was arraigned yesterday and will be tried in Department Eleven. He applied for probation. Lynn declared he is able to plead his own case and does not want a lawyer to defend him. He is charged with having stolen a typewriter and sold it for $25.

This with other recent dev opments, it is stated, further indica the tremendous reserve of oil in t Santa Maria section, which it is sa is similar in character to that of t great Baku oil fields in Russia, a will insure a production for years some.

The activity in the Santa Maria di trict at the present time is very pr nounced. The Palmer Union C Company expected to begin to pum well No. 2 yesterday. This was r drilled from 2130 to nearly 2200 fee No. 5 is in oil and sand, and is co ing in at about 2090 feet. Work progressing rapidly on four othe wells on this property. It is the in tention of the company to start tw more, drilling with the rotary. This it is stated, will be the first used o the rotary in the Santa Maria district Well No. 2 is producing 500 barrels o oil, and No. 4 is flowing 1000 bar rels.

Some of the finest quality of as phalt in the State is being produced at Madley. It has been used in the Northwest, proving to be absolutely pure, it is said.

On the Palmer Annex Oil Company's properties, well No. 1, formerly Los Alamos, is flowing and pumping about 1200 barrels of oil per day. No. 6 is pumping about 600 barrels, and is flowing about 100 through the casing. No. 3 has been cleaned out, and is again on the pump. It is expected that the sand difficulties will shortly be over in this well. No. 7, a new well, is about 1060 feet deep, having been drilled open hole to this level in about thirty days. Shipments of oil from the company's properties are going forward as rapidly as tank cars can be procured. The Santa Maria Valley Railroad has practically all the business that can be handled at the present time, with sixty to 100 cars of freight per day.

The Union Oil Company is drilling on one well, and is putting another well in shape to drill for deeper sand. It was found that the Newlove No. 20, when deepened, improved in production by about 250 barrels of light oil a day. The new depth which is being aimed for in this section is about 3200 to 3300 feet. It is reported that two other companies are also trying for the deeper oil strata which has been found.

The property of the Dome Oil Company, which merged with the Pinal some time ago, is looking better than ever, it is stated, as five good wells are on the pump.

The Brooks well No. 4 is producing 800 to 1000 barrels per day, and it is reported that this well looks as though it would be in the gusher class in a short time.

The Merchants' Oil Company, operating a lease on the Palmer Annex property, has succeeded in shutting the water off, and expects to complete its well in the next sixty days.

The Dispatch Oil Company, adjoining the Palmer Annex on the northwest, is fishing for a lost bailer. As soon as this is recovered, the well will probably be put on the pump.

The Los Flores in the same field is down about 4000 feet on well No. 3. The Summit Oil Company has reorganized, and it looks as though a successful job has been made of shutting off the water. This well should be producing in the next thirty days.

The Bradley Canyon Oil Company in the north is now drilling in the shale at a depth of about 1800 feet. According to the logs in the southern end of the field, the oil sand should be struck at a depth of about 1800 feet. If this is the case an immense territory to the north of the old Cat Canyon field will be proved up.

It is stated that a great deal of activity is seen in the old field now owned by the Rice ranch, the New Pennsylvania, and in the deepening of the Pinal wells.

Increased Activity in June.

From figures just issued, activity in the California oil fields during the month of June showed a substantial increase over that of May. The number of wells producing in June was 1080, as compared with 5374 in May. In June 423 wells were drilling, compared with 420 in May. Four more wells were completed last month than during the month before, the number of wells completed only increased by one, however, but only seven wells were abandoned in June as compared with sixteen in May. In June, one rig was completed in June, four more than in the month of May.

BURIED ALIVE, HE LIVES.

Carpenter, Caught in Landslide, Is Completely Covered for Eighteen Minutes—Cause a Mystery.

S. J. Owens, 55 years old, a carpenter living with his family at No. 1 Harvard boulevard, was buried alive in a standing position in a ten-foot trench in a fifteen-foot basement excavation for a building to be erected by the Whiting Lumber and Supply Company at Cecelia and East Fifth streets, shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning. He was covered by tons of sand that slid from the north wall of the excavation.

Although Owens was completely buried eighteen minutes, he was not suffocated. It was almost half an hour after the man's head had been exposed, before the score of workmen were able to liberate his feet. At the Receiving-street Hospital, it was found Owens had suffered a broken rib and slight blade on the left side.

J. A. Churchill, No. 8 West Phillips street, Pasadena, who was working near Owens, escaped by running west of the trench when the sand began to slide.

Foreman Abbott directed the rescue operations. He gave Owens' address as C. J. Gillum, who lives on Terminal Island, is foreman of the Terminal Island, is foreman of the job. He said yesterday he is at a loss to account for the accident.

The Oil Industry.

SANTA MARIA VERY ACTIVE.

Tremendous Oil Reserve Is Thought Uncovered.

Great Field Like that of the Russian Baku.

Large Territory Near Cat Canyon Proving.

The Palmer Union Oil Company No. 1 well No. 1, which sanded up eight months ago, after flowing 1,500,000 barrels, back on the producing list again, with an output of 500 barrels a day. This with other recent developments, it is stated, further indicates the tremendous reserve of oil in the Santa Maria section, which, it is said, is similar in character to that of the great Baku oil fields in Russia, and will insure a production for years to come.

The activity in the Santa Maria district at the present time is very pronounced. The Palmer Union Oil Company expected to begin to pump well No. 3 yesterday. It is the intention of the company to start two more drilling with the rotary. This, it is stated, will be the first used of the rotary in the Santa Maria district. Well No. 1 is producing 200 barrels of oil, and No. 4 is flowing 1000 barrels.

Laborer, Caught in Sandslide, Is Completely Covered for Eighteen Minutes—Cause a Mystery.

J. Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty Seekers

K. C. F. asks: "Will you tell me how to get my hands white and soft? They have become rough and are so dark in contrast to my arms." The method mentioned in reply to Eloise will bring the desired results; wear gloves to prevent soiling the bed linen.

D. N. A. writes: "How can I reduce a double chin? Also how get rid of crow's feet?" Use a wash lotion prepared by dissolving one ounce of powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. This tightens the skin, tending to disperse wrinkles as well as flabbiness about the chin or elsewhere.

Eloise says: "My freckles are worse than ever this year, made doubly conspicuous by a pallid complexion. Is there any cure?" Ask your druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax, apply nightly like cold cream, removing in the morning with warm water. As the wax gradually absorbs the lifeless cuticle, not only will the freckles vanish, but the new and younger skin which appears will have a healthy color. Probably you will need to continue treatment a week or more.—Woman's Realm.

Dilemma.

WOULD COUNSEL, DUTY FORBIDS.

WOMAN ATTORNEY TOLD OF HIS CRIMES BY ROBBER.

Young Hollander Who Has Confessed to Hold-ups Isn't Bright, She Says—Would Defend Him but Can't Because She's Deputy District Attorney.

A peculiar complication arose yesterday in the case of Cornelius Haasakker, the young Hollander who has confessed to a long list of daring automobile and other hold-ups, when Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz found herself unable to act as counsel for the farmhand, at his request, because she is a deputy District Attorney.

Recently Mrs. Foltz tendered her resignation to Capt. Fredericks, but he took no action. When she learned that Haasakker wanted her to look after his interests, she made a personal appeal to the District Attorney to accept her resignation, but he requested her to continue as his deputy.

F. J. Zeehandelaar, local representative of the Dutch government, called on Haasakker yesterday. It was on Zeehandelaar's request, previously backed by the wishes of the young prisoner, that Mrs. Foltz called to see the man yesterday in his cell at the Central Station.

After the interview Mrs. Foltz said Haasakker confessed to her a number of robberies, as he has to Detectives McCann and Fitzgerald, but denied that he had anything to do with the murder of A. A. Janes, a Southern Pacific dispatcher who was killed near his home, No. 302 South Normandie avenue, the night of the 2nd inst.

"I didn't know there was such a man or such a murder until I was told about it, for I don't read the newspapers," the young man said to Mrs. Foltz, according to a statement she made yesterday.

Haasakker gave vent to his pent-up feelings at that point, Mrs. Foltz said, and cried like a child.

"He's only a boy in many ways," she declared. "He says he is 23, but he acts like a boy of 16. He is not bright.

"While I talked with him I had constantly before me the realization that I'm still a prosecutor, being a deputy District Attorney, yet anxious to defend the young man, who I think is not mentally responsible for all that he says he has done."

Detectives McCann and Fitzgerald said that yesterday Haasakker confessed to them he did hold up and rob Arthur Lucuis, No. 5422 Sierra Vista street, on the night of the 15th inst.

The detectives said yesterday they have made no further progress in their efforts to connect Haasakker with the Janes murder. They have not abandoned hope, however. Contrary to expectations, the detectives did not yesterday or the night before locate Haasakker's suspected companion in crime. Search for him is still being made.

Since Haasakker confessed to the Lucuis hold-up, the detectives hope to be able to connect him with more than a dozen similar robberies committed in that neighborhood recently.

IS NOT A WELCOME.

When Justice Reeve raised his hand yesterday to swear Tene Sbrenio as a witness, Sbrenio took the hand eagerly and shook it. Later he explained in confusion that he had never been in court before and was unacquainted with court practices. This occurred in the case of Steve Garlich, who sought to recover $35 from Risto Salata. When Justice Reeve learned that $20 of this was a wager won on the election victory of Alexander over Harriman, he at once threw it out of court.

TO BE ENCOURAGED.

There is now a fine of $200 against launches attempting to enter local harbors without a light. This penalty is imposed to discourage smuggling. The fine ought to be lifted in cases of elopements.

A WISE CHOICE.

A girl graduate from the Law Department of the University of Chicago threw away her law books and eloped with another graduate of the same class. The man will practice law and the bride will bake biscuits. The combination is a bit old-fashioned, but it is not yet completely out of style.

A LOSING CAUSE.

While a hundred pretty maidens sat comfortably among automobile cushions and joined in a street parade in protest against having their aristocratic pets muzzled during the hot weather, when rabies are prevalent, two children in the streets were bitten by dogs that were not muzzled. The moral effect of that parade will not extend far enough to be noticeable.

A FINE POINT.

The universe is an extensive affair and even the little world seems to have plenty of elbow room in it for the busy little creatures who move about its surface with their busy little plans. Nevertheless, a few inches of dust counts for a great deal with mortals, and so it happens that legal papers which have slept undisturbed for fifty-five years, are now perused with avidity and it may be necessary to make a survey all the way from Mexico City to Los Angeles in order to prove the title to eleven inches of ground included in the site of the old Plaza Church and disputed by a recent survey.

CANADA OBJECTS.

Chicago proposes to take 10,000 cubic feet flow of water daily from Lake Michigan for sanitary purposes. Canada objects. The Dominion will not, if it can help it, allow about sixty miner's inches to be taken from the headwaters of Lake Michigan, lest it impair the grandeur and decrease the efficiency of Niagara Falls. First John Bull forbids us to subsidize our ships that journey through the Panama Canal. Now he protests against Chicago being washed with water in which he claims a small interest. Next there will be a howl go up that in sending a wireless message from Alaska to Boston it passes through air above the dominions of, and therefore belonging to His Royal and Imperial Majesty, George the Fifth, King of Great Britain and Ireland, Emperor of India, Ruler of Africa, Lord of the Isles, and High Cockalorum of the universe.

NOT FOR US.

A Michigan food and dairy expert now visiting in Los Angeles thinks this city ought to have a little municipal theater where moving pictures could show the danger of communicating disease through lack of cleanliness and a general failure to appreciate sanitary measures. A large percentage of the Los Angeles population would certainly resist any movement of this kind. All of us believe in sanitation and most of us try to be clean. Nobody wants food that is not all that it ought to be, but the idea of a lot of wicked little germs going up and down the earth seeking whom they may devour is quite bad enough without having moving pictures of them thrust before our eyes, suggesting jimjams and other horrors. Education along constructive lines is always to be desired, but people should not insist on emphasizing things to be afraid of. We are of the opinion that a moving-picture theater with no other purpose than to warn against disease would be a morbid institution, if not an altogether vicious one.

Democratic leaders at Seagirt have already settled the election. They have made a map, showing just what States Wilson will carry, and figured out just what is going to happen. It is to the credit of Hon. Norman E. Mack, the sly Democratic fox, that he was not a member of the political kindergarten that won the fight for Wilson before the campaign had commenced.

England shows her friendship for the policy of international peace by voting a measly $5,000,000 for new warships. And all Lord Churchill had to do to get the money was to point to the "unprecedented naval programme" of Germany.

The big sea bass are biting off Catalina. Even the denizens of the deep join in advertising the Magic Isle. The summer vacation season is certainly on.

THE CALIFORNIA SITUATION.

Whatever may be the case elsewhere, it is obvious that everything for which Roosevelt contends and on which he bases his candidacy—except ballot box reversal of Supreme Court decisions—is already grafted into the California Constitution, and all that is at issue in this State is whether the Republicans shall support Taft, who, with both the substance and the semblance of regularity, obtained the nomination for the Presidency at the National Republican Convention, or Roosevelt, who, it is claimed by his enthusiastic and injudicious friends, might, could, would or should have been nominated if he had only had votes enough.

There can be in the nature of things but one outcome to a division of the Republican vote in California, and that is to turn the State over to Democracy. It is a maxim of law that a man is held to intend the inevitable consequences of his actions. It is an absurdity to claim that it is not the intent of the progressive leaders to help the Democrats. It is the height of absurdity to claim that there is a corporal's guard of Democrats in California who will vote for Roosevelt. There is no disaffection among California Democrats. They are satisfied with the chance medley of opinions which they have erroneously mistaken for principles and incorporated into their platform, and they are fully satisfied with the candidates whom at Baltimore they nominated for the Presidential office. Wilson is handicapped by no record excepting his letter demanding that Bryan should receive the regular beggar's fee of "more kicks than half pence," and with his controversy with Henry Clay Watterson, in which Marse Henry did not hesitate to call Woodrow a liar.

But these amiable idiosyncrasies of Wilson will deter no Democrats from supporting their nominees. The seven great principles of Democracy—the five loaves and the two fishes—seem to be in sight. It is not in the disposition of a Democrat to jeopardize his own chances or the chances of any of his kindred or friends, to feed at the public crib, by giving his vote to the nominees of a "progressive" party.

BACK TO THE FARM.

Ours is not the only country where the cry of "Back to the farm" is sounded by political economists and observers of the need of industrial changes. Railroads, and the diffusion of intelligence by newspapers and periodicals were, to an extent, instrumental in producing discontent with agricultural pursuits, which has tended to produce a congestion of population in cities. In the State of Massachusetts the proportion of the people gathered in towns and cities of more than 8000 inhabitants at the beginning of the last century was less than one-twentieth. It was one-third in 1850 and is now more than two-thirds. In the State of New York one-third of the entire population lives in the cities of New York and Brooklyn, and more than two-thirds in cities of over 8000 inhabitants. In England there are great numbers of vacant farms. This was until lately attributed to the fall in the prices of farm products and, notwithstanding increased prices, an advance in the wages of farm laborers, and inducements in the shape of improved cottages, the exodus of workers from the farms to the cities of Great Britain is continuous. In France there has been a steady percentage of increase in the population of the towns and a diminution in the population of the rich agricultural districts.

The French farmers, in order to prevent their fields from going to waste, have imported low-grade laborers from Italy and Belgium to take the place of Frenchmen. These aliens furnish no material for armies, or the performance of civic duties, and are a detriment rather than an advantage to the Republic. Indeed it may be remarked everywhere that wherever the native abandons the cultivation of the soil a less civilized man, who is content with a lower standard of both physical and intellectual life, will take his place. The higher education, higher social aspirations, isolation, loneliness and dullness of life of the American farm hand leads him to leave the farm for the town as soon as possible. There are hundreds, not to say thousands, of unemployed men in the cities of the United States occupying park benches, walking the streets, earning a precarious subsistence by occasional jobs, often descending to beggary and sometimes to thievery.

To induce men and women to "go back to the farm," life on the farm must be made more attractive. The Mormons adopted the plan of establishing a center where the farm workers of a neighborhood could gather. Here there was a co-operative store, and a public building used for a schoolhouse on week days, for religious services on the Sabbath, and for concerts, dances and dramatic performances at times. There was no social distinction between the man who worked on the farm and the man who owned the farm, and the former could look forward to the time when he also could become a land owner, with such amount of domestic felicity as his means, his inclinations and the tolerance of wife No. 1 should afford.

Omitting the obnoxious feature of polygamy, which it is claimed is now at an end, Mormon farm life offers an example of social and industrial organization which might be copied with advantage.

Autos and telephones and electric lights have ameliorated the life of the agriculturist, and thousands of those who cling to the cities without hope of bettering their condition would do well to go "back to the farm."

An advance in the price of shoes September 1 is threatened. Thought when the tariff was taken off of hides by the Payne tariff law that shoes were to be reduced in price. The same old free trade misrepresentation. Somebody is making more money in the shoe business, that is all.

What funny things we see in politics! Here is the Old Hickory Club of Democrats getting together for Wilson. And the Sage of the Hermitage would need an introduction to the ex-president of Princeton.

Is there any city in America that contributes so many around-the world tourists as Los Angeles? It is a sign of prosperity that needs no other demonstration.

The Navy Department wants a name for the new Dreadnought about to be built. We beg to suggest, "Afraid of Nothing."

The Poet Philosopher.

How dear to my heart is the big soda fountain that stands in the front of the pharmacist's store, all gleaming with silver and celluloid mountin', and loaded with syrups and flavors galore! How sweet, when the weather is hotter than Cadiz, to go to the shop of the druggist it is, and order some suds for yourself and the ladies, from out of that fountain that's loaded with fizz! That big marble fountain, that cold, clammy fountain, that brass-mounted fountain that's loaded with fizz! And equally dear is the clerk who attends it, the beautiful youth with a dignity high; if you are too flossy he speedily ends it, by freezing you up with a glance from his eye. The hauteur of kings and the bearing of princes, the frigid reserve of Napoleon are his, while mixing his extracts of lemons and quinces, and working the fountain that turns out the fizz; the tall, stately fountain, the gas inspired fountain, the cold, gleaming fountain that turns out the fizz!

AS TO WILSON.

[The Argonaut:] Intelligent men respectful of the common integrities of mind and opinion will ask why Candidate Wilson has parted radically from the judgments and standards of Prof. Wilson. Certain foreign elements, especially South Europeans, will want to know why Prof. Wilson had so poor an opinion of their race when writing his history; and they may find it difficult to cast their votes for one whom they have formerly denounced as a slanderer. Devotees of the Catholic church will also want explanation and retraction respecting certain passages in Prof. Wilson's books. Then there will be a disposition to doubt the executive talents of a man who found Princeton University a highly organized thoroughly co-ordinated, harmonious and successful institution, and who after some years left it a disorganized, inharmonious and all but broken institution. It is, too, an assured fact that there is in existence a definite statement signed by Grover Cleveland discrediting Prof. Wilson as a man in his judgment devoid either of intellectual or financial integrity. And on top of all, there is the general distrust in the public mind of the administrative efficiency and practical common sense of a man whose whole experience has been in the line of school teaching.

He Hadn't Heard of Socrates.

[Kansas City Journal:] A big policeman who walks a beat near the Greek settlement in the North Side always gets angry when he hears this told at his expense, but there are those who will vouch for its truth.

About a month ago a young man, very much excited, rushed up to this policeman and exclaimed:

"Say, Jim, did you hear about a Greek by the name of Socrates taking poison?"

"I did not," Jim replied innocently. Then he added, thoughtfully stroking his chin: "Sure, that's the first time I ever heard of a Greek going up against anything stronger than what he sells in his own coffee houses. I guess I'd better look this up and bulletin all the details to the department. It's an unusual case.

Take It Easy.

[New York Evening Post:] Another way to fight the heat is to abstain from memorizing the various prescriptions on how to keep cool.

MEN AND THINGS ACROSS THE SEA.

Industrial France.

The French Minister of Public Works has a right understanding of his duty when he recommends the undertaking of large internal improvements, the expense for which must be met by loans placed among the people of the country. It is much more satisfactory, he says, that the national savings of the country should be invested in public works than that large amounts of capital should be diverted to foreign enterprises as at the present time.

Among the projects mapped out are four new canals: One, the northeast canal; two, a lateral canal running to the Loire; three, a canal joining the Loire with the Rhone, and four, a canal joining the Loire with the Garonne. They include in addition the construction of the port of Paris and the deepening of the Seine as far as Rouen, also the reconstruction of the Bery Canal, the canal from Bordeaux to Montauban and that from Moulins to Saucoins. The total estimated cost of carrying out these works exceeds £2,000,000,000.

The construction of these works would give employment to thousands of laborers for several years and would undoubtedly do much to solve the industrial problem of the country.

Royal Wardrobes.

The Czar of Russia, according to the Excelsior, is the European sovereign who spends most on his wardrobe. The tailor who makes his ordinary suits says the net annual profit from them is $10,000, and the army tailor who is responsible for the uniforms and court dress makes $15,000 a year. His Majesty never puts on a suit more than three times, and each one costs about $60. For silk hats the Czar pays $26, and $10 a pair for gloves. Every year, it is stated, he purchases a sable cape costing $2400.

King George, on the other hand, is one of the most economical of living monarchs, allowing himself only $20,000 a year to dress on. This sum is spent annually by the Kaiser on uniforms alone. The German Emperor, however, pays very little attention to his civil wardrobe. He never pays more than $35 for a suit, which he thinks nothing of wearing three times. The principal luxury in dress he allows himself is in neckties.

With the King of Spain the favorite article of dress is silk shirts, in which he always hunts, and of which he buys many dozens every year at $30 each. The most frugal of all the crowned heads in the matter of clothing is the King of Norway, who spends no more than an ordinary well-to-do citizen.

Tax Beautiful Women.

The versatility of the German Kaiser's mind has never been better illustrated than by his proposition that additional national revenues be raised by taxing every beautiful woman in the empire 45 cents a year. As there are about 20,000,000 in Germany, all of whom would find their vanity appealed to by such a proposition, this would mean an easy revenue of about $9,000,000 a year for the national treasury. As every woman would undoubtedly want one of the receipts for 45 cents, the tax could be largely collected without the aid of tax collectors, which would also eliminate all questions of favoritism or discrimination.

Financial Stress in Japan.

The cost of government in Japan has increased enormously as a result of taxation made necessary to meet war expenditure and an aggressive forward policy in extending the commerce of the country, in providing better educational facilities and in colonial adventuring. The result of extravagant governmental outlay is shown in the heavy advance in the cost of living, involving as it does a consequent reduction of wages. The workers can no longer subsist on the wages they get. Japan is a poor country, and the suffering is greater there than in other countries richer in natural resources and in productive capacity; but the problem of bringing income and outgo into some more nearly equivalent relation seems to be worldwide. It is the uppermost matter engaging the attention of the people of the United States in this year of our Lord. Japan has no monopoly of breakfast-table distress.

Quite Particular.

[Judge:] A clerk in a bank appeared before the bank president with a three days' growth of beard.

"James," said the president, "you will have to get shaved."

"But, sir," replied James, "I am growing a beard."

"You may do what you like at home," snapped the president, "but you must understand that I'll not have you growing a beard during office hours."

ABROAD WITH BURDETTE.

Other Hats of History.

Men dislike to buy new hats, even as women love to replace the one they have worn for "ages," which, by interpretation, is two months, with one unlike any other ever worn by woman. No woman worships at the shrine of the chapeau in Fontainebleau. A hat a hundred years old? There are no adjectives of contempt sufficient for it. One three months old is bad enough; six months is positively disgraceful; eight months old is an outbreaking sin; anything a year old, and made over, is simply a crime.

An old hat becomes accustomed to a man's ways. It settles down into a perfect fit no matter how he throws it on; it becomes like himself in character and countenance. He never loses it at banquet or luncheon; it always calls to him from the hat racks when he comes out of the dining-room. I have known men who disputed with the man at the hat racks, refusing to accept their own hats, even though they were shown their own initials in the crown, declaring that some sneak thief had changed hats with them, until suddenly, with shame-faced countenance, he remembered that at his wife's oft reiterated entreaty he had bought him a new hat that morning. I could give the names of the men, but that they all happen to be the same man and he a person to whom I am bound to be kind on account of family connection and lifelong intimacy.

Hats That Outlast the Wearer.

Possibly Napoleon may have been human enough—our demi-gods are half human at times—to have said, when he looked at that chapeau as you sometimes look at your dented bowler, "Oh, well, it will last till I can get another one in Paris."

Suppose, then, the angel watching his destiny had said to him, "It will last longer than your empire." What a wild sounding guess! But that's just what it did.

Making It Do.

I once saw in a museum at Pompeii a wine jar that had been cracked by a fall, and mended—think of that when you use some wonderful cement to repair your broken china—with copper rivets, in a practical manner that no workman of today would try to imitate.

"There, said the workman, when the woman called for it, "it isn't much of a job, but it's the best I can do with such a bad break and such an old jar. It will hold together for a couple of months, and by that time you'll be able to buy a new one."

It held together when Pompeii, city of marble, fell to pieces. It remained intact while two great cities went to ruin. And it will hold wine today. "Last a couple of months?" It has lasted 2000 years. It's wonderful how things will endure when you buy a good article to begin with and then take good care of it. See how long Jerry Simpson made a pair of socks last.

Another Arrival from Elba.

I know another man who is well-known by a chapeau with the side flapped up against the crown. He wore it to a most glorious Elba, not because he had to go, but because it pleased him to go. He also wrote an abdication of a throne he didn't own, declaring that "never again, under any circumstances." This was also a Napoleonic abdication, with a string to it. He returned from Elba with the world at his feet. Then came the Hundred Days, among a people who had been known to change their minds in fifteen minutes, a people who love nothing better than to exalt an idol, unless it is to pull him down when they need the pedestal for a new one. There came once more a June day, such a day of cloud and storm as lowered above Hougomont and La Have Sainte in that other June, and when the clouds and smoke had cleared away and the tumult and the shouting died, they couldn't even find the hat. "Sic transit gloria mundi."

If a man could only tell when people are through with him. If he would only see his audience slipping away from him one by one, and sneaking out of the hall, some of them slamming the door when they went out by way of emphatic interpretation; if he would only note the polite auditors yawning behind their programmes or fans; if he would only heed the rude man in the gallery crying out, sotto voce—and not too all-fired sotto, "Ain't the man got any friends?" If he would only note these indications of satiety, so plain to every one else, with what grace and triumph he might make his exit, followed by thunders of applause.

But no; he stays on, and on, and on, like the endless speaker who begins his banalities by saying, "I am no orator," and then occupies two hours to prove what he admitted. And what everybody in the room knows even better than himself.

"Give Him the Hook!"

And at last grim Fate, her patience worn to a frazzle, standing unseen in the wings, extends the relentless hook of doom. Cold as a finger of ice it fits around the neck of the Everlasting Drool—his final "As I said before," or his lying assertion that something which hadn't been said reminded him of a Ramesian anecdote which he was preparing to tell wrong, chokes away into a strangling gurgle and he is dragged off the stage sideways, scrambling and resisting, a pitiful object disgraced, ungraceful, unhonored and unlamented. Serves him right. When he knew so well that he couldn't do it, why should he keep on not doing it?

Many a man has been hooked off the stage with inglorious compulsion who would have left a radiant record by dying ten years before the time of the hook. Many a man would have gone gracefully into sweet and hallowed retirement, followed by the grateful affection of appreciative men, had he had the good sense and conscience to stop the hour he heard himself strike twelve. Everybody else heard it.

A Mean Imposition.

It imposes a most ungracious duty upon the man with the hook to compel him to his disagreeable task of hauling Superfluous Lags, the veteran, off the stage at the end of his act, when he refuses to make his proper exit and leave the stage clear for the Second Citizen or the Roman army or the Distressed Maiden. One man can have the center of the stage throughout the entire play. When the act closes what more is there for Hamlet to say? When the runner has faithfully "finished his course," even if it be only a five-mile straightaway, it adds nothing to his prize to run ten miles further? I believe the most colossal failures in life come because the man didn't stop when he was successful. Only a little while ago a most distinguished United States Senator compelled his constituents most reluctantly and regretfully to slam him down like a brick house in a cyclone, because he wanted to be once more re-elected when he was nearly 100 years old.

Blessed be St. Hook, the rescuer of the superannuated and protector of the persecuted.

The Play.

OPERA TRYOUTS FOR THE "MET."

TWO OPERAS BY LAMBARDI HERE THIS FALL.

"Cavalleria," "Il Grillo del Focolare," "Tsotsel," and Probably New Giordano Music-Drama — Coast Opera Corporation Formed. "Bought and Paid For" Coming.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

As a play-maker "Old Man" Lambardi, the melancholy genius of Italian opera on the Pacific Coast, has failed signally, and if the plans he is working at present carry through successfully next month will see the birth of his biggest organization—a permanent opera company for the cities of San Francisco and Los Angeles, primarily, and in secondary fashion for the whole western country this side of the Missouri River.

Gaetano Lambardi has completed the organization of a corporation known as "The Pacific Coast Opera Company." He is president and general manager, and will, in the future, make his home in San Francisco, and will divide equal seasons of opera each year between and in the northern city.

Points of especial interest in the plans are that of the Cort theater in Oakland and the Hamburger Majestic will have will this autumn see some very interesting American premiers, and that the company and orchestra will be a California-made, only the conductor and the principals being brought from Europe.

If it is practical, Lambardi will have an opera chorus this year of young American women. This is being advocated by his associates, but Lambardi himself says he has yet to see young American girls who are willing or able to sing a whole choral repertoire in Italian for a chorus person's salary. However, he is willing to give the American girls a chance, and there is at least a little ray of hope that talent will shine out from the back row. This is not prophecy, however—merely a sort of Arcadian possibility.

Bruno Zirato, editor of the Italian newspaper in San Francisco, is now in Europe signing principal contracts, most of the names of which have already been mentioned here. The most noted is Tarquinia Tarquini, soprano of Hammerstein's London forces.

Lambardi is to give the American premiere of Mascagni's much-exploited opera, "Tsobel," written for Lina Abbott and the stellar uses of Miss Abbott, but never produced because of an altercation over terms.

The first western presentation of Richard Strauss's "Salome" will also be made, with a special cast of principals brought for this work alone.

A new Italian opera called "Conchita" and another very promising work, "Il Grillo del Focolare," are to receive their official try-outs here, as is the past Morosco tried out vehicles for Edgar Selwyn and others. This is said to be done with the official sanction and the overseeing eye of the Metropolitan Operahouse and the Ricordi publishing firm of Milan, the greatest music trust in the world. Riccardo Zadenal, a new light in the world of music-drama, is the author of the last named.

There will probably be a new work produced by Giordano, the author of "Mme. Butterfly."

All of the usual repertoire will be presented, and in addition "Thais" and "Manon" in French.

Lambardi has also ordered a complete set of scenery and costumes for Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West," though he doubts whether this work will be presented, as it was generally received with little favor on the Coast last year.

The company will be assembled for rehearsal in San Francisco, late in August, and will be put through a number of strenuous weeks.

The opening of the season will be at the Cort Theater in San Francisco, October 22, with one of the new works. After one month at the Cort, the company will move to the Hamburger Majestic, Los Angeles, and play a month. It will then tour the West in stands of a few days duration, the balance of the season.

The premiers of the new pieces will be equally divided between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The head of Fortuno Gallo, the Italian little manager who turned Lambardi's usual tide of defeat into a great wave of success last year, is very apparent in these virile efforts.

August 26, at the Hamburger Majestic Theater, the original company of George Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For" will appear, making the direct jump from Brady's Playhouse in New York City, where they have been playing continuously since early last fall.

Los Angeles is the first stop outside of metropolis.

This cast, as those who follow theatric affairs of course know, includes Charles Richman, Frank Craven, Ruth Dean and Marie Nordstrom.

Lotti Lotti Collins, English comedienne, heads the incoming Pantages bill. The comedienne is on her way from Antipodean triumphs to fill a New York engagement, with the Pantages circuit as interim. This is the first appearance of Lotti Collins second in America. "A Night in the Edelweiss" is the catchy title of the week's feature act. Pantages headliner for the coming week. The act is described as a miniature musical comedy of the old garden type with half a score of well-known vaudeville singers and comedians in the cast.

The feature act will be Romano Tozart in a Greek art and ancient statue demonstration. As an added attraction the show will have Carl Rosini and Mlle. Marguerite in a series of novel stage illusions. Bond Lee, monologist, who will dispense "nonsensology." A musical comedy offering is schedulied under the title of Rubes and Zillhauer.

The Sullivan and Considine Road show, one of the most important and influential events in popular priced vaudeville will come to the Empress theater, Monday afternoon.

The Road Show bill is headed by Will Rossing satire on prison life entitled "With Life in Jail," which is generally considered as one of the most substantial laughing successes that has come to the vaudeville stage. The second feature of the Road show will be the noted comedian, Walter E. Knight, known as the original Rube from Maine, who with his comedy hit, "The Chalk Line," will be seen in the one act comedy on the Road Show bill will be Gilmore on the current Troubadours. McIntyre and Greves, who will offer their big singing comedian, Harry Greves, and the Four Mayos in a comedy equilibrist act. Exclusive of these new acts will be the new comedy and news picture.

The biggest event ever in vaudeville here, and the admitted dramatic sensation of the week, is the promised coming, beginning next Monday, at the Orpheum, of "Mme. Butterfly," the joint Belasco-Beck production of the original Belasco one-act dramatization of John Luther Long's story of the same name, "Butterfly," as all do not know, was never anything but a one-act play, being so given by Blanche Bates when she made her debut as a star.

It is as usual surrounded by a typically fine Orpheum bill. The five original Periscoffs, a European juggling family, are marvelous in their ensemble work, and clever as single handlers of articles. Ray L. Royce brings his interpretations of characters seldom seen, and Edna Luby, a clever English girl, mimics most artistically notables of the day. The Elliott Savonas, "The Concealed Bed," Ed Wynn and the Boudini brothers remain.

For the closing week of the Fischer's Follies season at his Lyceum, "Pop" Fischer will present May Boley and his organization in a big revival of "Tillie's Nightmare," her, and the organization's, most successful presentation during the season now closing. It will go on Sunday for one week only, with the original cast and chorus, intact in every detail. It should prove a fitting finale attraction for the fine organization and especially for May Boley.

The following week will usher in the summer season of silly shows with Rice and Cady at the head of a clever company of farceurs; many of them now in the Follies ranks, and with the present chorus largely retained. For Rice and Cady, the popular priced scale will go into effect.

Kolb and Dill and their merry, nimble and musically-inclined associates, are giving their last performances of "Dream City" at the Majestic Theater this week, there being only four more performances of this bright, breezy, funny and tuneful Victor Herbert musical comedy success. "Dream City" offers to Max Dill the best opportunities he has had during the present engagement of the Kolb and Dill Company, while his associate in fun, Clarence Kolb, is a close contender for comedy honors in his role of Heine Haufbrau, the village hackman. Nothing quite so funny as the wrestling match between these two comedians has been seen on the local stage, while Dill's oratorical effort is a comedy forensic gem that nightly provokes roars of laughter.

Next week the Majestic Theater will remain dark for one week, during which time the Kolb and Dill Company will give up their entire time to the fine rehearsals and preparations for the first production on any stage of "Peck o' Pickles," Frank Stammers's new musical comedy, which will be given on Sunday night, August 4.

The tremendous popularity of Hartley Manners's comedy of youth, "Peg o' My Heart," which is now enjoying its ninth consecutive week of unbounded success at the Burbank Theater has completely upset the plans of the managers of the two most important stock companies of this country. At the San Francisco Alcazar, Frederic Belasco is patiently awaiting

SOCIETY

Mrs. Walter J. Schmahl,

Who has returned from Arizona, where with her husband, she has made her home for many months. She is with her mother, Mrs. W. J. Brodrick of South Figueroa street.

THE elaborate birthday party tendered Mrs. Felix Hoech by her husband, at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jensen, No. 1217 Ardmore avenue, one day this week, will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to have been among the guests. Incidentally, the occasion also commemorated the birthday of Mrs. Jensen, thus making the affair doubly enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoech, with their son, Albert, are visitors in this city, having arrived from Chicago this week for an extended stay, and their coming, after an absence of several years was a delightful surprise. Friends and relatives sharing the feast were seated at two long tables decorated with red carnations and ferns. A large birthday cake further adorned the cover of the honoree.

Plates were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jensen, Walter Jensen, Robert Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. G. Karstens, Herman Karstens and Mr. and Mrs. H. Gutsch, Charles Abb, Mr. and Mrs. A. Clabes, Miss Charlotte Clabes, Miss Margaret Clabes, Miss Mildred Clabes, Mrs. John Braled, Miss Ella Braled and Madame Antonio Earl.

Miss Whitnah Hostess.

Complimentary to her house guest, Miss Georgia Clark of Fresno, Miss Mildred Whitnah, No. 2091 West Adams street entertained yesterday with a bridge party, having as guests twenty young friends. Shasta daisies and greenery decorated the rooms. Miss Whitnah was assisted by Miss Eva Clark, sister of the honoree.

Saunders of St. Paul, Minn., which was solemnized at the home of the bride-elect's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Galt Barnwell, No. 942 West Thirteenth street, Rev. H. H. Fisher officiating.

The wedding marches were played by an orchestra and Miss Jessie Winder sang "O, Perfect Love" and "Call Me Thine Own." Little Marjorie Simmonds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simmonds, in a white frock, assisted as flower girl and the only other attendant was Miss Florence Barnwell, who served her sister as maid of honor. She was attired in a handsome gown of pink satin and carried an arm cluster of Killarney roses. J. Thompson McMillan of St. Paul stood with Mr. Saunders as best man. The bride was handsome in an elaborate creation of white charmeuse and Bohemian lace. A spray of orange blossoms, held in place the long tulle veil and she carried orchids with a shower of lilies of the valley.

The service was spoken in the large drawing-room, which glowed with hydrangeas and quantities of beautiful ferns. Pink roses in profusion were used in the dining-room, where a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders will reside in St. Paul.

Sunshine Club.

Members of the Sunshine Five Hundred Club were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. T. T. Hines at Long Beach at their last meeting. Luncheon was served and later bathing was enjoyed. Dr. C. E. Phillips is one of the interesting visitors at the Lankershim, where he arrived yesterday from New York. He is on his way back to Ancon, in the Canal Zone of Panama, where he has been located several years. "Sanitation conditions have never been better than they are today, and the government is not relaxing a particle in the campaign for the health of the workmen on the big undertaking," he said.

F. McManus, who more than thirty years ago entered Mexico as a soldier of fortune, is passing a few days at Hollenbeck, where he is registered from Torreon. He is reported millionaire eight times over, and of the very active developers of Mex. He married into one of the old Castilian families of the country, and with unerring foresight took over the dormant properties of his wife and made them fruitful and lucrative.

George E. Fleury, a manufacturer and jobber in importer of fine laces, is passing a few days at the Hayward, where he is registered from New York. E. C. Schoster of Milwaukee is a wholesale dealer in dress goods. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Banta are guests at the hotel. Banta is an author and has his home in Albany.

David Bellamy is passing a few days at the Westminster. He is a New York real estate operator. B. W. Young, a mining engineer, whose home is in New Castle, Pa., and Grant K. Lewis, a Cincinnati broker, are also guests at the same hotel.

William Baer, a Salt Lake candy manufacturer, and his wife are staying at the Lankershim. H. D. Gaskill, sales manager of the Du Pont de Nemours Powder Company on the Pacific Coast, is registered at the hotel from San Francisco.

Edward Kelly of Bakersfield is passing a few days at the Hollenbeck. He is interested with Sam Blythe in the oil business, and is a brother of the Sheriff of Kern county. Charles B. Shanks, manager of the Wyckoff, Church & Partridge Company, automobile trucks and machines, of San Francisco, with T. F. Burke, detective sergeant of police of the same city, is at the hotel.

Rev. G. B. Lefingwell, a clergyman of the Episcopal church, is registered at the Alexandria from London. He is on a tour of the world.

Arthur Mc Drake, manager of the Middleton Motor Car Company of San Francisco, and Alex Gilbert, manager of Schuemler & Co., of the same city, are guests at the hotel.

CAUGHT IN SPEED TRAP.

Thirty-Three Automobilists Haled Into Court and All But Two Fined. One Wants Jury Trial.

Thirty-three automobile and motorcycle speeders paid an aggregate of $570 into the county treasury yesterday, after a hearing before Justice Forbes. Motorcycle men Anderson, Canton, Blaylock, Thompson and Nelson made the arrests, mostly on the beach roads.

Although he pleaded it is his first offense, R. R. Vejr was fined $10. Vejr was arrested by Thompson Saturday night; but a couple of hours later his machine had overturned on West Adams street, outside the city limits, and three of the six occupants were so seriously injured that their lives are despaired of.

The arrests were made with the aid of the new telephone speed trap, operated by four men.

Those who paid fines, and the amounts: R. R. Vejr, $10; J. F. Lakin, $15; E. Hallsmith, $25; R. E. Fleming, for traveling without lights, $10; E. G. Broda, $20; E. Stark, $10; D. Coleman, $25; C. N. Collins, $15; G. R. Brown, $15; F. J. Phillips, $25; E. J. Love, $15; H. E. Alston, $25; C. J. Lovejoy, $15; H. J. Howell, $15; O. S. Withall, $10; E. Price, $15; R. C. Smith, $15; W. Smythe, $25; P. Wilson, $15; L. Y. Hill, $5; R. Carter, $15; W. G. Elton, $15; M. Hanbaur, $15; H. McClelland, $15; Fred Costa, $15; E. W. Chase, $25; H. Witter, $15; C. R. Swets, $15; A. J. Frazier, $25; G. R. Carter, $10; W. M. Murphey, $25; J. E. Facenire, $15. The case of H. B. Eakins was continued until August 7, and J. S. Woodruff demanded a jury trial, which was set for August 19.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

To Bite or Not to Bite.

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—[To the Editor of the Times:] Agitators against dog muzzling and for the recall of Dr. Powers at a recent meeting declared that all dogs taken to the pound were in danger of vivisection.

If this be true, many would sign these petitions on the strength of that claim alone. If it is not true people should not be misled in thus giving their support. Dr. Powers could by proving the falsity of such a statement, put an end to the movement.

Vivisection and muzzling are two different things, with nothing in common, except that they both pertain to dog.

Why do not dog lovers put their energies into abolishing vivisection, an unspeakable and by far greater evil?

Even if every family kept a dog, race suicide not being prevalent among canines, the supply would soon exceed accommodations. Would these same dog lovers consent to provide for the surplus, and likewise for all their probable descendants? Emphatically no!

Which is most humane: to allow dogs to stray with neither food nor water, thus in danger of becoming rabid, or else a quick, painless death?

They deny the existence of hydrophobia. Then would any of them submit to being inoculated with the saliva of an obviously rabid dog? I am convinced that none would be willing to thus put their theory to the test nor covet the honor of going down in history as the saviour of dogkind.

They also declared at their meeting that when death occured from the bite of a dog that the dog was never mad, only vicious and the disease not hydrophobia, merely blood poisoning. What difference does it make, in the name of common sense, what state the dog was in, or what the name of the disease, as long as death was caused by a dog.

The fact that a dog's bite may cause death under any circumstance is enough excuse to muzzle them.

Of proper size and adjustment a muzzle is not a torture, only discomfort. For heaven's sake what does the comfort of a thousand dogs compare with a human life. These people think not. It is just that attitude that makes it often more desirable to be born a pampered, manicured poodle, than a human being.

Hoping that every dog will have his day. I at the same time love not dogs the less, but children more.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Humane Animal Commission.

LOS ANGELES, July 23.—[To Editor Times:] A hand-bill of the Anti-Vivisection Society has been brought to my attention in which the claim is made that living dogs have been transferred from the city pound to medical colleges. In no single instance have we disposed of any dog in any other way than by killing with gas as prescribed by the city ordinance. These people are doubtless sincere. It is a pity their enthusiasm cannot be enlisted in a worthier cause. If infantile paralysis is like other infectious diseases, its cause and prevention will doubtless be discovered through animal experimentation.

By consent of Deputy District Attorney Keyes, Justice Reed yesterday postponed until September 4, the preliminary examination of E. W. Pritchard, charged with manslaughter. Pritchard's automobile struck and killed Herbert D. Stokes, June 24, while returning to Los Angeles from the Vernon "Country Club." It is charged that Pritchard was intoxicated at the time.

BRADFORD BAKING CO.

AN UNBLEMISHED COMPLEXION ALL SUMMER LONG

Almost every woman has experienced the annoyance of going to the beach or the mountains and immediately getting tanned or freckled and not being able to get rid of it until way into the Winter. This is wholly unnecessary, if you will take along a jar of Dean's Freckle Salve in your suitcase. This scientific preparation is guaranteed to remove and cure even the worst cases of freckles and tan, and moreover, it leaves the complexion in a far better condition than when its use was begun. It means a great deal to men and women to keep the complexion clear and healthful—and there is absolutely no reason for having facial blemishes that come from the Summer sun's rays. Go to your druggist today and ask him to supply you with Dean's Freckle Salve at 25c or 50c (in the blue and yellow "freckle" package)—take nothing else, because there is no substitute. If he is unable to supply you, send 50c or 60c to the Sun Drug Co., 300 N. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, Cal., and you will be supplied promptly by mail.

ALCO

Just Fifty-seven 1912 Alcos Remain to be Sold

THIS has been a great year for the Alco—only 57 cars left of the 1912 allotment, and these destined to be sold long before next year's models are announced.

And so in motoring, as in almost everything else, merit always tells.

Nearly every owner of Alco cars who bought a 1912 model, again selected the Alco. Of the Alcos sold 65 per cent were to those who owned other motor cars—most of them $5,000 and $6,000.

The 1912 Alco has converted the motorists whose experience led them readily to recognize rare beauty, greater riding ease, superior engineering, superior building such as the Alco possesses.

This analysis of Alco ownership speaks with eloquence of the combination of motor car virtues in the 1912 Alco. New lines—long, straight, low, simple—comfort in soft, deep, rich upholstery, culture in the little things, its strong, clean chassis.

All these unite to give the Alco a personality rare among motor cars.

Californians and Princeton Stars Meet Today.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LAKE FOREST (Ill.) July 24.—Sensational matches marked the fourth day's play in the western tennis tournament at the Onwentsia Club heath, Byford of Chicago defeating C. B. Herd of Pasadena, Cal., in a long-drawn-out match, 9-7, 3-6, 7-5, while W. E. Mace of Princeton defeated J. J. Armstrong of St. Paul 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Most of the matches in the third round of the men's singles and most of those in the second round of the men's doubles were completed today. Women's events were not rushed, but it is expected that there will be no difficulty in finishing them on schedule time.

California against Princeton is the order for tomorrow. W. H. Mace of Princeton will meet T. C. Bundy of Los Angeles, while H. H. Braly of Los Angeles will play G. M. Church of Princeton. This will bring the tourney to the semi-final round, to be played Friday, leaving Saturday open for the final and challenge matches.

Byford and Herd put up a brilliant struggle, Byford's experience bringing him victory. He allowed Herd to tire himself smashing the ball, and by clever placing made the Pacific Coast man chase about the court until tired.

H. H. Braly of Los Angeles was given a hard contest by J. S. Cushman of New York, but finally won out, 6-4, 6-3. Cushman did some brilliant defensive back court work, but the Californian's speed wore him out before the second set.

T. C. Bundy of Los Angeles had no trouble beating Morris Johnson of Chicago, 6-2, 6-1.

Miss May Sutton and Miss Mary Browne of California easily won their first two matches in the women's singles. Miss Sutton defeated Miss Jessie Gregg of Kalamazoo, Mich., in the first round, 6-0, 6-1, while Miss Browne defeated Mrs. Latimer of Chicago, 6-2, 6-3 in the first round, and Miss Evelyn Seavey of Chicago, 6-1, 6-4 in the second.

Miss May Sutton, Los Angeles, defeated Miss Barbara Thomson, Chicago, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles won her first match in the women's singles in the Western Tennis Tournament today from Mrs. J. B. Latimer of Chicago, 6-2, 6-3. Miss Browne outclassed the Chicago woman at all stages of the game and never was in danger of losing.

In the men's doubles John C. Neely of Chicago and Roland Hoerr of St. Louis defeated A. H. Scribner and A. C. Potter of Omaha in a straight set, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4. This defeat put both Omaha men out of the tournament, both having lost singles.

"BILL" REIDY AIRS TROUBLES.

FEELS PRETTY GLOOMY AFTER DROPPING TWO STRAIGHT.

Man With the Burden Says Money Can't Buy Good Talent Because There Is None to Be Had—Thinks He Has Picked Up Some Boys Who Will Make Good.

"Well, we're doing everything we can to build up a winning team, and if we don't win the games, it isn't my fault,' said "Bill" Reidy, manager of the Seals, after the game yesterday.

"Bill" was a very dejected person. He walked off the field with the air of a man who has just received a belated telegram to the effect that the old homestead has burned down.

"Don't I try to win?" he continued. "I can't follow the men down the base lines and do their thinkin' for them.

"Yes, sir; we're doin' everything that can be done under the canopy of heaven to get a live team. There isn't a thing that Cal Ewing and I haven't tried. You simply can't get good talent. Money—and big gobs of it—can't get them. Connie Mack is a close friend of mine. He would do anything for me, but in reply to repeated requests for aid he says:

"'Bill, I can't do anything for you. There aren't any live ones loose.'

ALMOST EVEN BREAK.

"As a matter of fact, we haven't done so badly since I succeeded Danny Long as manager. I was doing a little figuring the other day, and I found out that we had only lost one game less than .500 since I took hold of the team. And it was a shot-up aggregation when I became manager.

"I have been trying out a number of new boys and switching the older men about in an effort to hit upon a strong combination. I have been criticised for making so many changes, but I am not doing it blindly.

"'What t'll did you play Schmidt in right field for, Monday?' one guy asked me. Well, Mundorff and Gedeon were unable to play and Schmidt was the best man for the place, that's all.

WUFFLI A GOOD ONE.

"I picked up a good one in this fellow Wuffli, who came down from the Spokane club of the Northwestern League. Del Howard has bad ankles just now, but when he is right we all know he ranks right up at the top.

"Feltz is a boy I picked up at Willows about six weeks ago. He is raw, but I believe he has the makin's of a good one.

"I honestly believe the boys are trying to win, and when things break against us, it's mostly bad luck."

"Flame" Delhi joined the Seals yesterday. Reidy said he permitted "Flame" to pitch for the Stockton team Sunday, as the big boy had been off color, and he thought the practice would do him good.

Heaver McCorry is to break into camp today. He didn't come south with the team, as he had a bad ankle that needed repairing, and he remained behind to have it attended to.

"Willie's Went."

SCORNFUL IS SPARK-PLUG.

Rivers Has Joined Barney Oldfield Class.

Inside Chatter About the Mandot Fight.

What Willie Ritchie Needs Is a Manager.

"Willie's went," announced "Spark Plug" McClosky briefly as he came in last night and sat down on the copy desk.

"Spark Plug" is the chauffeur who has toted so many sporting men around in his automobile; he is one of the famous characters of the sport world.

Someone asked him if he referred to Willie Ritchie.

"Who did you think I meant—Willie Bryan? He went a long time ago," replied "Spark Plug" with terrible sarcasm.

"I took Ritchie down to the train in my wagon," he continued. "Willie felt awful bad about not getting this match with Rivers. On the level, you could hear him cryin' as far as you could see the train. Willie thinks he had ought to have had this fight on account of him being a native son.

"Honest, ain't that an awful line of talk these Frisco lads give you about this native-son stuff? When a baby is born in Frisco they slip him the State yell and the lodge sign and tell him the pass word to whisper to the native referre if he feels himself slippin'.

Spark-Plug McClosky.

THAT MANDOT FIGHT.

"It's too bad that Uncle Tom McCarey had already promised Joe Mandot the fight before Willie Ritchie got here, isn't it?" said someone.

"Git off my foot; I'm stranglin'," retorted "Spark Plug" cuttingly. "They got this Mandot match for Joe like they threw a life mat to a feller in the water."

"It's this way," said "Spark Plug" confidentially, "ever since Fourth of July, Ritchie has been after Tom McCarey and Joe Levy to get a match with Rivers. He wore all the telegraph lines to a mere thread, but he couldn't get nothing out of either one of them. So Willie gets himself a ticket on the rattler.

"When he gets down here, Uncle Tom McCarey tells him he is a perfect little gentleman and he likes him fine, but Willie can't get him to talk business. So Willie sobs out his story to some of them newspaper guys. I heard him telling it to Jay Davidson. 'And me,' I heard him saying 'A California boy, too.' Jay, he says to Willie that he's the logical man to fight Rivers all right. Then Ed O'Malley, he comes up and Willie says it to him.

WIRES TO MANDOT.

"That was enough for Uncle Tom. He ducks into the other room with a telegraph blank and fires a wire through to Mandot."

"What was in the message?" asked some one.

"I ain't sure," said Spark Plug "whether the message said: 'Help; help' or 'S.O.S.;' but, anyhow it fetches Mandot."

"Do you think Rivers is afraid of Mandot?"

"Not a bit; not a bit," said Spark Plug heartily. "I know he ain't because I seen a letter his manager writes to the papers from San Diego, saying he ain't. He is anxious to fight Willie and will sign articles to meet him in 1913. All he asks is that Willie make 100 pounds ringside weight."

"Do you think Willie will ever get a match with Joe Rivers?" some one asked him.

WILLIE NEEDS MANAGER.

"Well," admitted Spark Plug, "he might if he gets a manager. The trouble with Willie Ritchie and Freddie Welsh and a lot of them lads is they try to run a car without no chauffeur. Willie is a nice child and the clerk at the Alexandria says he's a perfect gentleman, but when it comes to making fight matches, he's got about as much chance against a wise gazupe like Joe Levy as a fish worm would have agin the Princess Rajah's fifteen-foot snake."

"Well, it ought to be a good hard fight; Mandot is a classy boy," interrupted the fight editor.

"Don't tell me stuff like that," said Spark-plug, disgustedly; "I got a weak heart."

"Well," insisted the fight editor.

"Well, I ain't trying to crab Mandot," said Spark-plug. "He used to be a good boy, but he's a last year's model.

LIKE BARNEY.

"It looks to me like Joe Rivers and Barney Oldfield are on the same game. They have both worked up a big 'rep' and have stopped real racing. They take a played-out car like Joe Mandot and throw the muffler off and let 'im sputter around the nick circuits and the county fairs.

"Joe Mandot used to be a real one and Rivers can cash in one good house on him before the public discovers he's slippin'."

"Is he as bad as that?"

"Well," said Spark-plug, "you seen Owen Moran out there the other day at Vernon. Can you imagine that poor old plug fighting Joe Rivers? Well, he knocked Mandot cold, only the referee kept on countin' and countin' until the boy could come to and get up. Honest, they tell me Mandot laid there so long on the mat they thought mortification had set in.

DON'T BLAME RIVERS.

"Of course," continued "Spark Plug," "I ain't blaming Rivers any. They are going to take away the free lunches and we all got to work for living. Joe has had a hard time building up this rep. If I seen a feller like Ritchie lurking around the yard I'd stick around the house and spend a quiet afternoon with my books. I ain't blamin' Rivers."

"It will be disappointing news for the fight fans," ventured some one.

"It'll be good news for Ad Wolgast," said "Spark Plug." "The last time I see Ad Wolgast was on the way to San Francisco.

"'Don't tell any of these newspaper guys about Ritchie fightin' Rivers,' says Ad. 'I want another whack at the Mexican myself.'

"'What's the matter of you fighting the Mexican after Ritchie gets through with him,' says I—just like that.

"'Cause there won't be any Mexican when Ritchie gets through with him,' said Ad—just like that."

BALLOONS IN TRYOUT.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) July 24.—[By A. P. Night Wire to The Times.] Two full-size racing balloons of eighty thousand cubic feet capacity will represent Kansas City in the national elimination contest starting here Saturday to choose three American representatives for the James Gordon Bennet trophy race in Germany this fall. If all entered start twelve huge balolons will be cut loose on the aviation field.

PHOENIX ROAD RACE DATE IS SET.

The Los Angeles to Phoenix Road Race which will start October 26, will be run over the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway route. This decision was reached at a meeting presided over by George Purdy Bullard at the Hollenbeck hotel yesterday afternoon.

At midnight, the last car will start from the Hollenbeck hotel or some other point named by John S. Mitchell, official representative of the Maricopa Automobile Club. Entries will close at midnight, October 10.

Two Straight.

ANGELS SOAR TOWARD TOP.

Again Vanquish Seals and Take Second Place.

Reidy's Men No Match for Snappy Opponents.

"Cack" Henley Disgusted at Listless Support.

Los Angeles, 5; San Francisco, 4.

The flying Angels took another fall out of the Seals yesterday afternoon, and assisted by Vernon's defeat of the Oaks, jumped into second place in the league race.

The kind of ball that the Angels have been putting up this week is hard to beat. Yesterday the men were full of "pep." They were up on their toes all the time and although the Seals again outbatted them, the timely hitting of the local men, together with their snappy field work in the pinches, brought them out on top. Reidy's warriors did not show anywhere near the amount of determination and quick-thinking that marked the Angels' playing and for that reason they didn't win.

SEALS CAN'T PRODUCE.

Slagle, who was on the mound for the Angels, was touched up for a dozen bingles in first six innings. But seven of them didn't send a man across the pan. Only in the sixth frame did the Seals really do any effective work. There they got four men home and made a big splurge, but the Angels already had five tallies stowed away and they were enough to win. Reidy's team played a listless game. Unless the men can get more ginger into their work they can't expect to do much. "Bill" tries hard, but his enthusiasm doesn't seem to be very catchin'.

The Angels opened up strong and before the end of the second period, had three runs chalked up. Two more in the fourth gave them such a good margin that when the Seals finally landed on Slagle in a bunch in the sixth, they didn't do any damage despite the fact that they garnered a quartette of tallies.

" CACK" GOES TO ROOST.

"Cack" Henley was taken out after the fourth frame, but it was too late. The Angels had done the work. "Red" Toner, who was driven off the hill the day before, relieved Henley and he showed that he isn't bad every day. During the remainder of the game the Angels were unable to add to their score and they got only two hits. Even "Heinie" Heitmuller, who had taken "Red's" measure in Tuesday's match, was easy prey for Toner.

"Cack" probably didn't try as hard as he might have done, after the second inning. He seemed pretty well disgusted with the way in which the team behind him was playing. In the fourth period "Cack" threw his glove into the dust and looked ready to quit, when Ivan Howard's hit got through the infield between first and second. It looked as if McArdle might have got the ball if he had tried hard.

RALEIGH HOLDS OAKS TO TWO DINKY HITS.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] "Southpaw" John Raleigh of Vernon held the mystic wand over the heads of the commuters this afternoon.

In the meantime, nearly every Vernonite managed to solve the twisters which Gregory sailed up to the plate. The result can be easily imagined. The southpaw made it a shut-out with only two little hits registered against him, while the right-hander was pounded and mauled and clouted by the Villagers until they were weary.

It was a 7 to 0 affair and one seldom sees good baseball when such a score is hung up. But that particular one was quite an exception to the rule that generally applies. They kept on their toes every minute of the time and they gave the fans an exhibition worth going a mile to see, even though the finish was 7 to 0. Although most of the rooters realized that Oakland was done for, the runs generally came in bunches and most of them were earned. The lonesome error of the day was made by Gregory and it boosted one of the Vallagers on his way to the plate. But one run did not make much difference in such a contest.

TIGERS UNBEATABLE.

Gregory was in for a beating, anyhow, and the very fact that he committed a boot cannot be held against him. The work of the Villagers was great to behold. They never gave a better exhibition since they were admitted into the Pacific Coast League. They were the class in every stage. Nobody who saw them perform would have doubted for a moment that they were the league leaders. But the inexperienced would have said, offhand, that the Commuters figure in the cellar. That is just how badly the southern southpaw showed them up.

The victory of the Villagers, coupled with the victory of the Angeles over the Seals on the Los Angeles diamond, puts Oakland in third place and places Los Angeles in the second hole, which Oakland has held on to all these months. Therefore the downfall of the Trans-Bay team was doubly disastrous.

Gregory did not pitch his usual game at all. He doubtless has discovered that the men from the South can wallop the kind which the men from our great metropolis falls so easily for. In other words, it makes a whole lot of difference to a pitcher when he goes up against the leader and when he faces a loser.

GREGORY GETS "HIS."

They gave Gregory his first touch of high life in the fourth round. Brashear hit to the right field fence and Bayless planted the ball at Gregory. In his anxiety to make a fast play at second the Oakland slabster tossed the ball away, so Brashear went as far as third. Next came Litschi, who picked off a pretty hit through short. On came Brashear to the rubber. Bayless got to second on this one. He moved up a notch on Burrell's out, Hetling to Sharpe, and rang the bell just as soon as Leard and Sharpe were busy getting rid of Agnew.

M'LOUGHLIN CAPTURES LONGWOOD TROPHY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, July 24.—Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco won the Longwood Lawn Tennis singles tournament today by defeating E. P. Larned of Summit, N. J., in the challenge match for the Longwood cup in straight sets. The scores were 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

As the result of the match the Longwood cup goes out of the Larned family for the first time in ten years. It was the first meeting in any large tournament of McLoughlin and E. P. Larned, and the latter proved no match whatever for the Pacific Coast star.

From the first few strokes there never was a moment that McLoughlin was not the master of the situation. His cross-court covering was sweeping in extent as well as swift and sure. His net play was like a stone wall, while off the ground he hit hard and accurately.

Larned fought well at the opening of the third set, but McLoughlin's pace was too fast. Throughout the three sets in which twenty-eight games were played, only seven went to deuce.

Aviator Falls Hundred Feet and Is Picked Up With Severed Arteries.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HEMPSTEAD (N. Y.) July 24.—Edward F. Gallaudet, a wealthy amateur aviator, well-known in New York, while flying on the aviation field, at Hempstead Plains, today fell with his machine from a height of about 100 feet and was seriously injured. Gallaudet was flying in his original type of monoplane, which is equipped with a 100-horse-power motor.

Mr. Gallaudet, who is well-nown in banking and social circles, had been successfully flying about the field and rose to make another flight. When about 100 feet in the air he made an acute right turn and his monoplane, evidently lacking sufficient momentum, dropped like a plummet, burying its nose in the ground.

Mr. Gallaudet still was unconscious when the hospital was reached. It was found that he had received a severe scalp wound, a deep cut on the chin and left eye. His right leg was so badly cut that an artery was severed.

Rumors Ripe That at Least Two Members of San Francisco Team Are Slated for Discard.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] A shae-up in the ranks of the San Francisco ball club is imminent, according to a rumor which persists in breezing its way along the Rialto. That all is not peace and quiet within the ranks of the local ball club is quite certain.

Though Cal Ewing is not sputtering adjectives profusely there is something in the wind. It is well known that several members of the local club are not giving satisfaction. This is not intended to mean that they have not been trying, but that they are slipping back. It was amply demonstrated last week. The same rumor which has been buzzing around from ear to ear has it that Claude Berry and Kid Mohler are the pair carded to go.

The Kid has not been playing the ball that he is accustomed to while his eye at the bat is still as good as ever, his speed is diminishing rapidly and his arm is not as strong as it used to be. Berry, too, appears to be in the same plight.

GANDIL FOLLOWING COBB'S FOOTSTEPS.

Chick Gandil has broken into the Ty Cobb class and his daring work on the bases is drawing a wail from the Philadelphia players, who charge that Gandil deliberately tried to spike Collins in a recent game on the Washington lot.

For two seasons the Athletics put up the cry that Cobb was trying to cut down Baker.

It is not likely that Gandil has a particular liking for Collins, for it will be remembered that during a game in Philadelphia a few weeks ago Collins's knee stopped Gandil when he attempted to steal second, fracturing his nose and blackening both his eyes.

There will probably be another accident at second before the season is over. Baseball spikes are dangerous, especially when a base runner uses them with malicious intent.

PACKY'S BROTHER DROWNS.

Dad Sank Suddenly in Wisconsin Lake—McFarland Wires for Particulars.

[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

CHIPPEWA FALLS (Wis.) July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Frank McFarland, 19-year-old brother of Packy McFarland, the pugilist, was drowned here today. He was spending his vacation at this place, and, while in bathing with companions, he sank suddenly, and drowned before he could be rescued. Packy wired for more particulars of the accident and prepared to come here to take charge of the body.

LAST OF DELEHANTYS.

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Have we seen the last of the Delehantys in major league baseball now that Jim has gone back to the minors? Ed was the "Daddy" of the all, as a rare ball player, but Jim had flashes of his elder brother's wonderful hitting powers. Both had the same straight-away style without "choking" their bats enough, but it went into right field for a single.

ANGELS IN SECOND PLACE

Reidy jawed with the "umps" a great deal over what he asserted were balks by Slagle. Wuffli was caught off first in the second and then Reidy started in to talk. In the fourth Mohler was also nipped in the same manner. Slagle also got Feltz, the bushwer that Reidy brought down from Willows yesterday, in the fifth, but this time Hildebrand called it a balk. This stirred the Angels up and there was more crabbing. But both Reidy and Howard soon forgot all about it.

BERGER COVERS GROUND.

The fielding of Joe Berger was a sight for sore eyes.

The way in which "Lim" gobbled up everything that was poked at him was the manner in which they do it in the big leagues. Chances that are hard for the ordinary fellow are easy for him. He was also there with a hit when a run was hanging in the balance.

If Reidy's men had followed up their advantages and displayed better head work, there was no reason why they shouldn't have won. They batted Slagle freely. Just to show how they failed to get runs when they had the chance, let's take a look at the fourth inning. "Kid" Mohler opened with a single through shortstop, but he was caught off first by Slagle. Howard got a pass and then Hartley hit to center. Daley threw to Metzger who threw to Howard, but Ivan dropped the ball and Hartley was safe at second and Del Howard was on third. Corhan hit to Metzger and "Metz" touched Del off third. Wuffli came up to bat but Hartley got too far off second and Slagle shot the pill to Ivan, who touched Hartley out. Here were three outs that might have been averted if the men had been more alert on the bases.

ANGELS START EARLY.

The Angels started to climb Henley's frame in the first inning. Howard, the first man up, connected for a single over Mohler's head. Berger laid down a bunt and reached first on Schmidt's wild throw. Ivan might have got home on the play, but he was talking to Mohler at second and when he woke up still had time to amble to third. Daley filed to Del Howard and Ivan trotted home, Del not attempting to make the throw to the plate. Heinie grounded out to Mohler. Then Del Moward muffed Smith's easy fly and Berger scored. Smith was caught trying to steal second.

In the next frame the Angels got three more hits and got another man across the platter. It looked like a walkaway. Metzger and Lober poked out singles, and Brooks followed with another, which sent Metzger home. But with Lober on third, Slagle grounded out to Wuffli, Howard fouled to Schmidt and Berger fanned.

ANOTHER KILLING.

Again in the fourth the Angelic band bunched three hits and earned a brace of tallies. They hit the ball at the right time. Metzger worked "Cack" for four balls and Lober came through with a sagrifice. Metzger went to third on Brooks's out. Then Slagle took a hand in the run getting by hitting to left for one base and sending Metzger across the rubber. Ivan followed with a hit to right that made Henley "sore" because the ball wasn't fielded. Joe Berger took advantage of the chance to get in another tally by doubling to center and causing Slagle to complete the circuit. With two out and men on second and third, "Pete" Daley ignominiously fanned.

REIDY'S BIG INNING.

The Seals made their big splurge in the sixth. They got four runs, but it was their dying effort. In the remaining innings they didn't get a hit. After Schmidt had popped to Slagle, Mohler started the ball rolling by dropping a Texas leaguer into left field. Del Howard followed with a single to center and Hartley hit to Ivan Howard, who fumbled, and the bases were loaded. Corhan hit to Slagle who threw Mohler out at the plate. Wuffli singled infield and Del Howard broke the ice for the Seals, the bases remaining full. Feltz also singled infield and Hartley scored. McArdle then doubled to right center and Corhan and Wuffli beat it to the pan. One more run was needed to tie the score, but there were two out, and Toner fanned, ending the period.

There was little doing after the sixth. The Seals had shot their wad and the Angels seemed contented to go along with their one-run lead.

PORTLAND WINS OUT IN LUCKY NINTH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.)—July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One of those ninth-inning rallies which furnish the spice of baseball life, gave Portland a 6 to 5 victory over Sacramento in the second game of the series today. Hits by Rogers and Fisher, and Irelan's costly bobbles, turned the trick.

With two men out and nobody on the bases and the Senators calmly enjoying the taste of a prospective 5 to 4 victory, Capt. Bill Rodgers armed himself with a heavy stick of timber and whacked out a three-bagger into deep center. The peanut vender lagged his steps. A couple of hundred fans lingered a moment at the exits.

Krueger rolled a slow grounder down to Shortstop Irelan, who booted the ball, and the score was tied. Krueger then made a dash for second base, but Irelan failed to cover in time, and the ball rolled far out to center field. Krueger pulling up at third.

Gus Fisher took his position facing Pitcher Williams. A base hit meant victory, and a victory it was. It only remains to tell that Fisher plunked his second single to left field, and rung the curtain down.

Klawitter started for Portland, and by the time the visitors had finished the first inning they had punctured Klawitter for four runs of their five. After that, Klawitter settled down and pitched remarkable ball to the finish, the only other dent in the scoring column coming in the second inning on a couple of hits and an error.

Portland began creeping up in the fifth inning and Fisher's single to left and a foozle on Klawitter's slow drive by Sheehan gave Portland the fourth tally in the eighth inning and made possible tha winning two-run rally in the ninth.

HUGE SEA BASS LANDED.

AVALON, July 24.—Five black sea bass, weighing over 1000 pounds in the aggregate, were caught today by R. M. Graham of Washington, D. C., and B. Thompson of Inglewood. The largest fish brought to gaff was fought by Mr. Graham for nearly two hours before it was landed. This fish tipped the scales at 325 pounds, and is the largest catch of this variety landed this season. The largest fish caught by Thompson weighed 189 pounds. Both anglers fished from the same launch.

Angels in Second Place.

Well, the Angels have gone and done it. Even if "Cap" is off the reservation and "Hen" Berry is at San Diego they have moved up into second place. But they have "Hap" Hogan as well as themselves to thank. Indeed, it's harder to grab two games off Oakland than to take two from the Seals. Here's hopin' that neither Vernon nor the Angels fall before second and may the best team win first.

"Spark-Plug" Chirps.

"Our Angel team ain't missing Dillon much," murmured "Spark-plug," the sporting chauffeur, who worked the sporting editor for a pass to the game yesterday. "It looks to me as if the boys are frisking about better'n they was on the bench. I've saw the team many times in the nort' and they always looked like they had a game on. Today they lookus if they'd all got a big piece o' money from home."

There's no reason in the world why sports at the beaches shouldn't boom throughout the summer.

SHOULD BOXING BE DEBARRED?

Some Pros and Cons by an Old Amateur.

IF a man said, "I think the whole race would be benefited by abstaining from fermented liquors," his stand would be correct and beyond cavil; if he said, "No one ought to be allowed to drink beer because I myself don't like the taste of it," he would be displaying a narrow and selfish spirit. It would be akin to saying "Roads ought to be abolished because I don't like walking."

So it seems to me those best qualified for presenting a petition to abolish all boxing contests, professional and amateur, are those who have been boxers themselves or who at least understand what boxing is. No doubt to a certain undesirable element an unwholesome excitement is afforded by such brutal exhibitions as the one witnessed last Fourth of July in Las Vegas, N. M. It might be cogent to abolish Flynn and Johnson on account of their bad boxing, but hardly reasonable to abolish boxing on account of its bad Flynns. The spectacle doesn't produce the brutality because the brutality supports the spectacle. A true reformer should go after the root of an evil, not merely prune away the part that shows.

Let us grant, however, that though the agitation against such exhibitions is a confusing of cause and effect, the community would certainly benefit by prohibiting all unnecessary displays of mere brute force. Have we any right to assume that because boxing can and has on occasions degenerated into a nasty slugging match, therefore all boxing contests throughout the State should be debarred by law?

A Portugese runner in the late Marathon dropped dead from exhaustion on the course. Yet no one claims in consequence that all running of races is brutal and demoralising and should be stopped by law. Many accidents happen on the football fields of America, and many superb foundations are laid on these same football fields of American grit and manhood.

Let us approach the subject of boxing from a sane and common-sense standpoint. A superheated editorial writer in an evening contemporary has been indulging in flaming generalities about the wickedness of boxing, comparing it to a fight with wild beasts or a bloody gladiatorial show of ancient Rome, with wine shops and the turning down of thumbs thrown in for good measure. This, after the same evening paper at five times its normal price had been selling special editions on the fourth of July with a full round-by-round account of the Wolgast-Rivers fight. Such people love to talk about their high ideals. I have heard the word "high" applied to'game and fish that have been kept too long. These ideals are high enough to smell to heaven but they will never reach there.

There are no doubt many objectionable features in ring contests as at present conducted. These could easily be done away with without abolishing boxing entirely. Boozing and betting need not necessarily accompany boxing because they all begin with B. Let us by all means agitate against boozing and betting but let us be straightforward and direct about it. Boxing in itself is one of the finest exercises for mind and body and spirit ever devised for developing the human race. To attain any excellence, whether as a professional or an amateur, entails an austerity and cleanliness of living, never unequalled since the early days of the Catholic Church among the members of its strictest monastic orders.

Many good people are opposed to boxing contests because they see or hear of its bad features and have never troubled themselves to look below the surface. The large sums of money made with such apparent ease no doubt rouse a lot of opposition. If we are really attacking the present boxing contests because they are draining away a stream of gold which otherwise might find its way into the channels in which we are more directly interested, let us say so honestly and make the fight a financial one. If we are real reformers we shall look to education rather than to prohibition to raise the general level of mankind. When everyone is properly educated, boxing will never develop brutal passions but only necessary muscles and pluck.

HARRY F. BOWLING.

SPORTING NOTES.

Canada Association football elevens play a summer tourney.

Bowling is booming in Toledo since the announcement that the 1913 American congress would be held there, starting February 22.

Philadelphia public high schools will not be permitted to play intercity athletic contests beginning this fall.

Minneapolis recently opened a $65,000 municipal bath-house.

The United States has nearly 20,000 athletes registered in the Amateur Athletic Union.

With few exceptions all the Australia foot races are decided over turf courses.

The Pacific Coast fair and racing circuit of harness horses will be started on its way at Vancouver in August, and will close at Phoenix in November. In all $235,000 in purses will be distributed in prizes.

The Delaware River Yacht Racing Association is in its second year, and includes eighteen clubs of Philadelphia and New Jersey, many of which are erecting pretty clubhouses at their headquarters in South Jersey.

Now that Germany has been awarded the 1916 Olympic games, the American athletes can look to the 1915 Panama-Pacific Exposition carnival of sports to be held in San Francisco as a good preliminary tryout. These will be the annual Amateur Athletic Union contests.

Andre Gobert, the wonderful French lawn tennis player, has one ambition. It is to win the singles championship at Wimbledon, which decides the English title, and the American championship at Newport. These competitions are played on grass courts, a surface not yet completely mastered by Frenchmen.

There are considerably over 1000 pigeon-racing societies in Great Britain, and some 200 women fanciers who enter for races for speed. Each of the societies offers prizes to its members, ranging in value from $100 to $1000, and it is the custom for the owners of birds to bet on their pigeon.

H. L. Doherty, the world's famous tennis player, who defeated all comers at the nets for many years, until he retired from the game at the death of his brother, has been heard from in another sport. He is now playing golf, and he already shows the same proficiency with the club as he did with the racquet.

Windsor (Canada) race course has just been improved by the erection of a magnificent new grand stand of steel, which is one of the finest ever built in Canada. The seating capacity of the stand is 6000, which, together with the room for standing, will accommodate 11,000 persons. The betting ring, restaurant, telegraph, newspaper and other offices are located under the stand, the floor of which is of concrete.

Nat J. Cartmell, the ex-University of Pennsylvania sprinting champion, is to meet William Martin, the former Pacific Coast sprinter, in two match races at 100 yards and 220 yards, for $500 a side and the gate receipts. The races will be run in one of the mining towns in Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania.

Westward Ho golfers of Chicago are sure of having their new course. They have secured options on 120 acres of ground, one and one-half miles west of Elmhurst, and extending from the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad tracks to the St. Charles road. The ground will cost $35,000. The club will secure possession this fall. A new $40,000 clubhouse will be built. The lease of the present property expires in 1914, and it is planned to have the new location in shape by that time.

A strong English polo team will probably take part in the annual championships at Narragansett Pier, Newport, this summer, playing against the strong English combinations, and there is also a possibility that the Argentine Republic squad will take part. The championship events consist of junior, senior and open contests, and will be decided between July 23 and August 17, interspersed with a number of polo association tournament events, which will include matches for the Watch Hill, Overture, Army and Navy and Atlantic cups.

NEW MOTORCYCLE RECORD.

NEW YORK, July 24.—[By A. P. Night Wire to The Times.] A new world's record for a measured mile on a motorcycle was made at the Brighton Beach motordrome last night by Arthur Chappie of New York. He drove the distance in 39 1-5 seconds. The track is a one-third-mile saucer.

WARD TO REMAIN HEAD OF BOSTON NATIONALS.

"John M. Ward has been elected to serve three years as president of the Boston Club," says Treasurer James Gaffney, "and he will serve out that term. Make that as strong as you will. If he does retire, if he gets out of baseball, I get out, too. I am in it because I can be in it with him. But for Ward I should not be here. I could have purchased this club before Mr. Russell did, but I wasn't ready then because Mr. Ward wasn't ready."

Could anything be stronger?

"Our team needs to be built up," Mr. Gaffney went on to say, "and we are going to build it up. Young blood and more speed are what we require, and what we are after."

WATER EXPERT MAY COME.

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Cecil Healy, Australia's veteran swimmer, may be seen in this country shortly and local watermen are looking forward with keen anticipation to his visit, for he is not only one of the fastest all round performers in the world, but a leading authority on the theory and science of the sport. Healy writes from Stockholm, "I am planning to do a little traveling after the conclusion of the Olympic games and may turn up any day in Los Angeles. It is quite on the card and I think it is time that I take a glimpse at that most interesting country of yours."

While there is nothing definite in the fighting game there are several good matches being talked of by Tom McCarey.

Knockout Brown was offered a match with Willie Ritchie, but he telegraphed that his leg was broken and would not fight in August, but was willing to take Ad Wolgast on in September. Knockout must be a wonder if he can recover from a broken leg in a month's time. The fact of the matter is, Brown has got a lot of advertising around New York and by many of those eastern experts he is not considered so much. He, no doubt, knows that Wolgast is the big thing and wants first crack at him. But McCarey says nothing doing until he meets either Joe Rivers or Willie Ritchie. McCarey has offered him the 9th of September date with Ritchie and is waiting for an answer.

That offer made by Fred Gilmore to match Jack White with Harry Thomas and agree that Jack will stop him inside of twenty rounds or forfeit his end of the purse is agreeable to Jimmy Johnson, Thomas's manager. Jimmy says he will take a chance on a proposition of that kind any time Fred shows that he means what he says.

Willie Ritchie left on the Lark for San Francisco last night. He is much disappointed that he could not arrange a match with Joe Rivers. Joe is coming for some criticism for not agreeing to fight Willie at 133 pounds at 12 o'clock. But Levy does not believe in matching Rivers with anybody that he has to give weight to. Who can blame Levy for this? Both Levy and Rivers believe that they should have the first chance at Wolgast after their last meeting caused so much dissatisfaction. They feel confident that Joe can win decisively next time and in the meantime do not care to take any chances with a heavier man. McCarey wants a Knockout Brown-Ritchie match, a Rivers-Mandot match, the winners of these two contests to meet and the winner of that meet Wolgast. But no matter who the winners are, no one can deny that Rivers is not entitled to a return match with Ad.

Willie Ritchie is entitled to some recognition here and McCarey is willing to give it to him, provided he can get the right man. Willie met Wolgast in a four-round go at 133, but it is a question that he could make 133 ring side (which he surely would have to do in a match with Wolgast,) and be as strong as he should. When he met Welsh here he weighed 139 pounds.

Now that the Attell-Thomas match is off, there is some talk of matching Jimmy Evans and Dick Hyland and Thomas and some one else for a twenty-round go each.

Jimmy Evans has a friend that is willing to back him for $1000 in a twenty-round match with Willie Ritchie. Evans and Ritchie box very much alike and are about the same size and weight.

Little Jimmy Austin is anxiously waiting for Tom McCarey to dig up another 105-pound boy for him. Jimmy said yesterday afternoon that he had a chance to go back East with Jimmy Johnson later in the year and meet some of those eastern bantams. Jimmy would make any of those boys step some to beat him in six or ten rounds.

Rattling Chico is waiting to hear from Jimmy Fox of San Francisco. Chico is anxious to try his hand with some of the better class of bantams, but said he would absolutely refuse to fight at night. He said yesterday: "The last time I fought at night I did not know what I was hitting at. I cannot see good to box at night, but in the daytime I can see as good as anybody."

Harry Burns is trying to match Jack Donovan with Dan McCleod in a wrestling match. But as Mr. Freak Garbutt is on his vacation and will probably not be back for a month, Dan can do nothing until he returns. McCleod is under a contract with the L.A.A.C. and can enter no matches without permission. Dan is as anxious as Donovan, but will have to wait until later.

At Detroit.

QUEEN WORTHY WINS BIG STAKE AS CROWD HOOTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DETROIT (Mich.) July 24.—After five fierce-fought heats, in the first four of which a different horse finished in front each time, Queen Worthy, owned and driven by Thomas W. Murphy of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was declared winner of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' $10,000 stake for 2:24 class trotters, in the Grand Circuit races this afternoon. No starter was able to capture three of the five heats raced. Queen Worthy, having the best standing at the end of the race, received the major portion of the purse.

In both the first and fifth heats the decision of the judges in placing Murphy's mare in front was met with hoots and jeers from the stands. The Wanderer seemed to have won by half a length in the first heat, and Bierne Holt by a head in the fifth, and the crowd refused to be satisfied with the official verdict.

Murphy apparently saved Queen Worthy for a supreme effort, as he never was a strong contender in the second, third or fourth rounds. But at the word for the fifth start he sent his mare out in front and she led all the way to the wire, though tiring at the end. Bierne Holt, coming fast and strong, seemed to have won the final heat, but the judges said otherwise.

The track was about two seconds slow as a result of the heavy rain of last night.

Oh, Dear!

HE WAS WRONG MISTER WRIGHT.

But Miss Devendorf Spotted His Prince Wilhelm.

Literary Sharp Suffers Indignity in Temple of Art.

Shocking Affair of the Heart in "Louisiana Lou."

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The newly-acquired Prince Wilhelm mustache of Willard Wright, a literary sharp, gave a serious seismic disturbance last evening to Act I. of "Louisiana Lou," contemporary entertainment—alleged to be such anyway—now in nightly operation at Will Wyatt's temple of art, the Mason Opera-house.

What brought about the trouble was a, still-developed case of hysteria on the part of Miss Bette Devendorf, one of the prettiest leaders of the chorus. This hysteria was superinduced by the sight, across the footlights, of Mr. Wright's mustache. Those who do not know Mr. Wright are, of course, not attracted to this hirsute adornment in such singular fashion, but to his friends and acquaintances it is little short of marvelous that so childlike and juvenile a personality could accumulate a mustache of no less than fourteen different hairs in the short space of four months. Mr. Wright, noticing the young woman intensely observing him, thought her one of his admiring friends, and bowed pleasantly. An usher, observing Mr. Wright, mistook him for a masher, and started down the aisle to put him out, but was restrained by another usher from whom Mr. Wright, in an unguarded moment of probing generosity, had once purchased a open rain.

The performance had just opened, and the coryphees were ragging about in their scant silken attire when the handsome and dashing young stranger—the words are his own—with the Prince Wilhelm mustache sauntered nonchalantly down the left aisle and took a seat in the front row. To many it would have been wicked enough, if not amateur nonchalantly—Ah, but can Don Juan ever did a thing so flauntingly defiantly bold.

Mr. Hunter had this handsome and dashing young stranger, with the Prince Wilhelm mustache, taken his seat, than the young lady with the deft name suddenly ceased to sing. It is a question whether she ever has sung; the stage manager says he hired her because she was such a noble-looking piece of scenery—but, be that as it may, she ceased the motions of singing, at least, rushed to the footlights, opened her little pink mouth to its poorly widest, distended her sleepy eyes to their utmost simulation of fear, looked horrifically into the optics of the handsome and dashing young stranger who had not only sauntered down the aisle, but had seated himself nonchalantly—screeched, and dashed from the stage. We say "dashed," as a dash is the only permissible illustration of what the stage manager said.

It was evident that something serious was the matter.

The handsome and dashing young stranger, convinced that only his name was Wright, and that everything else was wrong, grew red and white by turns. Even the fourteen javelins constituting his Prince Wilhelm mustache stood out like hairs upon the fretful porcupine.

The show went on, but the attention of the singers was not upon the conductor, and the attention of the audience was not upon the stage. One and all, plebeians and patricians, actors and tired business men, they were looking at the handsome stranger with the offending Prince Wilhelm mustache.

The manager of the troupe, perfectly near apoplexy, fumed at the back of the house.

"Have that person summarily ordered from the theater!" he whispered to Mal. William T. Wyatt, in an emphatic manner.

"He's a newspaper man and I don't want to offend him," pleaded Capt. Wyatt.

"I won't have him ruining my show—put him out!" and with this thunderous malediction the manager walked into the box office to count his $47 once more, trying to see if Walter Hearn had cheated him out of a nickel.

Corporal Wyatt debated long within himself. Then he called an usher. After a whispered order the usher crept down the aisle through which the handsome stranger had so recently sauntered—nonchalantly!

"Mr. Wright," said he, whispering softly and bending low; "Mr. Wyatt says that if you will come out he will buy you a drink."

The usher, accustomed as he was to fleet movements up and down the aisle through which the handsome stranger had so recently sauntered—nonchalantly—was beaten by twenty-six feet in the come-back race. The head usher, observing, says that Mr. Wright made the distance in nothing.

Sergt. Wyatt finds discretion the better part of managerialitis. When Mr. Wright, breathless, and in a fever of thirst and expectancy, had gained the door, Lieut. Wyatt was not visible. He was standing on the rail at the Waldorf—buying himself a drink.

Instead of a long glass, the stern eye of the road manager confronted Mr. Wright—handsome, dashing, a sauntering, and not only nonchalant, but the possessor of a Prince Wilhelm mustache.

"Sir," said the manager of the company, "you are not what you seem."

"I seem nothing," protested Mr. Wright; "I am not a tailor, but a writer—even my name is Wright!"

"Your name may be Wright, but your actions are wrong. You are, in sooth, the husband of the fair Miss Devendorf, one of our foremost chorines and front-row fillers, the faithful friend of them that have antiquities for young men to rent. You have come to take her from us. She despairs at thought of living with you again. She has swooned, deeply, and even now the utmost resources of the apothecary and the physician are being urged to their limit to bring her innocent tortured mind back into the realm of consciousness."

"Sir, you are cruel—you are unjust," protested the injured Mr. Wright. "And besides, I think you're a damn fool."

The manager thought to slap Mr. Wright, then and there, but as he looked he reflected that, after all, he was a newspaper man and might pan the show. Also Mr. Wright is somewhat huskier than the manager of the troupe—a fact which of course did not enter into the consideration at all.

Instead of striking the ruthless, reckless, harsh-spoken, dashing, sauntering, nonchalant young man with the Prince Wilhelm mustache, he, in a broken voice, invited him back to see the ruin he had wrought.

The fair Miss Devendorf lay upon a scenic rock, surrounded by young men with tenor voices, ministering to her wants with heartfelt sympathy.

She had come back from dreamland, and her seconds were trying to get her ready for the next round.

She gazed upon Mr. Wright sadly. "It is he," she said to the manager of the show, weeping. "No words of denial do not avail. Alas! My days of art are over. It is back to Halstead street for me, the motion counter and the furnace-flat up against the Alley L. Every feature is his. His voice—the grasp of his hand."

You see, Mr. Wright had taken the young lady's hand.

With sincere sympathy and noble regard for the feelings of others, rather than for his own pain, Mr. Wright spoke.

"My dear young woman," he began, "words cannot utter the woe that wrings my heart. Would that I could convince you that I am not that lout-lost son-of-a-gun, your lawful spouse. I shall be pleased to carry the argument further with you at Levy's, across two glasses of Cordon Rouge—"

It was well that the orchestra was playing loudly, else the delighted scream of Miss Devendorf would have put the house in a panic.

"It's all right!" she shrieked, wild with joy. "He ain't! He ain't! Bill never offered to buy me anything but beer in his life!"

DOUBLE DISASTER.

New Yorkers, Disappointed to Bout, See Substitute Sprain Ankle and Quit.

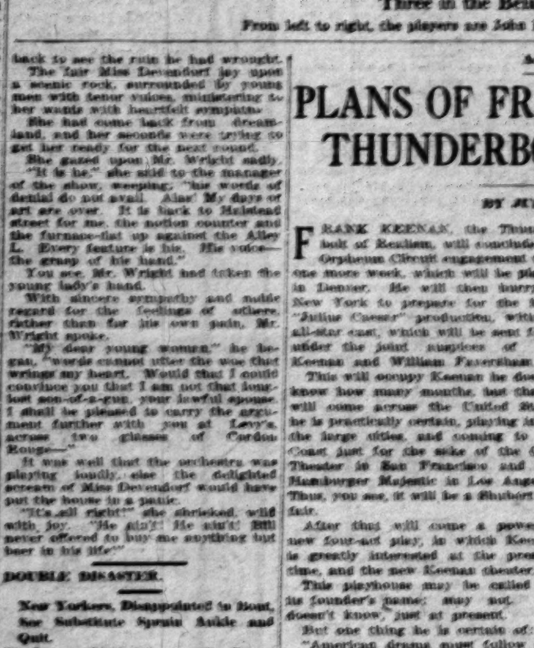
[By Federal (Wireless) Line to The Times.]

BY NICHOLAS RINK, New York, July 24.—[Special Dispatch.] Boxing fans who crowded into the St. Nicholas Rink tonight were treated to a double disappointment. Patsy Kline of Newark was to have met Johnny Dundee in the second ten-round event, but at the eleventh hour Kline found it impossible to appear, whereupon the management substituted Young Ty Cobb of Philadelphia.

The boys had only been boxing about a minute in the first round when Cobb sprained his ankle.

Action, fierce and furious, marked every minute of the fight between Phil Cross and Battling Hurley of Passaic, which ended in a draw.

The final bout of the night, between Leach Cross, the East Side gentlet, and Tommy O'Keefe of Philadelphia, presented to the crowd another whirlwind affair. It was Cross's fight by a narrow margin.



Bette Devendorf.

A Delft personality of "Louisiana Lou," whose sudden fear that she spied her lord and master in the audience nearly broke up the show at the Mason last night.

PLANS OF FRANK KEENAN, THUNDERBOLT OF REALISM

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

FRANK KEENAN, the Thunderbolt of Realism, will conclude his Orpheum Circuit engagement with one more week, which will be played in Denver. He will then hurry to New York to prepare for the huge "Julius Caesar" production, with its all-star cast, which will be sent forth under the joint auspices of Mr. Keenan and William Fauersham.

This will occupy Keenan he doesn't know how many months, but that it will come across the United States he is practically certain, playing in all the large cities, and coming to the Coast just for the sake of the Cort Theater in San Francisco and the Hamburger Majestic in Los Angeles. Thus, you see, it will be a Shubert affair.

After that will come a powerful new four-act play, in which Keenan is greatly interested at the present time, and the new Keenan theater.

This playhouse may be called by its founder's name; may not. He doesn't know, just at present.

But one thing he is certain of:

"American drama must follow the example of English drama. We must inaugurate the era of the actor-manager. The man who participates in the representation of a play may also participate, successfully, in its business management, though it is commonly supposed that such a combination of talents is impossible. In fact, the very highest success may and should attend these combined efforts, if mated by intelligence."

That said Keenan just before he went on in his character of lowly life at the Orpheum yesterday afternoon, his remarkable make-up, his shabby clothes, dusted with artificial snow, and his characteristically earnest face combining to give peculiar significance to his clean-cut and forceful speech.

"I have great hopes for our 'Julius Caesar,'" he continued. "People generally do not stop to realize that Shakespeare, in common with other really great dramatists, creates no characters managers can afford to thrust into feeble hands. A poor supporting actor, in my opinion, can ruin the effect of a tremendous scene between mighty men by one mumbling-jaw speech or piece of business. There is no record of 'Julius Caesar' ever failing to receive enthusiastic support in this country when done by a strong company. And we are going to give it a strong company.

"One thing I shall try to do with my new theater will be to give the audience thoroughly competent casts.

"I believe that the American audience is underestimated. The manager of today believes that the spotlight effect of one star will dazzle the eyes of any audience, from Broadway to Ellis street. I don't think so. I think our keenest critic is the man who pays his dollar, or his two dollars, to sit in front."

Americans generally associate Keenan with "The Girl of the Golden West," whose Sheriff he was for so long. In fact, his creation of the Sheriff was the model upon which all other Sheriffs have made their mimic personifications, even to the Milanese Sheriff of Puccini's opera.

He speaks rather bitterly of "On the Heights," a play upon which he had set great hope. The author flunked on him, and Keenan had to finish the play himself, in three weeks' time.

Commonly speaking, the play was a failure, but Keenan counts the lessons this drama gave him as stepping stones to success.

Keenan will have a theater of moderate size—neither large nor extraordinarily small—and in it he will try to keep up to the complete-cast standard which he has set for himself.

His unnamed and practically unwritten new play deals with a telling phase of modern life.

"BEAR CATS" ARE CHASED OUT.

BROWN-SYMONDS COMPANY WILL HAVE CLASSY NEW HOME.

Experts from Stutz Factory Are to Join Local Forces—Building Will Be Completed Early in October—Sub-Agents Report Bright Prospects for Coming Season.

The Stutz car has outgrown "Petrol Alley" and the Brown-Symonds company, Southern California distributors, have been compelled to seek larger quarters.

A lease has been signed for a new building to be built on Pico street near Grand avenue, which when completed will be one of the most attractive and completely equipped institutions of the kind to be found in Southern California.

Plans for the new Stutz home are out, and work will be commenced at once. The construction will be rushed with all possible speed, and the company expects to be housed in its new quarters by October 15.

The entire building, two stories and basement, will be used by the Stutz agents and the firm will be well prepared to care for the wants of Stutz owners. The front of the building is to be of glazed brick. Seventy feet will front on Pico street and the building will run back 150 feet to an alley. The contract calls for a $50,000 structure and the property on which the building is to be put up is valued at $40,000, making an investment of $90,000.

All repair work will be done on the second floor, which will be equipped will all the modern machinery necessary for the service department. Frank Kincaid, who is now at the head of the testing and adjusting department of the Stutz factory, will have charge of the repair shop, and three other experts from the factory will join the Stutz forces when the new garage is opened.

A full line of parts will be carried. This will insure prompt attention, and in many cases save a great deal of time for owners of cars.

The salesroom will be one of the most elegantly finished, to be found in this section, according to the architects. Mahogany will be used throughout.

It is a fortunate thing for the Stutz people that their new building will be completed at an early date, as the coming season promises to be a busy one for everybody and from the looks of things, the Stutz prospects are exceptionally bright.

All Southern California territory has been closed out to sub-agents and at this early date, ninety-five cars have been contracted for through these suburban dealers. The local concern has many orders booked ahead.

Of Braid.

One of the girls has made for herself the most charming little stole, to be worn under her dressy coat. It is made in a long, square effect with diamond shaped ends. The material is all-over embroidery of a simple design and over this is placed a design in braiding, which, being applied by hand, adds inexpressibly to the richness of the effect. Crocheted pendants are attached where the diamond shaped ends join the main part of the stole.

Nickle Belts.

Take it any way you please, either the price or the material and they are surprising—the sale of them in progress at a popular Broadway store. Of course, if you take it one way—they are not there, but take it the other way and they are. Do not allow this puzzle to distract your attention for long from the Times Book-lovers' Contest, though; but if you need a belt, it will save you time to see what I am talking about.

Outing for Feet.

If you go on an outing, of course, you will take your feet, and if there is any part of you which demands comfort during vacation time, it is those very exacting members. A sale of everything for outing wear for feet, attracted attention in one of the big South Broadway stores. High boots, canvas and leather leggings, mountain climbers and short buckskin shoes, were among the articles noticed, and the prices were such as to materially aid the vacation fund.

CLEAN SWEEP OF RAILROAD LANDS

Government to Seek Recovery of All Mineral.

District Attorney Outlines Programme of Suits.

Much Withdrawal Litigation Also on Carpet.

United States District Attorney McCormick returned from the North yesterday, where he has been for the past three weeks, on business connected with the contemplated action of the government against the Southern Pacific for the cancellation of patents to mineral oil land and against oil operators who have taken possession of valuable oil land since the withdrawal of such lands from entry.

None of the suits will be filed in the United States District Court for at least six weeks. The Southern Pacific cases depend largely upon the findings as to points of law by the United States Supreme Court in the Roberts case in October. The amount of money involved in these suits is purely speculative. No such number as three hundred suits are contemplated in the actions regarding the legality of the withdrawals of land under the orders of the Interior Department, and President Taft. No criminal action is contemplated against officials of the Southern Pacific for taking patent to lands alleged to be mineral. In a number of the pieces of land the statute of limitation has run, and there will be no action brought to recover the property or cancel the patent.

Persons who went on lands involved in the withdrawal suits and honestly accomplished work in prospecting for oil before such land was withdrawn by executive order, will not be molested in their rights to the land. It is only those who have defied the government, and, in spite of the order of withdrawal, have settled upon the land and begun to prospect for oil, who will be ousted from their self-asserted rights.

The Elk Hills controversy will be resumed in Washington next Monday. Willis N. Mills, special representative of Atty.-Gen. Wickersham in the litigation, has already gone East. McCormick is sanguine that the showing so far made by the government will be sufficient to demonstrate the mineral character of the Elk Hills, and that Judge Wellborn will support that contention when the transcript of the testimony is submitted to him for examination and opinion.

THE PROGRAMME.

After leaving San Francisco, McCormick went to Portland, where he had a week's conference with B. D. Townsend, special representative of the Department of Justice in the pending suits. In the Burke and Roberts cases, involving the cancellaton of patents to alleged oil lands, action will soon be taken in the United States Supreme Court. In the Burke case, the Cureuit Court of Appeals will certify the controlling questions to the Supreme Court some time this winter. In the Roberts case the issues will be fought out in October. In this it is understood the government will urge grounds not available to a private litigant, and therefore, McCormick says, it is proposed to institute suits on behalf of the government involving all of the mineral lands claimed by the railroad or any of its subsidiary companies. This will involve all of the valuable oil lands now developed or in process of development from Sunset to Coalinga, in possession of the defendant corporation.

The suits instituted in the Roberts and Burke cases involve but a small part of the mineral land claimed by the Southern Pacific, but the contemplated suits by the government will involve all of such lands claimed by the corporation under its grant from Congress. There is some question whether estoppel can be urged by private litigants, therefore, it has been determined to bring the actions in behalf of the government and not risk an adverse decision, because of the essential difference between the position taken by the government and that of private litigants.

AS TO WITHDRAWALS.

In the withdrawal suits the broad principle to be determined is whether the order of the Secretary of the Interior of September 27, 1909, withdrawing all lands classified as oil producing from any form of entry, supplemented by an executive order of President Taft, is legal and binding. Before the promulgation of the withdrawal order, a number of entrymen went on to some of the lands and began prospecting. In many instances oil has been found in paying quantities. All such will be protected by the government, if the decision of the courts is adverse to them.

McCormick says that a number of oil operators whose interests are jeopardized by the proposed action of the government, have asked that the cases involving the legality of the withdrawal by executive order, be filed as soon as possible. The fact that the government intends to do nothing, that will injure the commercial or oil interests of California, is also emphasized by the District Attorney.

Wife of Great Temperance Apostle's Grandson Files Suit for Divorce—First-Sight Love Vanishes.

An action for divorce was filed Tuesday by Mrs. Marie Sweet Baker Murphy against her short-term husband, Francis Murphy, Jr., grandson of the late great and beloved temperance apostle, and son of William J. Murphy.

With the filing of the divorce suit a rapid-fire romance, with love at first sight and an early visit to the parson becomes a total wreck; after but a few months of travel in double harness.

Many recall the spectacular courtship and the impassioned statement of the happy groom to the effect that from the moment he saw Marie Sweet from a passing railroad train he knew that she was to be his wife. The object of his devotions was willing, and the marriage followed.

VAIN SEARCH FOR MOTHER.

Twelve-year-old Boy Comes Here from Ontario and Is Picked Up by Police, Weary and Footsore.

Completely exhausted by trudging through the downtown streets in search of his mother, Lawrence Early, 12 years old, was picked up by the police at Twenty-third street and Grand avenue Tuesday night and was sent to the Detention Home until his parent can be located.

The boy said his mother came to Los Angeles about ten days ago to see her four young daughters who are said to be inmates of some Catholic home, and it was agreed that she would meet him at the Salt Lake depot on his arrival from Ontario at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The lad was unable to find his mother and, without realizing the size of the city, set out to find her without asking the assistance of the police.

Mrs. Early is believed to be staying somewhere on Maple avenue, but her young son did not know the number of the house.

WINKS THE OTHER EYE.

Mysterious Source Supplies Alleged Smuggler With Many Lawyers But He Says No to Them.

The attorneys who will prosecute "Billy" Gerald, the alleged Chinese smuggler, are interested to know who so earnestly desires to furnish him not only one, but three lawyers for defense when Gerald himself says he wants no legal advice, and has no money to secure it.

Within the present week three attorneys of this city have called at the local immigration office, and declared they had been retained for the Gerald defense. One of these said he had been hired by some of his Chinese clients to look after Gerald and see that he was properly represented at the preliminary examination. Two other attorneys had been retained by white men.

Before Gerald was arraigned he declared that he had no lawyer and wanted none. While the matter was before the court an attorney appeared and announced to Assistant United States District Attorney Archbald, who represents the government, that he was to appear for Gerald. Five minutes before Gerald had informed Archbald that he would conduct his own case. On the representations made to Commissioner Van Dyke by this new-found friend, the hearing was postponed until August 26.

When Gerald was first taken into custody by Inspector Miller, he sought an attorney and said that he had friends in the East who would come to his assistance. This arrangement was not carried out, and Gerald concluded to do without any legal aid. Then the news trickled out that Gerald was likely to confess, and immediately there was a small cloud of attorneys eager to assist him in his extremity. Gerald has nothing to say about the matter, but merely winks the other eye.

TRIAL MAY GO ON TODAY.

Juror Leavitt in All Probability Able to Serve in the Darrow Trial This Morning.

Following several conferences with the physicians attending Juror Leavitt of El Monte it was announced yesterday afternoon that in all probability he will be able to serve this morning. He is resting comfortably at his home and the chief objection to his return appears to come from his wife, who fears a relapse. Judge Hutton remarked to the other jurors that in his opinion all should try to get as much exercise as possible. He said he realized that the unwonted confinement would affect even the strongest man and he wanted to express his sympathy with all the members of the panel.

There was a conference of attorneys with Judge Hutton, supposedly in regard to putting the alternate juror in Leavitt's place should the latter have a relapse. The law of the State providing for the alternate juror evidently contemplates that he shall only be used in case of the death or permanent sickness of some member of the panel.

If the case proceeds this morning it is expected LeCompte Davis will be the next witness for the defense.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

CROWN CITY'S NEW THEATER.

Plans for Fine Building to House Thespians.

Storm Drain to Be Taken Before Supervisors.

Youth Arrested for Passing Alleged Forgeries.

[Office of The Times, 52 S. Fair Oaks ave.]

PASADENA, July 25.—Work is soon to be begun on a new theater which the G. and C. Frost Trust Company plans to build on property that it owns at Broadway and East Colorado street. The lots have a frontage of 240 feet on Broadway, but the entrance to the playhouse will be on Colorado street, next to the Pasadena National Bank.

The plans of the builders, which have not been fully worked out as yet, became known yesterday when application was made of the City Council for permission to construct a bridge between this projected building and the Pasadena National Bank building across Morgan alley.

W. W. Benedict, of the real estate firm of W. G. Benedict & Son, which is carrying on negotiations for the improvement, said last night:

"The matter is hardly ripe for announcement as yet. Plans have not been fully worked out. But it is the intention of the builders to put up a theater to cost about $40,000, and to have a seating capacity of between 1600 and 1800 persons. The building will be devoted exclusively to the theater, which will be first-class in every particular.

"It is to be designed primarily as a motion picture house, but will be built so that any company that comes to Pasadena will find it a perfect house in which to play, and it is believed that its erection will result in many good companies coming here.

"The theater is to be constructed after the European style, with a pit and the better seats in the balcony. Work will be begun as soon as possible. It is hoped that it can be completed and ready for use before next winter."

SUPERVISORS TO COME IN.

The Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county will have to take a hand in the storm drain situation in the northeastern part of the city, which culminated in a riotous meeting at the City Hall last Tuesday morning, if the investigating committee of the City Council has its way.

This committee, which is composed of Councilmen Fogg, Root, Rhodes and Barnes, accompanied by Mayor Thum, yesterday made a trip over the route of the proposed drain and inspected the wash. The result was that it was found that work outside of the city will be quite as necessary as work inside the city, if the flood waters are to be curbed. Today or tomorrow the members will confer with the County Supervisors to see what they propose to do.

The Council committee has made no recommendation yet as to whether the proceedings for the construction of the $114,000 storm drain that arouse vehemently objected to by a large number of property owners of this part of the city shall be carried out or dropped. It hopes to have a report ready by next Tuesday's session of the Council.

"There was not a majority of protestants," said Councilman Root last night," and the Council can go ahead with the proceedings if it wants to. There is nothing to prevent its doing so. But we want to do what is right and are going to investigate the matter thoroughly. If the proceedings are abandoned the street department will have to do some work. Something will have to be done to improve conditions in this part of the city before the rains come next winter."

According to Mayor Thum, if the latter course is decided upon, the Street Department will at once put men at work clearing the bed of the wash and making such other improvements as will prevent the damage of private property by the water that flows from Altadena and the mountains.

BOY GETS IN TOILS.

Leyden Pierpont, a 16-year-old boy who lives at No. 545½ Worcester avenue was arrested yesterday and is held at the City Jail on a charge of forgery. He was taken into custody while endeavoring to pass an alleged worthless check at the Pasadena National Bank.

It is believed by the police that, within the last week, the boy has passed seven worthless checks in the city, amounting in all to $36. Several checks were taken from his pockets upon his arrest. He will be taken before the Juvenile Court in Los Angeles today.

ROLL IS COMPLETE.

City Assessor Kellogg yesterday completed the compilation of the assessment roll for 1912-13. It totals $51,906,625. The assessment on public utilities termed operative property amounts to $2,792,840.

BUILDING BURNS DOWN.

Fire, believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion among chemicals, yesterday morning destroyed the building of the Putman Chemical Company, at No. 315 South Mentor avenue. The loss is estimated at $2500 with insurance to the amount of $2000. The building was owned by Chester W. Putman.

NO THROUGH CARS.

The Board of Trade yesterday was notified by Vice-President Paul Shoup of the Pacific Electric Railway Company that its request for direct service between Pasadena and the beach cities, this year, cannot be accorded, but that such arrangements may be effected next year. Shoup wrote in part:

"There is some prospect now of our being able to build a railroad on San Pedro street and we can then operate through cars, or, at least, give it a trial and see how it works out."

CITY BRIEFS.

City Clerk L. A. Handley of Los Angeles spoke at a Democratic rally at the Board of Trade rooms last night. There was a fair attendance.

The Throop Polytechnic Institute was one of nineteen American universities, colleges and technical schools represented at an important conference of the Association for the International Interchange of Students held at Caxton House, Westminster, London, June 28 and 29, last. The local institution was represented by Arthur H. Fleming of No. 1002 South Orange Grove avenue.

A delegation from the Intercity Commission, including Pasadena, South Pasadena and Alhambra, will appear before the Los Angeles City Council tomorrow to urge that the Pacific Electric Railway Company be granted a franchise to operate cars on San Pedro street.

It was announced yesterday that the Hotel Green will be opened for the winter season in November next, several weeks earlier than it was opened last winter. D. B. Plumer again will be manager.

John F. Godfrey Post, No. 93, Grand Army of the Republic, will hold an open meeting at G.A.R. Hall tonight.

Forty-eight Salt Lake Elks, who attended the annual reunion in Portland, Or., are visiting in Pasadena on their way home.

Members of the Pasadena Ohio Society will attend the annual picnic of the Southern California Association of Ohioans at Long Beach next Saturday. They will leave Pasadena at 8:30 o'clock in the morning in a special train.

Mrs. Susan M. Eliot of No. 316 East Colorado street died at her home yesterday at the age of 90 years. She had lived in Pasadena four years and leaves one daughter, Miss Marie Eliot, a local physician.

POMONA ORDERS FLAGS.

Board of Education Believes Its Display Tends to the Nurture of Patriotic Spirit.

POMONA, July 24.—Believing that the American flag should be displayed at all times on the local public schoolhouses, the Board of Education at its meeting last night ordered six new flags five by eight feet and eight flags eight by fifteen feet, which will be delivered immediately.

The resignation of J. H. McKim, who has been a member of the board for some time, but who has recently sold his property here and is removing to Berkeley, was accepted with regret. Mr. McKim's children will attend the University of California. Miss Lulu Pickett resigned as a teacher in the Garey-avenue school and will pass two years in travel.

Miss Laura Friederich, who is teacher of German in the High School, and has been allowed a year's leave of absence to study in Germany, was granted a certain sum of money for the purchase while abroad of objects of German art and curios which will be useful in the German department of the High School.

The matter of withholding salaries of teachers when they are away because of illness, was discussed and City Superintendent Murphy inclined to the belief that teachers should not be "docked" unless they were absent during the year for a total of more than ten days. It was his opinion that no absences should be longer than two days in succession. The proposition will be further considered by the board at another meeting.

NEWS BRIEFS.

A. B. Avis, president of the Men's Brotherhood of the First Methodist Church, presided at an enthusiastic meeting of the organization in the church parlors last night, at which a large number were present. There were selections by a male vocal trio and readings by William Cunningham. A debate on the subject "Resolved, That the Church in Its Practical Operation Meets the Social and Fraternal Needs of the People," aroused much interest. The affirmative was presented by Rev. L. D. Van Arnam and A. B. Endicott and the negative supported by Thomas Scott and Albert A. James. The debate was followed by a general discussion. Varying interpretations of the definition of the subject caused the decision to be given the affirmative. Following the programme the members went to the Idyllwild refectory, where refreshments were served.

Great preparations have been made for the annual picnic of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Pomona Valley, embracing the organizations of this city, Claremont, Lordsburg, San Dimas, Chino, Glendora, Upland, Ontario and Covina, which will be held at Ganesha Park in conjunction with that of the local Prohibition Club, on Thursday of this week. Mrs. Julia D. Phelps of Los Angeles county, president, and Mrs. Mary Comana, editor of the White Ribbon, will be the principal speakers at a programme to be held after the picnic dinner.

GUESTS OF CANNING COMPANY.

Ontario Concern Gives Reception and Exhibits the Workings of Local Man's Invention.

ONTARIO, July 24.—To inspect an Ontario man's invention that is expected to revolutionize the fruit and vegetable canning industry throughout the entire United States, canners from all over Southern California gathered in this city yesterday as guests of the Golden State Canning Company.

The visitors came in response to invitations from President J. F. Lobingier, Superintendent Will J. Schaefer and Manager W. H. Fowler to attend a formal inspection of Schaefer's invention, the "Spiral Agitating Cooker." And so pleased were they with the new machine that Ontario is to have another industry, the manufacture of these machines for other canneries, so that not only will Schaefer's invention prove a big time, money and labor saver to canners installing it, but it will mean another manufactory added to Ontario's growing industrial district.

Among the visiting canners today were the following: American Can Company, Los Angeles, R. D. Laws and W. H. Bentley; Los Angeles Can Company, H. L. Guenther and I. S. Irwin; Bonner Fruit Company, Lankershim, E. H. Kennedy, C. L. Kennedy, Frank Halloway, W. R. Waters, M. L. Wilcox, Lawrence Waters, W. J. Rice, Daniel Bakman and George Cecil; Gregory Fruit Company, Colton, F. P. Crane and F. S. Lammie; Gifford's Olive Works, San Diego, D. C. Gifford and M. H. Richey; Hemet Canning Company, Hemet, W. S. Mudd and J. M. Frazier.

BIG GATHERING OF CHURCHMEN.

Christian Delegates Get Busy in Annual Session.

Big Bond Issue for Harbor Work Is Planned.

Two Bitten by Surly Dogs Down on the Pike.

LONG BEACH, July 24.—Delegates arrived all day for attendance upon the twenty-fourth annual assembly of the Christian Churches of Southern California and the local committees are busy assigning them to quarters. Tonight there are probably 400 delegates in the city, the great majority of accredited ones not being expected before tomorrow or Friday.

The executive board of the society met at 10 o'clock this morning and entered upon a clearing of business of the year past and mapping out new business for the coming year. It was purely a routine session. At 2 o'clock this afternoon President C. C. Chapman called the convention to order and Rev. F. M. Rogers of the local Christian Church, welcomed the delegates, giving an extra welcome on behalf of the ladies of the church and city. The welcome was responded to by Mrs. Annie Cason, State president of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and Mrs. Geedy, superintendent of the Young Woman's Circle.

The programme concluded with an address by Mrs. M. E. Harlan of Indianapolis, national secretary of the C.W.B.M., upon the work, scope and possibilities of the society. The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to a good-fellowship meeting for acquaintanceship, the Long Beach branch serving as hostesses.

Tonight was designated as a Japanese night, the programme being furnished in part by members of the Los Angeles Japanese mission. Mrs. Robertson added a solo to music by the Japanese orchestra, and addresses were delivered by Mrs. Reba Smith, recently returned from Honolulu, and H. H. Guy, dean of the Berkeley Bible Seminary, and for several years a missionary in Tokio and other Japanese cities.

Tomorrow the convention will get down to business and the morning and afternoon will be devoted to reports of officers and committees and addresses by Mrs. Harlan and Mrs. Smith Dabney. At night Mrs. W. C. Hull of Pasadena will conduct the devotional services and Harlan will tell of "America's Greatest Task."

THEIR SHARE OF IT.

Two hundred business and professional men of the city attended the banquet of the Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Virginia tonight to discuss the future of the inner harbor as an entering wedge for the campaign to secure a big bond issue, part of which is to be devoted to the purchase by the city from the private owners of 400 acres of harbor land with 20,000 feet of frontage.

President Tucker of the chamber was master of ceremonies, the after-dinner talks being entirely informal. Thomas E. Gibbon, former harbor commissioner of Los Angeles, was the principal speaker, his remarks being devoted to advocacy of harbor and harbor facilities under municipal ownership and the great future before Southern California with the opening of the canal.

Several questions were answered satisfactorily. Secretary Bisby gave the guests some facts and figures of the present city docks and others gave short informal talks, the general trend being in favor of municipal control of the inner harbor.

TO TALK IT OVER.

President B. F. Tucker of the Chamber of Commerce today named the Committee of One Hundred who, on behalf of the people and the chamber, are to hold a conference with the City Council relative to a bond issue of $2,500,000 for wharves, sewers, piers, City Hall and harbor control, and sent to each an invitation to meet tomorrow evening at the chamber rooms to discuss the measures and decide in what manner the matter shall be submitted to the Council. The committee seems to have been carefully selected with a view of representation of every faction and grade of citizenry.

STUNG BY FRIEND.

Bank clerks, while warm in their friendships, are usually cautious in money matters, and exceptions to this rule are generally costly, as W. B. Julian and Marston Doolittle, employees of two national banks here, have learned in the return of checks for $20 and $25, respectively, which they recently indorsed for an old acquaintance in Nebraska. Both checks have been returned from St. Joseph, Mo., marked "no funds."

JUST IN TIME.

Frank Zama, aged 33, who lives at the Spokane hotel, Fourth and Alameda, Los Angeles, was almost drowned late this afternoon in the surf in front of the East Side bath-house here. Caught in a tide-rip he was carried beyond his depth.

Being a muscular fellow and keeping his head Zama kept up his struggle against the tide-rip for some time. He had sunk twice and was almost gone when Stephen Long, Jr., son of City Attorney Long, and another man plunged into the water with their clothes on and rescued the bather with a life preserver and brought him ashore.

Zama was unconscious. Dr. R. A. Terry and others finally resusctated him, and an hour later Zama was placed on a Los Angeles car.

DOGS BECOME VICIOUS.

An ordinance muzzling dogs was passed by the Council March 9, 1912, operative for three months. This is now a dead letter but is apt to be again put in force following the attack of stray dogs on two children on the Pike. The little daughter of Dr. Colvert of Albuquerque was bitten on the palm of the left hand by a dog she was endeavoring to caress yesterday evening and this morning another dog attacked the son of A. J. Neal of Fresno and bit him on the leg. Physicians cauterized both wounds and fear no serious results although both children may be sent to the Pasteur institute.

BEACH BRIEFS.

A bullet fired by some unknown person crashed through the window of J. A. Schilling's home this afternoon, barely missing Mrs. Schilling and daughter who stood near and who were showered with glass. It is thought some one was shooting at a target.

Coroner Heartwell will hold an inquest tomorrow morning into the death of Mrs. Mary Lamkin, who was crushed to death between the launch Nellie and the pier yesterday after she had fallen into the water during a heavy sea. The bereaved husband is deeply affected by the tragedy and is under the care of a physician. Shortly after the accident yesterday the wharfinger ordered the boats away from the pier because of the heavy ground swells, which are still running today, making landings at the wharf impossible.

Elma Parsons, aged 15, while lying on the floor reading a book, rolled over and forced a needle into her back entirely beneath the skin. A surgical operation was necessary to remove the needle which was found lodged under one of the girl's ribs.

Mrs. Caroline Seibert was arrested today on complaint of local garage mn, who charge that she has cashed several worthless checks the past week of which they were victims. Mrs. Seibert is said to have a penchant for joy rides and this failing led to the alleged crime.

Tickets should read "Coronado."

BOND ELECTION IS CALLED.

Glendale Trustees Instruct City Attorney to Prepare Ordinance for an Important Event.

GLENDALE, July 24.—City Attorney W. E. Evans was instructed to prepare a resolution calling a bond election for $315,000, the money derived from the sale of which bonds to be used in local improvements at the board meeting last night. Although the voting of the bonds for the various improvements will be placed before the Glendale voters at a single election, this being done to eliminate the cost of several elections, each of the items will be voted on separately. The amount of the bonds for the several proposed improvements will be as follows: Municipal water system, $325,000; city parks, $65,000; municipal fire department, $20,000; street department, $5000.

In calling the election for bonds amounting to $465,000 for public parks the trustees have struck a favorable chord with the local citizens, as the park proposition has been before the people for some time and they think well of it. It is proposed to purchase two parks, one on the east and one on the west side of town. The proposed park on the west side is known as the Stepper property and is located between Fourth and Fifth streets and Central avenue and Orange street. An option for $45,000 has been secured on this piece by the city of Glendale. On the east side the proposed park is located between Fourth and Fifth streets and Belmont and Cedar streets, and the city has an option of $20,000 on the property. Both sites are exceedingly desirable property.

The $20,000 for the fire department, if it is voted, will be used to purchase a centrally located lot, probably on Broadway between the two business sections of town, and the locating on this lot of a modern brick fire house. It will also include the purchase of an automobile fire engine and other necessaries.

If the election carries the $5000 to be voted on for street purposes will be used exclusively to purchase machinery of various kinds for the repair and the building of streets in this city.

Only $4 to Coronado and back.

ANGELENO FALLS UNCONSCIOUS.

While Rowing With Children in Bay He Is Stricken With Serious Illness—Brief News.

AVALON, July 24.—While trying to raise an anchor to his row boat, G. M. Cole, an insurance adjuster of Los Angeles, overstrained himself and collapsed in the bottom of the skiff unconscious. The only occupants of the boat were his two grandchildren, whom he had taken out for a morning's fishing. Capt. T. Whittley of the launch Favorite, seeing the two children waving their arms and calling for help, immediately went to their assistance. Had not the Favorite been passing the skiff would undoubtedly have drifted some hours before a search was made. The unconscious man was brought into Avalon and given in charge of a local physician. In falling Mr. Cole had twisted the rope around the bow of the skiff so that the anchor was free and the boat was drifting towards the open sea. His condition is serious.

CHASED A FOX.

Bernard Christensen, Romanye Corke and Herman Smith of the Times Camp had an exciting adventure yesterday when they chased a silver gray fox for several miles with the hope of securing it for a mascot. Over rocks, through brush and cactus, down narrow trails and up steep inclines the fox led the way, giving the boys a merry chase. According to Herman they were almost within reach of the elusive little animal upon two accasions. Their travel-stained appearance when they entered the camp this evening told a story in itself. Although scarce, a number of foxes have been sen recently by hunters. The boys are now convinced that they will possess a fox before their time is up at the camp.

BRAIN SHIFTS; MEMORY CLEAR.

Awakes from Trance of Many Days' Duration.

Wife Overjoyed at Return of Husband's Love.

Blood-clot Dissolves, Theory of Attending Physician.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

POMONA, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is rejoicing in the Lordsburg home of Walter Roberts, the man of recent dual personality, for he suddenly regained his memory today after a lapse of many weeks.

Roberts disappeared from his home on May 18 in a state of mental aphasia and was discovered last week in the oil fields near Bakersfield, where he was living under another name, having no recollection of the personality under which he has lived for years in Lordsburg.

Today his memory came back to him as quickly as it left him and his faithful wife, who for days since his return has been almost frantic because he failed to recognise her or to remember any incidents of their life for years past, is overjoyed.

Roberts had been complaining of severe headache and his wife was applying cold compresses, hoping against hope that some hour he might show recognition of her and memory of their happy married life. She had replaced a bandage on his head and he had gone to sleep when suddenly he awakened in his senses and, looking at his wife, called her by name, the first time since May 18 and with a changed expression in his face, inquired where he had been and who brought him home and what it all meant.

Words will hardly narrate the joy that animated the wife when she heard those first actually conscious sentences from the lips of the husband since his disappearance.

Dr. E. J. Hubbell was immediately called and he and Mrs. Roberts conversed with the man recovered from his trance concerning all the events covering the period that Roberts was absent from his home and of his return to Lordsburg, unable to remember any fact in his life subsequent to April, 1903.

Roberts cannot now, however, recall a single incident that has transpired between the day that he disappeared and the day when he awakened. He remembers leaving home on that May morning to do some electrical work in which he was engaged, and starting down the road toward San Dimas. Thereafter all is a blank.

Dr. Hubbell is of the opinion that a blood-clot formed quickly on the brain, causing pressure, and blanked Roberts's memory for the nine-year period.

This morning it is believed that the clot was temporarily moved or was absorbed and the pressure lifted. The physician thinks that the clot by treatment can be removed without an operation and that Roberts will entirely recover. Until the case is treated it is believed that there is the possibility of a recurrence of recent conditions.

Roberts is at present in a rather nervous state as a result of the sudden change when his brain resumed its normal functions. The case has attracted wide attention among the medical fraternity and is particularly unusual.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The condition of Miss Anita Palemares whose ankle and several ribs were broken in a motorcycle collision near Walnut and who is now at the Pomona Valley Hospital, is rather serious. The ankle was so badly crushed that it will require the most expert treatment to avoid amputating the foot.

The local Elks lodge enjoyed a jolly stag night at the Elks home on East Holt avenue this evening with a large attendance. A pleasing entertainment was furnished by T. R. Ovington, Homer Woods, Richard Loucks, Earl Foresman, Percy McGough and Wharfield.

Last night in the banquet-room of the Ebell Clubhouse was held the annual banquet of the "Coffee Coolers" Club and their wives. The club is composed of veterans of the Civil War and has been meeting at stated times for several years for an interchange of good fellowship and stories of bygone days. The prevailing colors in the decorations were red, white and blue and those who participated in the affair were Messrs. and Mmes. C. P. Wilson, A. H. Hill, Erasmus Barnes, Harry Mishler, Ferdinand Davis, A. S. Avery, J. S. Bowen, J. E. McComas, S. C. Pitzer, Rev. Dr. A. W. Lamport and several others.

The work of paving Park avenue from Second street to Orange Grove avenue is practically completed and the roadway has become one of the best in the city. With Garey avenue, Fifth avenue, Park avenue, Holt avenue and East and West Second street well paved, the city is keeping up the improvements demanded by its rapid growth.

SAN DIMAS NOTES.

SAN DIMAS, July 24.—The Boy Scouts have returned from their most satisfactory outing. The camp was beautifully located, but a short distance below the falls. The party was composed of Teddy Elston, John Zietan, John Ward, Brooks Allen, Dewey Hartman, John Reeves, Gerald Weeler, Stanley Smith, Tom Talbot, Dana Spicer, Clarence Dozier and Bill Hill. Mr. J. W. Wilson, the leader, and his wife, and Rev. Spicer accompanied the boys. These seem to have only enjoyed the fun and frolic, but showed their true metal by doing some good work on the Canyon road, making this place more accessible.

George D. Parker of the Parker Machine Works of Riverside is here with a force of men, installing the new washer and dryer in the San Dimas orange packing-house.

J. P. Weber has established a new route from San Dimas to Glendora. From here, one may take the Cogswell line up over the divide to Colby's Canyon, in the San Gabriel range. Deer hunting, fishing and a climb to the top of Old Baldy are some of the pleasures of those taking the trip.

WILL PRESERVE WATER LINE.

Trustees at Newport Beach Refuse to Grant Permit for Warehouse Over the Bay.

NEWPORT BEACH, July 24.—The Board of Trustees, in refusing the application of the Collins Commercial Company to erect a freight warehouse beyond the bulkhead line, had to do with the first case of the kind that has ever come up in Newport Beach. President Hermes in casting his vote, which decided the application against the Collins company, said that he was in favor of doing anything in his power to help business in the bay, but that he believed other beaches had been injured beyond repair by allowing structures to be built over the water and that as this case would establish a precedent in the city of Newport Beach, he wanted to go on record as being in favor of keeping the beach both on the ocean and bay side clear. Trustees Collins and Way voted in favor of the proposed warehouse and Trustees Hermes and Parkinson against. Trustee Stauss was absent. President Hermes then declared the motion of Trustee Collins lost. Trustee Collins is a brother of the president of the Collins Commercial Company, W. S. Collins. The Collins company claimed that a freight warehouse on the shores of the bay was necessary on account of the great amount of building being done on Balboa Island.

NO BICYCLING.

The protest of fifty-seven citizens signed to a petition to repeal the ordinance against riding bicycles on the sidewalks availed nothing. President Hermes appointed a committee, consisting of Trustees Parkinson and Collins, to revise the ordinance, but Trustee Parkinson mutinied and said that it was useless to put him on as he was in favor of allowing the ordinance which prohibits bicycle riding on the walks in any section of the city to stand. The signers of the petition hoped to be allowed to ride bicycles on the broad walk on the ocean front between Newport, East Newport and Balboa, a distance of two miles.

WILL BE TEST CASE.

The street superintendent has been instructed to order the local electric light company to connect the City Hall with lights. The electric light company refused to do so unless the city signed a contract for a year. As a bond election proceedings for light and power bonds is now under way the Trustees did not feel justified in signing up a contract for a year and City Attorney Clyde Bishop was instructed to notify the Newport Bay Light and Power Company that it could either connect the City Hall with lights or have its franchise to do business in the city of Newport Beach revoked.

The outcome of the case is awaited with much interest, as it is a test case so far as the rights of the city over public utility corporations are concerned.

The manager of the local gas company offered to connect the City Hall with gas and furnish all fixtures free, but in view of the approaching electric and gas bond election, his offer was refused.

NEW ELECTRIC LINE.

Anaheim Is Pleased Over the Announcement of the Plans of the Pacific Electric.

ANAHEIM, July 24.—The city of Orange is seeking an extension of the Pacific Electric Railway from Santa Ana and has asked Anaheim to cooperate. They want Anaheim's support in connection with the project and have advanced to a point with the preliminary arrangements that enables it to give assurance to Anaheim that the Pacific Electric is ready to take the Tustin branch over from the Southern Pacific Company, put it under electricity and operate it from connection with Orange and Santa Ana to Anaheim.

The line from Santa Ana to Orange and the line from Orange to Anaheim, however, are assured, just as soon as Orange raises the sum of $25,000 for the acquirement of right of way between Orange and Santa Ana and the point on the Tustin ranch, where connection will be made from Orange to Anaheim. The original proposition was for the acquirement and the gift of the right of way by Orange between Santa Ana and Orange. This could have been managed for the sum of $15,000. Subsequently it was concluded that Orange wanted to connect with Anaheim, and the additional right of way was found to call for about $10,000 more.

FOURTH ANNUAL CHAUTAUQUA.

Ventura Secures Many Talented People and Will Entertain Throngs During First Week in August.

VENUTRA, July 24.—The Ventura Chautauqua will open its fourth annual session in this city August 1. Already many reservations have been made by families, many from outside the county, and it is expected that every tent will be taken before the session opens.

The talent for the entertainments this year has been secured. It is among the best in the line of Chautauqua work the country affords. Among others to be presented are: Talma-Zetta Wilbur, reader, with the Arion Trio; Dr. James McLaren, Rev. Arthur Phelps, Mrs. Mae Belle Carlson, reader; Rev. Samuel L. Beiler, Matt S. Hughes, J. Franklyn and M. M. Caveny, Rev. D. P. Fox, B. R. Baumgardt, Sierra male quartette, and the celebrated First Congregational Church orchestra of Los Angeles.

BRIDGE APPROACH.

The City Board of Trustees and the Board of Supervisors met jointly yesterday and settled on conditions for the building of the approach at this end of the Ventura River bridge. The approach in question is in the city limits and out of county jurisdiction. Of the money raised for the bridge in this section, $4000 was set aside for the building of the approach, and this amount is now available and in bank. It was agreed between the two bodies that the City Engineer would draw plans and supply specifications for the approach and advertise for bids for the building of the same, let the contract, and see the work through. The approach will be some 800 feet in length and in it will be included a fifty-foot concrete bridge across what is known as the Egbert Spring Creek.

PIONEER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Joseph Esperance, a pioneer resident of this city for forty years, took place yesterday afternoon from the old Mission Church. A large concourse of people followed the remains to the cemetery. Deceased was 67 years of age and leaves a widow and one son, August Esperance.

VETERAN KILLED.

Tom Dunbar, a veteran of the Civil War, was killed yesterday at the Ventura River railroad bridge by being knocked from the structure by a passing train as he was crossing on foot. He was crossing the bridge when a freight train bore down on him. He sought refuge on one of the safety platforms and would have been out of danger, had he not reached out to pull his roll of blankets from the track. He was still alive when taken from below the bridge, but died at the hospital. He had a ticket to Los Angeles in his pocket, also $10 in money which had been given him at Miramar.

FLAW FOUND IN BONDS.

Fullerton Trustees Thrown into State of Consternation by Opinion of Bond Firm's Attorney.

FULLERTON, July 24.—After a delay of three months and when the city was about to proceed to receive bids for material and the construction of five miles of paved streets, the City Trustees are informed that E. M. Campbell & Sons are advised by attorneys against the purchase of $146,000 of road and bridge bonds, which were sold to this company April 29, subject to the approval of bond attorneys.

Consternation spread among the city officials when this news was disseminated. Coincident with this announcement it was intimated by the bond buyers that if the city should decide to purchase the old waterworks system for $50,000, the city might not experience difficulty in disposing of its road bonds.

The City Board, after selling the road bonds, employed engineers and have accepted their report on a municipal waterworks plant, and have also bought forty acres of land for a sewer farm. All these improvements will be held up till the water question is settled, and it seems that difficulty in selling any bonds will be met with under present conditions.

That the Trustees are not under the collar is putting it mildly, as the delay means that Fullerton will probably have no paved streets this year. A technical flaw was reported to have been found in the road bonds, namely that the president pro tem, instead of the president of the board, had signed the ordinance. The president, E. R. Amerige, was on a leave of absence at the time.

Rather than test the matter in the courts, the City Trustees have decided to call a special bond election on both road and water bonds, and have assurances that they will be taken up by private parties.

OPPOSE SUNDAY CLOSING.

A petition signed by about 400 voters, including the majority of the business men, has been filed with the Trustees as a counter-petition to the one asking the passage of a Sunday closing ordinance aimed at the motion-picture business here. No action has been taken.

At a meeting of Republicans of this Supervisoral district last night at the Bank Hall, no indorsement of a candidate for Supervisor could be agreed upon. George Welton of Fullerton and William Schumacher of Buena Park remain in the race, while F. R. Aldrich of La Habra withdrew.

MILLIONS ARE DISTRIBUTED.

Two Thousand Acres of Valuable Oil Lands Are Apportioned by Superior Judge.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two thousand acres of oil land in Santa Barbara county valued at $1,200,000, changed ownership by a decree of partial distribution in the estate of Thomas Bell signed by Judge Coffey of the Probate department of the Superior Court yesterday. The distribution is made to the Oilfield Syndicate.

The syndicate is the assignee of W. H. Hammond, the Butte county capitalist who bought out the interests of the Bell heirs several months ago. Eight thousand acres of oil lands in Santa Barbara constituting the part of the Bell estate are to be distributed.

SEEK BOLD HOLD-UPS.

GARDEN GROVE, July 24.—Officers are investigating information given them by Miss Julia Simpkins, waitress at Arnett's restaurant. Miss Simpkins states that Monday night when she stepped to the back yard she was seized by two men, who attempted to throw a cloth saturated with fluid over her face. She screamed, and the two men fled. She says she does not know who they were.

The Ohio Society will hold its annual picnic at Long Beach on Saturday. All members and all former residents of that State and their friends are invited to attend. There will be "great guns" of fun, an old-fashioned spread and interesting addresses.

MARSHAL SHOOTS MAN IN HOT REVOLVER DUEL.

ORANGE, July 24.—Across a pile of ties late last night, a Mexican named T. Remes and City Marshal Henry A. Warner shot to kill. Once the Mexican's revolver snapped in the officer's face. At the next pull of the trigger a bullet went close by Warner's head. By that time Warner had his 38-caliber automatic in play and Remes went down with one bullet through his left hand and another through his chest, from right to left. Remes died at 9 o'clock tonight.

As Nightwatchman A. H. Westerman rushed up to overpower and disarm the fallen Mexican, Remes pressed his revolver against Westerman's head and twice pulled the trigger. Both times the gun snapped. That Warner and Westerman escaped uninjured is due to the fact that the Mexican's revolver, a 38-caliber derringer, was defective.

The officers were called out last night to an apricot camp on R. L. Precht's place on West Palmyra avenue on a report that thieves were there. No thieves were found, but two Mexicans asleep under a walnut tree were arrested. On the way to jail the group passed a pile of ties near the Santa Fe tracks. Beside it a Mexican was asleep. Warner aroused the man, searched him and his coat and found no weapon. The man evidently had it hidden among the ties. Warner told the man to come with him. Then it was that Remes stepped around the ties, and faced Warner with a revolver in his hand.

Remes is unknown to local officers. His quickness to fight leads Warner to think that he is wanted elsewhere. At the Santa Ana Hospital, where Remes was taken, the injured man was reticent concerning his residence and people. He gave his age as 30.

MUSIC AND STAGE.

the arrival of Laurette Taylor, who will play "Seven Sisters," perhaps "Barbaraza" and "The Girl in Waiting" for six weeks prior to going to New York to prepare for the Gotham production of "Peg o' My Heart," while Richard Bennett is now in Los Angeles hoping that he will soon have a chance to commence his annual summer starring engagement with the Burbank company.

In the meantime the theatergoers of Los Angeles and the neighboring towns are evidencing a greater interest in "Peg o' My Heart" than ever, and the chances are that the tenth week of this remarkable comedy, which will begin at the Burbank Theater next Sunday afternoon, will eclipse the current—the ninth—week in the matter of box office receipts, just as this week's audiences are the largest of any of the extended run of "Peg."

There will be a real treat in store for lovers of adventure and natural history when the marvelous Carnegie Alaska-Siberia moving pictures will be seen for the first time at the Mason Operahouse, week of July 29 to August 5, matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

These wonderful pictures were taken by Capt. Kleinschmidt, the fearless Arctic big game hunter, who has spent the greater part of his life among the Eskimos in the land of the Midnight Sun. The camera shows this most daring tribe of Eskimos at work and at play, harpooning walrus, stalking the ponderous polar bear or pursuing the humanlike seal, this unique figure of the North is always interesting.

John Barrymore's portrayal of the part of Daniel Voorhees Pike, the awkward, droll, homely—not physically—shrewd, whimsical lawyer from Kokomo, Indiana, the central figure of Booth Tarkington and Henry Leon Wilson's successful international comedy, "The Man From Home" is attracting the largest audiences of the summer season to the Belasco.

The wonderful pictures of the Delhi Durbar and the London Coronation in Kinemacolor at the Auditorium Theatre are being exhibited to astonishing business considering that this is the fifth week that these pictures have been shown here. The popularity of these films does not seem to wane and they could remain at the Auditorium for several weeks longer to profitable business, but the Kinemacolor Company are compelled to terminate a most successful engagement here in order to fill bookings of the pictures in Honolulu going direct from Los Angeles.

The Deceivers at the Adolphus Theatre is a show with two plots, the author evidently being under the impression that this would make a funnier show and he certainly was right. One part of the show is the arrival of two young elopers who arrive in a town broke and secure positions in a hotel to work their way and worked in with this are two tramps who come to the same hotel and find a letter telling of the coming of two Kings on a visit, so they decide to be these Kings and the situations that arise when they act out the part makes a decided hit with the audience.

NEWS OVERCOMES HER.

Young Actress Faints in Tunnel When Told by Finance That His Parents Oppose Match.

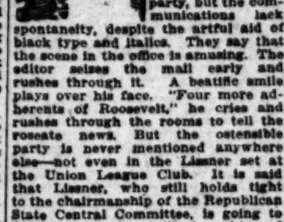
When assured that her approaching nuptials would be opposed by the parents of her intended husband, Florence Hunter, a 19-year-old chorus girl, living at the Antlers Hotel, fell into a faint in the Third-street tunnel and was removed to the Receiving Hospital for treatment. According to information furnished to the police Miss Hunter was engaged to marry Phillip Goldberg, the son of a wealthy San Francisco family, who are spending a few weeks in this city during the summer season.

In answer to a telegram, Miss Hunter went to the tunnel last night to have an understanding with the man of her choice and for a time the pair talked regarding the likelihood of his parents removing their opposition to the match.

Goldberg was not at all sure that he would not be cut off if he married the girl, he said, and at last is alleged to have informed her that the case was hopeless.

A large crowd congregated in the belief that an automobile accident was responsible for the girl's condition and the arrival of the police only added to the excitement. At the hospital the patient declared that she felt better and that she did not wish to discuss her private affairs with the police.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER



That third party, as far as California is concerned, has certainly died a-bornin'. It is true that the Trombone is still printing what purport to be original letters favoring the new party, but the communications lack spontaneity, despite the artful aid of black type and italics. They say that the scene in the office is amusing. The editor seizes the mail early and rushes through it. A beatific smile plays over his face. "Four more adherents of Roosevelt," he cries and rushes through the rooms to tell the roseate news. But the ostensible party is never mentioned anywhere else—not even in the Lissner set at the Union League Club. It is said that Lissner, who still holds tight to the chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee, is going to Chicago to assist at the launching of the Roosevelt party, association, society, brotherhood, or whatever it is to be; but this cannot be. No, no! Did not Earl warn him on the subject in his evening paper the other night? "There may be a moral question," said the Express, "as to whether delegates who will go to Chicago on August 5 and personally participate in the formation of a new progressive party shall thereafter vote at a Republican primary."

There is no third party in California and there will be none. It is all very well for persons who have no particular party ties and never have had any, like most of those who train with Lissner and Johnson in the small olique that attempts to run the State, to think they can lead Republicans out of the party in which the majority of them were born, but they cannot do it. Lissner's quick shift of candidates in various districts is proof enough that he sees the danger to himself. It worries him. His pale, drawn face shows it. The end is foreseen by others besides himself. He will lose control of the Republican State Central Committee and the direction of affairs will be passed over to square Republicans who have been shocked to see how the direct primary and other laws passed under Lissner-Johnson direction has been so manipulated as to disfranchise half the citizens and make political independence an impossibility. In Los Angeles it is one of the amusing and significant things that the men who at first boasted of the indorsement of the Lissner Committee of Fifteen are now trying to have people forget it. The handicap is too heavy.

The anxiety of Lyman Farwell to get into the race against McCabe for Supervisor from the Second District led him to telegraph yesterday to Secretary of State Jordan to see whether his nomination petition cannot be withdrawn. He has paid the fees and made all the necessary affidavits and was one of the first of those whose petitions, completed, were forwarded by County Clerk Lelande to Sacramento. Cronemiller has absolutely refused to stand in the district and Lissner is determined to defeat McCabe for re-election. Of course, Norton is a reformer and all that sort of thing, but he does not take the Lissner-Earl orders, hence will not do at the Courthouse. It will not surprise those who have studied the situation, however, should Norton succeed in pretty nearly dividing the progressive vote in the district. This, of course, would give the Republican nomination to McCabe.

The time to file nomination petitions for the primary ended last night. The County Clerk was fairly swamped with the papers, but the verification of signatures went ahead until late, and there is no question that the papers will be in the hands of the Secretary of State at Sacramento by next Saturday night, as the law requires. Of the list of those who had taken out blanks and filed the names of verification deputies, the only one who did not file his final petitions was Capt. W. T. Helms of the District Attorney's office. It was stated that he dropped out of the contest in order not to divide the Taft vote of the district. Some of the candidates were late with their petitions, but all were in by midnight, except several of the Democrats.

Prominent among the candidates who failed to file their nomination papers last night was John T. Gaffey of San Pedro, who had been selected by the Democratic committee to make the race for the Assembly from the Seventy-first District. Force Parker, the candidate named for the Democratic nomination in the Sixty-second, John Curtis, in the Seventy-fourth, and J. L. McElhany in the Seventy-fifth, failed to come through with their final papers, too. This leaves the Democrats without any candidates in these four districts, while there are two candidates in several other districts for the Bourbon nomination for the Assembly—Satterwhite and Dr. Cloud in the Sixty-third, Huntsberger and Burns in the Sixty-fourth, White and Groves in the Sixty-sixth, Clark McLain and DeLapp in the Sixty-seventh, Crane and Creuts in the Seventy-second.

"In those districts where no candidate filed papers," said Lorin Handley of the committee, when asked whether the Democracy would be unrepresented, "we shall simply have the names written in at the primary. That will be all that is necessary where we have but one candidate."

At the last moment it has been discovered that candidates for the State Senate must sign statement No. 1 or statement No. 2, with reference to their stand on the Senatorial question—whether they will vote for the candidate for United States Senator who receives the largest number of votes in the State or whether they refuse to yield their own rights in that respect. All candidates will have to hasten their affidavits on this point. Most of them have forwarded their papers to Sacramento already.

THE WATCHMAN.

Ask for the "Secret of Success," a book, explaining the plans of the Conservative Investment Company. We have met with phenomenal success. The sales of shares are enormous. Doctors, lawyers, capitalists, railroad men, mechanics, school teachers, newcomers, they all buy shares. Men and women who invested years ago in lots and buildings with T. Weisendanger and made profits, they all come in and buy shares. It looks like a great gathering of old friends—the office is crowded all day long. Shares are 30c up to evening of August 3. Shares are 32½c after August 6—Remember the shrewd men are EARLY buyers of shares. They do not wait until shares are five or ten times the original price. Do not delay. Right now, before you forget it, send in your check and order for shares to Conservative Investment Company, 408 West Sixth Street. Open evenings and all day. "Watch us grow."

STOCK LETTER.

[Furnished by Logan & Bryan, Members New York and Boston Stock Exchanges. Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, July 24.—Stocks displayed a sagging tendency throughout today's session and when the pressure could hardly be termed either heavy or urgent still it was quite apparent that the desire to sell stocks was rather more pronounced than to buy, even in the face of such favorable news as has confronted the market during the past week. Foreigners sold moderately on balance, and advices from the other side denote that more or less hesitancy is in evidence owing to the complexity of international politics and to the depressed state of investment markets. Money rates here (that is, for over the-year accommodations,) do not show a disposition to recede, and the ease of demand rates is considered by competent judges as somewhat superficial, owing to the fact that the foreign demand for stock market purposes is not very large and, as a consequence, the absence of borrowers tends to magnify the extent of offerings. The Iron Trade Review is expected to speak in a most cheerful way relative to the condition of the steel and iron industry, and even the most pessimistic concede that the agricultural prospect is all that could reasonably be expected at this period; but even so, substantial interests are not inclined to encourage bullish operations in the stock market and we believe that such would be their attitude until the political atmosphere is clearer, crops assured, funds returned to reserve centers in volume and the investment demand stimulated to an extent that will permit the proper digestion of the new capital issues which are still lodged for the most part in second hands.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Malaga grapes took a sharp decline in value yesterday morning with heavy arrivals of the same from the southern portion of the State and a few from this section. The demand at 3 cents a pound did not move all the stock which came in. A few Muscatel grapes are coming in. They are selling up to 4 cents a pound. Plums are plentiful and of very diversified assortment. Satsumas of good quality brought the highest figure, selling at $2 per lug box. Wickson plums sold at $1.35, Dunsmon at $1.35, Tragedy plums at $1.50 and Burbanks at $1.35. The demand for them is very fair. Apricots are moving very slowly. The first Gravenstein apple shipment of any proportion was received from the North. The total receipts of this fruit were 321 boxes. The Gravenstein price was $1.75 to $1.85 a box. Peaches were lower and sold at 75 to $1.35 on all of the different varieties.

Potatoes slumped again and the market on car lots was at 80 cents a hundred with few buyers at that figure. The quoted prices on potatoes ranged from 60 to 80 cents and the movement was slow. Some shipments to eastern points are being made, but they are getting smaller right along with the coming in of the solid crop in all parts of the nation. The arrivals of potatoes yesterday morning were 100 sacks by train. There were no onions received—by this method of conveyance. They were plentiful and yellow Danvers were the best sellers at 90 to $1 per box. Silver skins, red globe and a few Australian browns are on the market.

The egg market was steady. Receipts totaled 321 cases and the sales were light at unchanged figures. The price on frozen fowl was up fractionally, fowls selling at 20, roasts at 25, fryers at 24, young turkeys at 28, and old toms at 25.

Butter receipts were 29,324 pounds. Sales in this commodity were light and the market steady. Cheese was fairly active. Northern fresh jobbed at 15¼, while eastern dairy brought 2 cents more and Tillamook dairy cream sold at 17¾. Cheese receipts were 813 pounds.

GRIFFITH TAKES BRIDE IN GRIFFITH PARK.

Van M. Griffith and Bride.

WHEN a young man of earnest and rather reserved disposition makes it a habit to avoid girls and insists he is not even thinking of such a thing as matrimony just wink the other eye—for when such a one is hit by Cupid's dart and stung by the marriage bug he is the easiest victim of them all, and provided the maid is willing, loses no time over the matter.

Such an isolated bachelor boy was Van M. Griffith not two moons agone, yet last night at sundown he stepped up in front of the officiating knot-tier with the "one girl"—just the one who could captivate even the most obstinate of men—in his pretty little and promised "to cherish and probungalow at Griffith Aviation Park tect," despite his oft-repeated resolution of "never." They made as handsome and well-mated a couple as one would wish to see.

The bride was Miss Constance Clark, graduated with the class of 1911 of Polytechnic High School, and is the daughter of Rev. Charles E. Clark of Lancaster, who performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives only. None even of Griffith's closest friends suspected the romance. To one of young Griffith's nature to propose is to perform, and when the secret passed around late last night no one was surprised in one sense but mightily so in another.

The young lady is petite and sweet and beloved by her friends and classmates. She is an accomplished singer and is much made of socially at her home in the city.

The bridegroom is the only son of Col. Griffith J. Griffith, donor of Griffith Park to Los Angeles, and large landowner. Several months ago the father turned over to the son as lessee nearly 200 acres of private land in the heart of the park, which he is building up as Griffith Aviation Park. He is secretary of the Aero Club of California and is the most potent factor in aviation in California, giving his whole time and attention to developing it into practical and commercial lines.

The young couple will leave this morning on a week's motor tour to the mountains as a honeymoon trip and on returning will live on Griffith's grounds at the park, the old homestead of his family. Accompanying them part way on the trip will be the bride's family in another auto, they having come down yesterday for the wedding.

BASIN REPORT IS FAVORABLE.

SAN JUAN CONGRESS HAS RICH SOIL AND MINES.

Chamber of Commerce Committee Convinced that Adequate Transportation Facilities Would Make Its Trade of Great Value to This City.

The committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to investigate the San Juan Congress in Colorado and New Mexico with relation to the advisability of cultivating trade relations with that district and assisting in establishing railroad connection, reported yesterday that the basin is worthy of the best efforts of the chamber to work with it in every practicable way. The committee is composed of George H. Stewart, A. H. Naftzger and Charles W. Wier.

The San Juan Congress is a federation of commercial interests representing that portion of the State of Colorado lying south and west of the Continental Divide, including the counties of Archuleta, La Plata, San Juan, San Miguel, Dolores and Montezuma, also the county of San Juan lying in the northwest corner of New Mexico. The waters of these counties now into the Colorado River and thence into the Gulf of California.

These counties contain over 6800 square miles. The region is commonly called the San Juan Basin. The report shows that there are 121 producing mines in the basin, with many reduction mills and a large smelter. Three of the counties are underlaid with coal measures. Mines have been opened, but the production has hitherto been limited to local consumption on account of the lack of transportation facilities.

The irrigable lands consist chiefly of undulating mesas and narrow valleys with soil of great richness and depth. The chief products are alfalfa, wheat, barley, oats, potatoes and fruits, only a few of which are exported for lack of transportation facilities. The principal fruits are apples, peaches, cherries, plums and small fruits. The committee reports that the apples are among the best in the world.

The climate is cool because of the elevation, which runs from 5000 to 11,000 feet above sea level. The basin has a population of about 40,000, exclusive of Indians. The largest city is Durango with a population of 6000.

The committee concludes its report as follows:

"After investigating fully the resources, advantages and possibilities of the San Juan Basin, we are fully convinced that it is capable of being developed quickly into one of the most productive regions of the United States, and to accomplish this it only needs facilities for getting its products to market.

"We believe that if a short line of railroad was constructed to connect the San Juan Basin with the Santa Fe near Gallup, N. M., or with the Southern Pacific in Arizona, or both, it would be vastly to the advantage of the commercial interests of Los Angeles, as it would surely bring to this city an increasing volume of business from a region whose trade will be very valuable in a very short time after proper transportation facilities are assured."

TRACE ONLY COMPLICATES.

Local Woman, Missing Since April, Last Seen as She Was Being Carried to Ambulance.

Further mystery has been added to the strange disappearance in Chicago, April 3 last, of Mrs. Marion Elizabeth West Howe, wife of R. I. Howe, manager of the University Club in this city, by the discovery that the young and prepossessing woman was last seen as she was placed in an ambulance at the Chicago and Northwestern Station.

In an effort to trace the missing woman, a detective agency is preparing to send a picture and description of Mrs. Howe to every hospital in the United States, and call her case to the attention of as many nurses and physicians throughout the country as possible.

Last spring Mrs. Howe went to Rockford, Ill., for a visit. From there she went to Chicago, at the solicitation of friends, to have a slight operation performed. She is believed to have been taken ill on the way, for on her arrival at the station she was met by an ambulance. Since then all trace of her has been lost.

It was only yesterday that the local police learned of this ambulance instance. Up to then the woman's movements, as far as the local police knew, ended with her alighting from the Rockford train.

SMOOTH SCHEME FAILS.

Stranger Seeks to Collect Unearned Increment From Postal Savings Bank But Loses Nerve.

A bold, but unsuccessful attempt to mulct the deposit account of the Postal Savings Bank at the city postoffice, was made yesterday afternoon.

A stranger presented three $50 certificates of deposit at the window of the Postal Savings Bank department, asking for the money. He represented that they were his property but when he signed his name to the application for the money, it was noticed that he went at it very awkwardly. Suspicion was aroused, but before the man could be questioned, he hurriedly disappeared, leaving the certificates on the window. The name of payee of the certificates is withheld by the postoffice authorities. The papers themselves are regular and genuine. The police were notified, and the postoffice inspectors are looking for the stranger.

TALE OF A MULE TRADE.

Smooth Person Is Lodged in County Jail, Charged With Having Bunced Former Senator.

Fred Strong, whose face was known at the Sheriff's office and the County Jail before his latest escapade, rose so suddenly early this week in the art of high finance that from dodging birdshot directed at him as a chicken thief he found himself holding barter with a former United States Senator and getting temporarily the better of the bargain.

Former Senator Flint was approached by Strong recently and shown a team that took his eye at once. A deal was made, according to attaches of the Sheriff's office, and Flint traded a pair of mules, a wagon and $225 for the team. After this the Sheriff's men say, Strong took the mules and wagon to Burbank, where he exchanged them for a horse and various small articles owned by a livery man there. For a time he rolled in prosperity.

San Pedro.

ILL-ADVISED STRIKE ENDS IN A COMPLETE FIZZLE.

SAN PEDRO, July 24.—The strike of the dock workers and lumber handlers at the harbor called last Sunday by professional trouble-breeders, members of the I-Won't-Workers, ended today in a grand big fizzle when nearly one hundred men who were foolish enough to listen to the advice of the walking delegates went back to work this morning.

Superintendents on the docks and in the various lumber yards welcomed the men back to their former positions, and today along the water front one could hardly realize that a strike had ever existed. About forty of the most rabid agitators only were refused employment, the various companies being glad to avail themselves of an opportunity to rid their pay rolls of these undesirables, and they were left high and dry on the beach.

The Banning Company, upon which was drawn the principal fire of the I-Won't-Workers, employed about fifty men this morning. This company has the contract for handling all the freight and lumber business coming over the Southern Pacific dock and slips as well as the business of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company operating the big passenger and freight steamers Governor, President, Queen and State of California, and found it necessary to turn some men away for want of business.

Most of the men affected by the walk-out were Italian laborers and in returning to work today many of them stated that they had gone out largely through fear, after having received many threatening letters from leaders of the I-Won't-Workers. As soon as they found out that they were being made dupes of by these well-fed agitators and that they would be afforded ample police protection, they fell over themselves getting back on the job.

All the wholesale lumber yards on both sides of the harbor worked full-handed today and all lumber carrying vessels were given their usual prompt dispatch. The downtown streets were quiet and orderly and free from the usual groups of agitators who have been busy since the strike was called last Sunday.

The grafting leaders of the I-Won't-Workers who were responsible for the ill-advised walk-out were perceptibly blue and down-in-the-mouth on account of the complete and dismal failure of their well-laid plans to tie up business in the entire harbor district. Many of them today departed for other fields and even "Crooked-stick" Pat Ryan, who has languished in jail for several days and who holds the official title of "police marshal" for the I.W.W., was given a floater in the local police court this morning and lost no time in making tracks out of San Pedro. It is expected that by tomorrow many more of the trouble-breeders will beat their retreat out of San Pedro and that business along the water front will have resumed its normal condition.

FOUR MILLION DOLLAR LEASE.

Mueller heirs, and the lessee by Metcalf & Ryan.

The lease taken by Goudge, who is a member of the law firm of Williams, Goudge & Chandler, is dated to take effect June 15, 1913, and the construction of the modern structure provided for will be begun immediately afterward. Plans for the building have already been prepared by Architects Train & Williams, and call for a block of nine stories in height to cover the entire site. This structure will be of the latest type of steel frame fireproof construction and will cost over $600,000, exclusive of fixtures, interior arrangements and decorations. The exterior will be handsomely faced with glazed brick and terra cotta.

The building will follow in its first and second-story construction and arrangement a plan that has recently become quite popular in New York and Chicago, but which is new on this Coast. The first story will be given over to stores exclusively, and will have a main entrance on Fifth street. Above this will be a story twenty-two feet in height and magnificently finished in marble and other valuable materials and designed to house one or more financial institutions. Negotiations are now pending between Goudge and three local firms which are considering long-term leases on this floor, and for whom the space is being tentatively planned.

"Lieut. Butler of the police traffic squad was recently quoted in The Times as declaring that more pedestrians and vehicles passed the corner of Fifth and Broadway than any other downtown corner," said Goudge yesterday in explaining his idea. "This makes my ground frontage of tremendous value for retail purposes and causes it to command a higher rental than a bank would be warranted in paying. The bank will thrive just as well on the second floor, where its rents are only half as high, benefitting through a close proximity to the business maelstrom without actually being in the swirl of things."

The seven upper floors of the building will probably be given over to high-class loft purposes, although the plans may be altered to call for offices. The property will be handled by Metcalf & Ryan. Goudge, who is the president of the Co-Tenant Company, owner of the Iowa building on the west side of Broadway, between Sixth and Seventh streets, stated yesterday that the project is to be financed much after the plan successfully followed in the construction of that structure.

The new Normandie block will be one of four metropolitan buildings to be completed or started in 1913 on Fifth street. At the southeast corner of Fifth and Broadway excavations are under way for the splendid structure to be erected for the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. The twelve-story New Rosslyn Hotel at Fifth and Main will be started in November, 1913, and the eleven-story Chapman block will be begun during the coming year at Fifth and Los Angeles. Within the next few years construction will also be begun upon a twelve-story office building for the Commercial Fireproof Building Company at Fifth and Spring and a twelve-story block for Chester Williams of San Francisco at the northeast corner of Fifth and Broadway.

that laid the foundation for his fortune, and made him president of the American Nut and Bolt Works of Pittsburgh.

During the past ten years, he has been coming West frequently. His interest was aroused when a mining company in which he had taken stock failed to develop successfully. With several friends, he secured control of the property, which lies near Chloride, Ariz., and a short time ago refused an offer of $4,000,000 from the Guggenheim Syndicate for controlling interest in it, now considered one of the richest silver properties in the United States. He also has other mining interests in Nevada and Utah and it is partially because of these that he desires a home where he can be in direct communication with them.

"My western interests have so rapidly outgrown my eastern investments that it has made almost essential my residence here, but it is chiefly for the reasons that I have ascribed that I am remaining," he said. "It is only a matter of a few years until Los Angeles will rank the third city of the United States in population, according to my personal opinion and I want to help make it grow."

Bartley estimates the cost of building his residence at $75,000.

Hotel Man, Recuperating From Overwork, Passes Away Suddenly at His Summer Home.

James S. Aurand, for several years manager of the Hotel Casa Loma at Redlands, is dead. With Mrs. Aurand he has been passing the summer in his pretty bungalow at East Newport. Arduous duties during the winter season undermined his health and as soon as the season was over he hastened to the beach home to recuperate.

Mrs. Aurand was awakened by her husband's loud breathing late Tuesday night and on hurrying to his room, found him laboring heavily in apparent strangulation. She tried several remedies, then called a physician, but before he arrived Aurand had passed away. Examination by physicians and the Coroner yesterday led to a verdict of heart failure.

Aurand came to Southern California from the East about ten years ago and has been identified with several of the large tourist hotels, having been assistant manager of the Maryland previous to going to Redlands. The funeral will be held in Redlands.

DON'T WORK HARD FOR A FORTUNE—PLAY HARD!

The More Fun You Get from This Game the Better Chance for First Prize.

Good morning. Are you in line for a fortune?

What book title does picture No. 3 in The Times great Booklovers' Contest represent?

It appears in this issue, and it's the third of a series of seventy-seven pictures that will be published, one each day. Each represents the title of a book, and those who come closest to naming what title each picture represents will be given splendid awards—prizes totaling over $10000 in value. It's a real chance for a fortune, and it's your chance.

The contest is free absolutely. Don't think that it is "free" in exchange for soliciting for subscriptions, or canvassing of any kind. It is truly free to you. This is a game for the home, for the evening hours around the sitting-room table. There is no work connected with it—all necessary to do is to clip out the pictures, making sure not to miss any, solve them, and send them in. Then The Times does the rest by distributing magnificent awards to the most successful.

The pictures are plainly drawn to represent the titles of books. Each picture represents one title only. There are no tricks in the pictures, no catches, no subterfuges.

Several contestants have written to ask whether or not there is an entrance fee, or if contestants have to enroll. Nothing of the sort. Just save the pictures as they appear, and after all have been printed send them all in together, with your name and address, that's all.

Why, it is not even required that contestants be subscribers. Of course The Times hopes that every contestant will get into the happy family of subscribers, but no one need to do so.

If you subscribe to the paper, of course, you will get it regularly, and thus secure the entire set of seventy-seven pictures just as rapidly as they appear. Then the paper will come to your home each day, and you will run no risk of missing a picture, and then finding out, perhaps, that there is some delay about securing it. It is very, very wise, too, to keep in touch with these contest stories. Each day the story will take up a new phase of the contest, and gives contestants valuable advice.

And, aside from other considerations, The Times is a clean, newsy newspaper, and well worth taking, even if there was no great free game running in connection with it for the next seventy-four days.

If you want to start today to save the pictures, you can get pictures No. 1 and No. 2, which were published in The Times of Tuesday and yesterday, at the regular price of The Times per copy. If you order these pictures by mail, send two cents additional to pay postage. Address the Booklovers' Contest editor, The Times.

Turn to today's picture. What book title does it represent?

Now, don't all speak at once!

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Hereafter an "Answers to Queries" department will be conducted by the Booklovers' Contest editor in this space below the daily contest story. Send in your queries, if there is anything about the contest you do not understand. But before asking a question make sure the rules do not answer it for you.

No, it does not matter whether pen, pencil or typewriter is used in filling in the coupons beneath the pictures. Use whichever you please.

Leaves Behind in a Jersey Town Two Children Crying for Her.

MONTCLAIR (N. J.) July 25.—[Special Dispatch.] Mrs. Dorothy Marcus, 25 years old, wife of William Elder Marcus, Jr., of Montclair, it became known today, disappeared from her home on Monday, and her absence, explained in a note which she left behind, offers a remarkable study in psychology.

Mrs. Marcus is young and attractive, the wife of an adoring husband, and the mother of two children, one two years old and the other six months old. Her husband is the son of William Elder Marcus, head of the big jewelry firm of Marcus & Co. in Fifth avenue, New York. Their wedding was the outcome of a romance that began when Marcus, a Yale graduate, and his wife, who was then Miss Dorothy Cooksey, daughter of George B. Cooksey of Pasadena, Cal., met on an ocean liner returning from Europe. The young man fell in love at sight, it is said, proposed and was accepted. Their wedding took the home of a relative in Tarrytown, the suite a society event.
